

Clark replaces Watt as Secretary of the Interior

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON—President Reagan on Thursday named William P. Clark, his national security adviser and "a God-fearing Westerner," to succeed James Watt as secretary of the interior.

Clark, a longtime Reagan confidant, already is one of the most powerful men in the administration. In moving from the national security post that put Henry A. Kissinger and Zbigniew Brzezinski on the global stage, Clark would appear to be taking a step down in all but title.

But "He is a God-fearing Westerner, a fourth-generation rancher, a person I trust, and I think he will be a great secretary of the interior," Reagan said.

The president made the announcement at the end of a talk to women leaders of Christian religious organizations.

"I think he is succeeding a very fine secretary of the interior," the president said.

Reagan told his audience, "I want to share with you a decision that I've just made. After examining the records of more than two dozen fine potential nominees for the position of secretary of the interior, I have decided to turn once again to someone who has been a trouble-shooter and a result-oriented professional."

"So it is with a good deal of pleasure that I tell you that I have asked my assistant for national security affairs, Judge Bill Clark, to be my nominee for this cabinet position," Reagan said.

Clark, 52, said he was "pleased and honored that the president has expressed his confidence in me by this nomination, and look forward to continuing my service to him and this administration. As an American who believes in our great country, I pledge that if confirmed I will do all that I can to preserve and enhance our natural heritage."

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker Jr. of Tennessee said he was confident Clark would be confirmed.

But the environment community, for the most part, criticized the appointment and expressed bewilderment that Reagan would choose someone with no apparent background in conservation issues.

"It is a preposterous appointment and an insult to the American environment," said William Turnage, executive director of the Wilderness Society. "It is the third time that President Reagan has appointed Mr. Clark to a job for which he has no apparent qualifications... The appointment apparently is being made as a sop to the extreme right wing of the Republican Party."

Turnage said the appointment indicated that the administration planned no change of course with Watt's environmental policies and he said the Wilderness Society would fight to block Senate confirmation.

Geoff Webb, with Friends of the Earth, said, "He knows about as much about endangered species as he does about Angola."

Said Carl Pope, political director for The Sierra Club: "We're dumbfounded."

There was instant speculation that U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick would be named to succeed Clark in the national security job. Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., said, "I congratulate Jeane Kirkpatrick" when asked his reaction to the Clark appointment.

Clark once was Reagan's chief of staff when Reagan was governor of California. Reagan appointed him in 1973 to the California Supreme Court.

Clark was named national security adviser in February 1982, replacing Richard V. Allen. Haig resigned on June 25, 1982, in the wake of policy disputes with the White House.

Watt resigned Sunday, pending the nomination and confirmation of a successor. The interior secretary, besieged for a remark 18 days earlier about "a black... a woman, two Jews and a cripple" on a coal-leasing advisory panel, said he no longer could be effective in the administration.

State and Nation

BREMERHAVEN, West Germany — Police used a water cannon to break up a blockade by hundreds of peaceful, anti-nuclear protesters at a U.S. Army base and adjoining harbor Thursday night.

German police said the Army had asked them to clear the road leading to Carl Schurz Barracks, by the major North Sea port of Midgard on the outskirts of Bremerhaven.

Earlier Thursday, helmeted riot police dragged away 255 anti-nuclear protesters, but 2,500 others, who had gathered at sunrise, blockaded three entrances to the base and temporarily sealed off the port. Some demonstrators handed flowers to police.

The demonstration was the start of a three-day protest against NATO deployment of new U.S. nuclear missiles in Western Europe set for December.

WASHINGTON — President Reagan gave the go-ahead on Thursday for the establishment of a campaign committee for the re-election of himself and Vice President George Bush.

Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., who will head the effort, said "I have no doubt... that Ronald Reagan will be a candidate for re-election."

Laxalt, the general chairman of the Republican party and the chairman of both previous Reagan campaigns for the presidency, said he would formally establish the re-election panel on Monday and file the necessary documents with the Federal Election Commission.

Also on Monday, the president will sign a letter formally authorizing the step, Laxalt said, noting that, "He will legally be a candidate at that point."

WASHINGTON — A federal judge Thursday refused a request for an early hearing sought by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who is trying to obtain FBI bugging and wiretap transcripts of civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr.

U.S. District Judge John Lewis Smith Jr. did grant Helms' motion for a hearing, but scheduled it for Monday instead of Thursday as Helms had asked.

Smith said the other parties in the case needed time to answer Helms' arguments.

The court action came as the advocacy group the Conservative Caucus released 65,000 FBI documents about King which the caucus said provides evidence that the Senate should not designate King's birthday a federal holiday. The Senate votes on the proposal Wednesday.

RALEIGH — Gov. Jim Hunt named members of his Commission on Education for Economic Growth on Thursday, including former U.S. Commerce Secretary Juanita Krebs, UNC President William C. Friday, Board of Governors member Walter Davis, UNC School of Education Dean Frank Brown and UNC student Karen Chavis.

Hunt said the 50-member group will take the next five months to start "a massive statewide effort to chart a course of action, to mobilize public support and to forge a consensus for deep and lasting change in our state's public schools.

"It is essential we act with a sense of urgency if our nation and our children are going to compete in this world economy," Hunt said at his weekly news conference.

Klan leader seeking Democratic nomination

Glenn Miller Jr., who is seeking the Democratic nomination for North Carolina governor, said Thursday he wants to return the government of the state to whites.

Miller, leader of the Carolina Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, announced his plans to seek the Democratic nomination in Raleigh Wednesday. He is a 42-year-old Johnston County farmer.

"We are an organization of white people and we plan to present policies to return government to the white people of this state," Miller said. "Blacks work to promote policies for black people, and we are doing the same thing in the interest of white people."

Miller is one of 28 Klan members who plan to run for state or local office in North Carolina in 1984. He has yet to file with the State Board of Elections, a requirement that must be met within 10 days of organizing a campaign.

Miller is no stranger to the political scene in North Carolina. In 1982, he ran in the Republican state senate primary, losing 1,328-472 to John Robinson of Selma. Robinson lost the election to Sen. Bob Warren, D-Johnston.

"We are going to return control of the white Christian people of this country to whites," Miller said. "None of the other candidates can do that, because none of them have the courage to work in the interest of white people. Practically all of the politicians in this state beg for the black vote and fight for black rights, and we think it's time for someone to go after the white vote and fight for white rights.

"We believe we have a lot of support and we believe we can get the poor and middle-class white vote and win the election, if we can get them to register."

Funds for Miller and for other Klan campaigns will come from member contributions and donations from other groups, he said. Miller and other candidates are scheduled to travel to rallies throughout the state to raise funds.
