From Associated Press reports

WASHINGTON—Twenty-one Nicaraguan diplomats are obeying orders to close all six of their country's consulates and leave the country, following charges of assassination plots and spying.

The State Department on Tuesday ordered the consulates shuttered and the diplomats and their families expelled in an unexpectedly severe and swift retaliation for the expulsion of three U.S. diplomats by Nicaragua on Monday.

"The Nicaraguan government's precipitate action in expelling U.S. officials, giving them an unreasonably short deadline for leaving the country, and then the public show staged in Managua on June 6, called in our opinion for a strong response," said Rush Taylor, a spokesman at the State Department.

"An important additional consideration was the Nicaraguan government's use of its consulates for intelligence operations," Taylor said.

Another official, speaking privately, said the consulates were "being used very actively" for intelligence gathering. He gave no details.

Word of the U.S. action was passed to Nicaraguan Ambassador Antonio Jarquin during a chilly 15-minute interview with James H. Michel, newly appointed acting assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs.

At the Nicaraguan Embassy, Minister-Counselor Manuel Cordero, the deputy chief of mission, told reporters that "so far the U.S. government hasn't challenged the proof" that three expelled American diplomats plotted for the CIA to try to kill foreign minister Miguel D'Escoto and to form terrorist squads.

However, the State Department says it "rejects the charges," and Linda Pfeifel, head of the political section at the U.S. Embassy in Managua and one of the three expelled Americans, called them absurd.

LONDON—British bookmakers were so convinced Monday that Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservatives will win at the polls today that they stopped taking bets on them.

Opinion polls unanimously predict that the election Thursday will give Thatcher her second term in office and produce a stinging defeat for the Labor Party, currently Britain's main opposition party.

The Labor Party appears headed for its biggest defeat at the polls in 50 years, raising doubts about its future course and about whether there will be an effective opposition in Parliament after the elections.

Labor has staggered through the four-week campaign, poorly led, beset by internal feuds, and pushing the most left-wing platform of its 83-year history.
