

Soviet mid-range nuclear missile spotted in East Germany

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON—A new, more accurate Soviet medium-range nuclear missile that could pose a wider threat to Western Europe has been spotted in East Germany for the first time, U.S. intelligence sources said Wednesday.

That sighting of an SS-22 rocket could mark the start of the weapon's deployment on Soviet allied territory in response to placement of new U.S. intermediate-range missiles in Western Europe, said the sources, who spoke only on condition they remain anonymous.

The 560-mile-range SS-22, developed to replace old SS-12 missiles, has never been deployed outside the Soviet Union, the sources said.

The SS-22 was seen at Bernsdorf, East Germany, about 33 miles west of the Polish border, the sources said. From such a position, the SS-22 could hit targets throughout West Germany, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, as well as part of Britain, France and Italy.

For security reasons the sources refused to say how the missile at Bernsdorf was discovered.

Last November, Assistant Defense Secretary Richard Perle indicated deployment of SS-22 missiles in Eastern Europe would increase the potential nuclear threat to NATO countries.

"If the Soviets move the SS-22s very far forward, it would extend target coverage" in Western Europe, Perle said at the time.

The nuclear arms race in Europe surged after the Soviets began deploying mobile SS-20 missiles in the late 1970's. From positions inside the Soviet Union, those 3,200-mile-range missiles could blanket Western Europe. At least 378 SS-20's have reportedly been deployed so far, about two-thirds oriented toward Europe and the rest toward Asia.

The NATO alliance responded in 1979 by agreeing that the United States should deploy 572 Pershing 2 ballistic missiles and ground-launched cruise missiles in Western Europe, in position to strike inside the Soviet Union.

The Soviet Union waged an unsuccessful campaign to head off the new U.S. deployments, which started last month.

Among other things, the Soviets threatened such retaliatory steps as stationing new missiles in Eastern Europe, Last October, the Soviet Union announced it was beginning preparatory work toward deployment of new missiles in East Germany and Czechoslovakia.

U.S. officials who have monitored Soviet weapons developments have long expected Moscow to modernize its medium- and short-range missiles, irrespective of the disagreement over the SS-20s and the new U.S. Pershing and cruise missiles.

A Pentagon report on Soviet military power, issued last March, mentions the SS-22 as one of three types of nuclear-capable weapons in Moscow's program to upgrade its surface-to-surface missile force. The Pentagon did not predict its deployment outside Soviet borders.

A U.S. report to NATO last November said the Soviets already have sent into East Germany more than 30 SS-21 mobile missiles with a range of about 75 miles, and that force was growing by about four launchers a month.

The U.S. report also said the Soviet Union was placing 312-mile-range SS-23 missiles in units within its borders.

"If previous patterns are repeated, we expect that Soviet units in Eastern Europe ultimately will receive the SS-23 missile," the report said.

State and Nation

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. argued bitterly Wednesday about whether to keep U.S. Marines in Beirut, with Reagan saying he would not permit terrorists to drive the United States out of Lebanon.

"I tried to tell him the facts of life as I saw them," said O'Neill, D-Mass., who has withdrawn his support of Reagan's Middle East policies.

"It was very strident," said one source familiar with the exchange. "It was hot."

One participant described O'Neill as offering "very frank and forthright" opinions to which Reagan replied: "I cannot say to states which are supporting terrorists that terrorism has succeeded in forcing us out of the Middle East."

In the meeting with several House and Senate leaders of both parties, O'Neill said he told Reagan the Marines have outlived any usefulness they had as part of a multinational peacekeeping force in Lebanon.

WASHINGTON — Anticipating new calls by President Reagan for domestic budget cuts, the chairman of a hunger study by big-city mayors said Wednesday the federal government "is tightening its belt around the necks of the urban poor."

Ernest Morial, the Democratic mayor of New Orleans, told a meeting of the U.S. Conference of Mayors that the report of a White House task force on hunger earlier this month was "an insult to urban America."

The Conference of Mayors opened a three-day meeting hours before Reagan's State of the Union address.

Morial headed a mayors' Task Force on Joblessness and Hunger, which took sharp issue with the findings and recommendations of the White House study.

"While we cannot count how many hungry people there are in America, we know that a serious problem exists and that our national government, along with state and local governments and the private sector, must respond to it," said the mayors' study.

RALEIGH — A Colombian made threats against his sister's two young children and was snorting cocaine during a three-day siege on an Amtrak car that left two dead, a prosecutor said Wednesday.

Wake County District Attorney J. Randolph Riley made his opening statements in the trial of Mario Evangelista Villabona Navas, who is charged with murder in the October 1982 deaths of his sister and her infant son.

Attorneys selected the last of three alternate jurors Wednesday morning, and the jury of five men and seven women was impaneled to hear the case.

Navas, who has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity, appeared in a dark blue suit with his attorneys, Joseph B. Cheshire V of Raleigh and Thomas F. Loflin III of Durham.

