

6 more bodies found in shattered Embassy

The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Searchers recovered six more bodies from the bomb-shattered U.S. Embassy Tuesday and continued their grim task, with at least 47 people believed killed in the worst attack ever on a U.S. facility here.

There were 24 confirmed deaths, and 23 other people were missing and presumed dead.

Embassy spokesman John Reid said eight Americans were confirmed dead and eight others were missing from the massive explosion at lunchtime Monday. Among the confirmed dead was Robert Clayton Ames, the CIA's Near East and South Asian analyst, officials said in Washington in a rare case of naming a CIA agent who worked abroad.

There was no clear picture of how the attack was carried out, but most accounts said a terrorist drove an explosives-laden vehicle into the compound and perished in the blast.

Ten Lebanese embassy employees, visa applicants and visitors were confirmed dead, while 20 others were missing, said Reid. The 47th victim listed was an embassy visitor of unknown nationality, he said.

The privately owned Central News Agency said the bombing was an attempt to kill U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib and his assistant Morris Draper. It quoted unnamed government officials as saying Habib and Draper had been scheduled to be at the embassy when the bomb exploded at 1:05 p.m. but were delayed by talks with Lebanese leaders at the presidential palace in suburban Baabda. U.S. Embassy officials were not available for comment on that report.

Habib went to the embassy at midday Tuesday and later flew to Israel. He did not attend Tuesday's session of the U.S.-Israeli-Lebanese talks on troop withdrawals from Lebanon, but Draper did. After the meeting at Netanyahu, Israel, Draper said the bombing "just makes us more determined to press on" for an agreement.

After Reid's announcement, workers recovered six more mutilated bodies and parts of bodies from the destroyed embassy cafeteria, but it was not clear how that affected the breakdown of casualties.

Police said 120 people were wounded in the explosion, including 22 Americans. American University Hospital, where most of the victims were taken, said 66 injured had been discharged while another 19 remained hospitalized.

The bodies were removed from beneath chunks of masonry and concrete left in huge piles by the bomb. It blasted off the center facade, collapsed all seven floors in the central section and caused heavy damage to the two wings.

Inexpensive contraceptive sponge to become available

By CINDI ROSS
Staff Writer

A new over-the-counter contraceptive will be available to American women in October, according to Dr. Malcolm Potts, of Family Health International.

Potts, president of the Research Triangle-based research group, said that a 24-hour contraceptive sponge recently approved by the Food and Drug Administration has the advantage of having no side effects.

"I think it's very useful that American women will have an over-the-counter contraceptive like men," said Potts. "The secret of family planning is having many options available," he said.

Dr. Jerry Hulka, professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the UNC School of Medicine, said that the new contraceptive would be under the control of the woman. "This is better than the condom because the woman doesn't have to depend on the man for birth control," he said.

"I think it'll be pretty popular here at UNC for one reason — it's easily available," said Hulka. "The packaging is good. You just slip it in; there's nothing to assemble. In that sense, it may be a very good thing for women to have to protect themselves from unexpected but not necessarily unwanted intercourse," he said.

Hulka said that in terms of statistical effectiveness, the sponge might not be as good as the condom or diaphragm but that in terms of real people its convenience may make it more effective.

The sponge is a two-inch disc of polyurethane sponge which feels something like human tissue and holds spermicide. "It works, much like the diaphragm and foam, on the assumption that sperm will be killed before reaching the cervix," Hulka said. "This is, of course, not a 100 percent effective assumption," he said.

Pam Walters, a nurse practitioner at Student Health Services, said that the contraceptive sounded good initially. "But the next day (after the first mention of it) they said that anyone who absolutely wanted not to become pregnant should use something more effective," she said.

Walters said that something was better than nothing but that the rate of effectiveness — ranging from 75 percent to 85 percent — is "a pretty high failure rate."

Potts said that 85 percent was a perfectly good number to use in comparing the sponge to other methods. "I'm sure some women will be very effective in using it and get a higher effectiveness rate," he said.

He said that any estimate of contraceptive effectiveness was merely a basis for comparison and would depend on how much it was used.

The manufacturer of the contraceptive is going to sell the sponges for $1 each in packs of three, under the brand name "Today."

Six of the pharmacies contacted in the area said that they would carry the product when it came out in the fall. Three others said that they had not yet received information about it.

Walters said that whether or not it would be available through Student Health Services was not known at this time.

WARSAW, Poland — Poland's Communist leadership issued a sharp warning Tuesday that May Day protests called by the Solidarity underground could jeopardize the planned visit of Pope John Paul II in June.

The statement, issued jointly by the Communist Party Politburo and the government, came hours after Gdansk police released Solidarity chief Lech Walesa from four hours of interrogation. It was the third time in a week they had questioned him about his contacts with the underground.

Former Solidarity spokesman Janusz Onyszkiewicz, meanwhile, was arrested and accused of underground activity and preparation for "illegal" May Day demonstrations, Warsaw television reported. Onyszkiewicz was released Dec. 23 after more than a year of internment by martial law authorities.

WASHINGTON — The number of serious crimes reported to police in America dropped 4 percent in 1982, according to FBI figures released Tuesday. It was the sharpest decline in five years.

The FBI said murder, robbery, rape and aggravated assault were down 3 percent from 1981. The far more numerous property crimes of burglary, larceny-theft and motor vehicle theft dropped 4 percent.

"The decline is welcome news. Continued emphasis on the fight against crime is essential to progress in the future," said Attorney General William French Smith, who decreed a federal campaign against violent crime, particularly drug-related crime, upon taking office in 1981.

Neither Smith nor FBI Director William H. Webster claimed the federal effort was responsible for the decline, because the overwhelming majority of serious crimes are local rather than federal violations.

WASHINGTON — The government can allow Pennsylvania's Three Mile Island nuclear power plant to reopen without first weighing whether that would mentally injure nearby residents fearful of a recurring accident, the Supreme Court ruled Tuesday.

In a 9-0 decision, the court said potential psychological harm to individuals is not addressed by a federal law requiring the government to examine environmental questions when it licenses nuclear reactors.

"We think the context of the statute shows that Congress was talking about the physical environment — the world around us, so to speak," said Justice William H. Rehnquist. "If a harm does not have a sufficiently close connection to the physical environment, the law does not apply."

The ruling means that the Nuclear Regulatory Commission may permit the undamaged Unit 1 reactor at Three Mile Island to resume operations without considering the anxiety it could cause in the community.
