Wald: government has ruined U.S. tradition

By MICHAEL TOOLE Staff Writer

Americans are the most brainwashed people in the world, Nobel laureate George Wald said in a speech Tuesday night in Memorial Hall.

Wald, a 1967 winner of the Nobel Prize in medicine and a noted humanist, told an audience of about 200 that our government, often using "Fifth Avenue" phrases has subverted the American tradition and replaced it with another idea of what America is all about.

The view now held by many Americans is "what's good for General Motors is good for the nation," Wald said. He mentioned nuclear power plants, nuclear arms and U.S. policies in Central America as examples of Americans' acceptance of the close relationship between

George Wald

Since Eisenhower's Atoms for Peace program, the government has been involved in the nuclear industry, Wald said. But the hidden costs in the nuclear power process - from the mining of uranium to the deactivization of old plants - have made nuclear power an economic disaster which taxpayers must support, he said.

"It's really a dead industry, but our government is doing everything it can to keep it going," Wald said. "If it were up to me, I would close every nuclear power plant in the world tomorrow."

Wald said nuclear arms was another area in which government and business were linked.

Even though the United States is about five years ahead in the arms race, the stockpile of strategic and tactical weapons keeps growing, Wald said.

"It's really not the weapons that are all that important," Wald said. "It's the contracts."

Wald, a nuclear freeze proponent, said the 18 arms control treaties signed since 1963 had succeeded only in replacing the term "disarmament" with "arms control" and "arms limitation."

"All this diplomatic activity was excellent brainwashing," Wald said. "It destroyed the disarmament movement."

Turning to U.S. involvement in Central America, Wald said the main reason some Latin American governments were U.S. enemies is that the governments try to run their countries for their people, not for exploitation by American corporations.

But American antipathy for leftist groups helps dampen protest of U.S. support of the bloody dictatorships in El Salvador and Guatemala, Wald said.

"We're the only nation in the world whose population breaks out in hives at the mention of socialism," Wald said. "It's crazy because our principal allies (NATO countries) have socialist governments."

Legislators face unbalanced budget for '83-'84 year

Wald said the absence of free elections in El Salvador was the major complaint against the Sandinista government there, but Americans should remember that, because of property qualifications on voting, the United States did not have free elections in its early history, either.

Americans' thoughts on these issues and others have been directed by the big business interests which are running this country, Wald said, pointing to Jimmy Carter's administration as evidence.

Wald said the former president appointed 21 members of the Trilateral Commission to government positions while in office. The Trilateral Commission is a cooperative body of corporate executives in the United States, Western Europe and Japan.

Reagan's Republican administration also has a number of commission members in it. Wald said. "They're not bipartisan; they're omnipartisan."

Wald said the answer was for Americans to become active politically and to take lives into their own control.

"Electing somebody is not the end of a process but the beginning," Wald said.

.Wald, who taught biology at Harvard University for 43 years, said he was making his lecture tour in hopes of arousing students.

"Young people in America could, at any time if they had a mind to, take over this country, and I wish to God they would," Wald said. "Instead they have decided to enroll in medical school."

BEIRUT, Lebanon - Searchers dug a Marine's body from the rubble of the U.S. Embassy Wednesday and wrapped it in an American flag, while grieving Lebanese kept vigil near the shattered building where at least 49 people were believed killed by a terrorist bomb.

There still was no precise count of the dead. The explosion Monday caused massive destruction, and workers were finding body parts and corpses so mangled that identification was difficult if not impossible.

U.S. Embassy representative John Reid told reporters that the embassy's latest casualty toll listed 24 people as confirmed dead and 25 others as missing and presumed dead.

This figure included nine Americans confirmed dead and eight missing, as well as 15 Lebanese embassy employees dead and 17 missing, Reid said. Other embassy officials said there were five to 10 Lebanese in the building applying for visas when the bomb exploded.

WASHINGTON - President Reagan, yielding to rebellious Senate Republicans, offered a 1984 budget compromise Wednesday that provides more money for domestic programs and slightly less for defense than he originally wanted. The proposal keeps intact Reagan's three-year program of tax cuts.

Reagan dispatched three top aides to the Senate to explain the proposal to key Republicans, and Senate GOP Leader Howard Baker said he hoped agreement on a tax and spending plan was within reach.

Several participants in the meeting, speaking on condition they not be identified, said the biggest stumbling block to an agreement was opposition by conservatives to any tax increases over

RALEIGH - Gov. Jim Hunt said Wednesday the state will go to the Supreme Court if it must to keep the federal government from selling leases to 151 offshore tracts for oil and gas exploration.

"Exploration of these tracts presents an excessive risk of an oil spill reaching our coast and resulting in disastrous consequences for tourism and the fishing industry," Hunt said at his weekly news conference.

