

U.S.-Soviet arms talks resume

The Associated Press

GENEVA, Switzerland — U.S.-Soviet talks on reducing strategic arms resumed Tuesday and they were expected to continue despite the Soviet walkout from parallel negotiations on medium-range missiles in Europe.

Soviet negotiator Viktor P. Karpov met for more than three hours with American negotiator Edward L. Rowley and said the Strategic Arms Reduction, or START talks, would go on despite what he called U.S. efforts to block an accord.

Paul Nitze, the U.S. negotiator at the aborted medium-range talks, said at a London news conference he hoped an expected that the Soviets also would resume the medium-range negotiations but that he had no firm evidence they would.

The Kremlin scuttled the parallel Intermediate-Range nuclear Force talks Nov. 23 after the West German Parliament approved NATO deployment of the 572 new missiles. Moscow has announced counter-plans to put new Soviet rockets in East bloc states and on submarines near U.S. shores.

Karpov declared as he left the three-hour and 15-minute session Tuesday, one of the longest in the 17-month-old START talks. "There is no progress up to now and as I have stated many times, the position of the American side is not for agreement."

But he said the talks would go on. Asked if the negotiations would continue beyond Thursday, the next scheduled session, Karpov replied with a laugh: "A step at a time."

Karpov's comments suggest that the Soviets want to keep open avenues of negotiation while showing anti-missile opposition groups in the West "good faith" by staying at START as the current round approaches an expected recess date next week.

This would allow Moscow to keep pressure on NATO while it draws up strategy, including a possible merger of the two sets of talks.

Western analysts have said, however, that a merger could complicate the strategic talks without raising prospects for an agreement on medium-range Eurormissiles.

The Soviet decision to remain at the START talks was consistent with recent Kremlin tactics in the wake of last week's walkout from the intermediate-range negotiations.

Aides to British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said Tuesday she had received a letter from Soviet President Yuri V. Andropov warning against deployment of new U.S. missiles. West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl received a similar letter Monday, and said it suggested Moscow might reconsider halting talks on medium-range missiles in Europe.

The current round of START talks began Oct. 5 when Rowley proposed the U.S. "build-down" plan for reducing each side's warheads and weapons by 5 percent a year.

6 dead, 30 hurt as Druse shell Lebanese positions

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Druse gunners shelled Lebanese army positions in Christian east Beirut Tuesday, killing six civilians and wounding 30, police said.

Shiite Moslem militiamen, meanwhile, kidnapped then freed about 60 Christian employees of Lebanon's Middle East Airlines.

Shells crashed into outlying Christian neighborhoods of east Beirut as Druse gunners in the central mountains pounded army batteries with artillery, multiple rocket launchers and tank cannons. The soldiers responded with long-range guns.

Christian-controlled radio stations appealed to east Beirut's population to remain indoors, as the area shook with the sound of exploding shells.

Associated Press reporter Samir Ghattas said that from the roof of his midcity apartment he could see three fires raging in Beirut's main Christian residential neighborhood of Ashrafieh.

He said army batteries in the suburban hilltop neighborhood of Mekalles were firing into the mountains while rockets rained on Ashrafieh and the adjacent Christian neighborhood of Fin Rumaneh and Furn el-Shubbak.

The Christian Voice of Lebanon radio said hundreds of shells and rockets crashed into east Beirut, calling it the worst violation of the Sept. 26 civil war cease-fire.

Shells and rockets also fell near the U.S. Marine base at Beirut airport and near the presidential palace and the Defense Ministry in suburban Baabda, five miles east of Beirut, radio stations reported.

No casualties were reported among the Marines, who suffered one injured Monday in a shelling barrage.

State and Nation

A blizzard blamed for 37 deaths took a parting shot at the Great Lakes region Tuesday while a third snowstorm in eight days laid up to a foot of fresh snow across the icy Rockies.

"Now for the blockbuster," warned the National Weather Service in Cheyenne, Wyo. "The latest long-range charts point to another — possibly major — snowstorm Thursday night or Friday."

Eight people in the Midwest died in their cars stuck in snowbanks as the blizzard that stranded thousands of travelers with drifts up to 15 feet high swept through Michigan into Canada. Some died of asphyxiation or exposure.

At least 15 people collapsed and died while shoveling snow, which accumulated up to 2 feet deep in parts of the Midwest, and 14 were killed in traffic accidents on slick roads.

LONDON — U.S. Ambassador Paul H. Nitze said Tuesday he had the impression Soviet President Yuri V. Andropov is "not well," but added, "he is in at least good enough health to approve or disapprove things that are published under his name."

Nitze, who has been negotiating with the Soviets on reducing arms in Europe for nearly two years in Geneva, was asked at a news conference about Andropov.

Nitze said he had not asked Soviet officials directly about Andropov because "it seemed to me to be a rude question."

There has been increasing speculation about Andropov's health. He had not been seen in public since Aug. 18, and he failed to appear with other Kremlin leaders in Moscow for ceremonies on Revolution Day Nov. 7. The official explanation at the time was that Andropov had a cold.

PHOENIX, Ariz. — Greyhound Chairman John W. Teets said Tuesday that overwhelming rejection by striking workers of a contract offer leaves the bus company no choice but to hire new employees and resume full operations as soon as possible.

"Now we will go forward full bore," Teets said at a news conference one day after Greyhound Lines drivers and other workers voted 96 percent to 3 percent to reject the three-year contract, which had called for a 7.8 percent pay cut.

"If we cannot do it with current employees, we'll do it with new hires," said Teets, chairman and chief executive officer of the parent Greyhound Corp. "We have reached the point of no return in protecting the jobs of our employees."

Despite a union expression of willingness to resume negotiations, Teets said, "we have absolutely no optimism that a settlement will be reached."

SALISBURY — North Carolina should spend $500 million over the next two years implementing a six-point plan to improve public schools, Superintendent of Public Instruction Craig Phillips said Tuesday.

In a speech before a Salisbury civic club, Phillips unveiled his proposals for six "major investments" that he said would increase the state's financing of public education by $500 per student.

He suggested financing the changes by increasing the state-wide sales tax 1 cent and imposing a "modest increase" in the income tax assessment scale, which he said could generate nearly $600 million.

Phillips' spending proposals include a $200 million increase in salaries for school personnel to establish in 1984 and 1985 an "adequate state basic salary" of between $16,000 and $27,000.

ASHEVILLE — U.S. Attorney Charles Brewer had criticized state Attorney General Rufus Edmisten for taking no action to remove Clay County Sheriff Howard Barnard from office after Barnard was convicted of vote buying.

"He's the chief law enforcement officer for the state," Brewer said of Edmisten, a Democratic candidate for governor. "He is the one that should bring it to the attention of the courts to have the sheriff removed."