A Federal Communications Commission official has rejected Sen. Jesse Helms' complaint about radio advertisements sponsored by the North Carolina Democratic Party.

"In as much as you complain about the content of issues programming... there appears no basis for any commission action on your complaint," Milton O. Gross, chief of the commission's Fairness and Political Programming Branch, said in a letter to the North Carolina Republican's reelection committee.

Gross said in a telephone interview from Rockville, Md., on Tuesday that he advised the Helms for Senate Committee that it could file a complaint against WBT-AM of Charlotte under the FCC's Fairness Doctrine if it thought the station had been unfair.

LAKE CITY, Fla. — Exterminators armed with sticks and rifles battled an army of hundreds of batsome of them rabid—that took up residence in a Lake City school gymnasium.

"We shot 'em and beat 'em with sticks," said John Buckley, owner of a pest control firm hired to get rid of the bats at Lake City Junior High East.

In a grand assault Tuesday, maintenance workers also knocked four holes in the walls of the building so the exterminators could funnel in exhaust fumes from county vehicles to kill dozens more of the winged crit-

Former news director testifies at Klan-Nazi trial

The Associated Press

WINSTON-SALEM — A retired news director for a Durham television station denied Wednesday that he assigned a reporter to cover an anti-Klan rally in Greensboro because he expected violence.

William J. Boyle, who retired from WTVD-TV in February 1981, testified in the federal civil rights trial of nine Ku Klux Klansmen and Nazis, which resumed after a day-long recess.

Defense attorney Jeffrey Farron, who represents Jack Fowler, apparently has recovered from the flu, which led U.S. District Judge Thomas A. Flannery to postpone the trial Tuesday.

The nine defendants are accused of violating the civil rights of five Communist Workers Party members shot to death on Nov. 3, 1979, during a CWP "Death to the Klan" rally in Greensboro. Five of the Klan-Nazi defendants were found innocent of murder in a 1980 state trial.

Boyle told defense attorneys during cross-examination he had received very little information about the rally.

Responding to questions from defense attorney Jim D. Cooley, Boyle said he simply thought he should send someone to cover the rally.

"After 40 years you may find that you develop gut reactions," he said, adding that no one asked him to send someone to the rally.

"With my perverse nature, if someone had suggested it, I probably would have skipped it," he said.

When defense attorney Harold F. Greeson asked Boyle if he changed an earlier assignment for reporter Mat Sinclair and sent him to Greensboro because he expected violence, prosecutors objected.

Boyle responded anyway, saying, "No sir, I did not, and I have testified to that."

Defense attorneys said in their opening statements Monday they will show that the Communist Workers Party, which sponsored the rally, sought to provoke a violent confrontation with Klansmen and Nazis.

Boyle took the stand for about 45 minutes Wednesday morning, testifying for the prosecution about the reproduction and storage of three videotapes used to record the Greensboro incident.

Boyle said there were no deletions or alterations of the three tape recordings his camera crew made of the incident, and that the footage was of "good quality, well shot, and certainly to the standards of almost any broadcast operation."

Testimony from prosecution witnesses continued later Wednesday, the thirteenth day of the trial.

Also on the witness stand Wednesday were former WTVD producer Cleve Hartman and Charlotte FBI agent Carlos Castinella, who made copies of the videotape of the 1979 Greensboro shootings.

Heels

complete ball game," he said. "We played a consistent defense and we forced turnovers."

Jordan, a guard who is about as good on the boards as he is from the field, led the five Tar Heels who were double figures, with 21 points and eight rebounds.

What Jordan didn't take care of, UNC's twin towers, Daugherty and forward Sam Perkins, did with a flair. Perkins casually sank that graceful hook of his, hit from the baseline, popped from the perimeter and, along with Daugherty, took Wake's big man, Anthony Teachey, out of the game.

"We've been struggling lately," Perkins said. "We were winning close games and we weren't satisfied. We wanted to come out fired up and play good D. We wanted to win big, but we didn't expect it to happen so quickly."

Perkins chalked up 20 points and 11 rebounds, while Daugherty, who did not even take a shot in Saturday's game against Duke, hit the boards nine times and scored 12 points, including UNC's first two baskets as the Tar Heels led all the way, with the biggest margin at 41 points.

When this one was decided, and with still more than five minutes to go, reserve forward Cecil Exum kept the crowd of 10,000 interested.

Exum commanded attention, especially in the closing minutes when he became the floor leader, making steals, leading the break, and putting in a nifty layup with 41 seconds remaining that gave UNC a 100-59 lead.

But even Exum, who finished with 11 points in six minutes on the court, was as modest as the rest of his teammates.

"I feel confident out there when the team is playing well," Exum said. "When the crowd is cheering, it gets your momentum up. I just want to see this team achieve another national championship."

Exum talked a lot about the team, and very little about himself. Perhaps there is something to be said for modesty, after all.