He said the leases also could threaten the Civil War ironclad, the U.S.S. Monitor.

But later in the day, Hunt representative Brent Hackney said the governor's office had received "informal, unofficial" word from U.S. Interior Department officials that at least part of the sale off the coast of North Carolina and similar sales offshore of New York and Louisiana might not take place.

"We heard they may be backing off, but we don't know to what extent," Hackney said.

GREENSBORO — Communist Workers Party representative Nelson Johnson, trying for another appearance before a federal grand jury, said Wednesday he had new information to present on the shooting deaths of five CWP members in 1979.

Johnson, in a press conference outside the Greensboro Federal Courthouse, said he had copies of FBI documents that showed an FBI agent was warned the day before the shootings of possible violence. He said the documents were obtained through the Freedom of Information Act.

FBI officials have previously denied any knowledge of impending violence prior to the shootings on Nov. 3, 1979. Johnson, who testified before the grand jury in April 1982, said he wants another chance to testify but does not want prosecutors present. He said last week that the Justice Department was trying to prevent him from testifying again.

tion will be made in May after income tax

With hundreds of hours of debate on the drunk driving bill behind them and the upheavals of the nuclear freeze a thing of the past, legislators are now facing what could be their biggest obstacle of the session - an unbalanced budget for the upcoming fiscal year.

By JAMES STEPHENS

Staff Writer

Rep. Joe Hackney, D-Orange, said Wednesday, "The dominant theme of this session is the lack of money." He said that legislators were not spending an unusual amount of time on the budget, but the decisions they were facing were usually concerning a surplus of money.

Legislative analysts have predicted a $100 million deficit in Gov. Jim Hunt's 1983-84 budget, a figure that has not changed in three months. A final predicrevenues are tabulated. With that prediction, legislators will finalize decisions on state spending.

Despite the possible deficit, Hunt is still standing by the original budget sent to the Legislature at the beginning of the year.

Hunt's press aide, Brent Hackney, said the governor predicted an 8.6 percent growth in revenue while the Legislature projects it 2 to 3 percentage points below that. Hackney said there was a distinct possibility of extra money for the Legislature to spend next year. "We do not project a deficit," Hackney said.

Overall, this year's Legislature has introduced fewer bills than usual, said President Pro Tem Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenberg. Lawing said about 2,500 bills were introduced each session. With almost four months out of the six-month session gone, only 1,300 bills have been introduced, Lawing said.

"We don't need all these bills," Lawing said. "The fewer bills, the better off we are," he said, adding that the state Legislature had no business with national referendums such as the arms freeze bill.

"That's why we have congressmen in Washington," Lawing said.

According to many legislators this session is typical of most, with the Safe Roads bill standing out above other legislation for the attention it has received in both chambers.

Bills currently in the General Assembly include legislation seeking to:

· Open state and local government meetings that are presently closed to the public:

· Raise out-of-state tuition across the UNC system by $3,400, to 100 percent of costs;

· Increase restrictions on waste generators seeking to dispose of hazardous wastes in landfills:

· Put the question of a state-run lottery to a general election vote in 1985;

 Make the possession of from 2 to 8 ounces of marijuana a misdemeanor;

· Provide free tuition to children of UNC employees who are killed while at work;

 Outlaw the sale of animals by county shelters to research organizations and animal dealers;

· Reduce the number of inmates in N.C. prisons by providing alternatives to incarceration.

Weinberger and Shultz give Congress hard-sell on MX deployment

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Two ranking Cabinet members put the MX hard-sell on Congress Wednesday, saying it is essential to deploy the new missile because "the weaker we are, the more bold and obnoxious" becomes the Soviet Union.

But three Democrats made clear they were not buying the wares of Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger and Secretary of State George Shultz.

" "Despite the president's super-salesmanship that is being launched here today. I cannot support the recom- Service Committee that the weapon's military value is that mendations," said Sen. James Exon, D-Neb. "It simply makes no sense to me."

Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., said the administration's plan to put 100 missiles in fixed and vulnerable holes "turns logic on its head."

"It doesn't deter," he said. "It does the opposite." Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., said that by Weinberger's testimony the so-called window of vulnerability still existed "and basically these weapons systems would be sitting ducks."

Weinberger and Shultz insisted to the Senate Armed it would enable the United States to match the capability of the Soviet Union to hit and destroy hardened targets with great accuracy.

Politically, they said, it would demonstrate the nation's will and determination to defend itself and its allies.

They said the signal of strength it would send would enhance prospects for success in arms control talks with the Soviet Union.

The present Reagan plan calls for placing the 100 new missiles in silos now occupied by aging Minuteman missiles, while beginning work on a smaller, single warhead weapon for deployment in the 1990s.
