Terrell seeks GPSF presidency

By HEATHER HAY Staff Writer

Tom Terrell, a second-year law student from High Point, has announced his candidacy for president of the Graduate and Professional Student Federation.

University policy on financial aid for graduate and professional students will be a main issue in the campaign for GPSF president, Terrell said Thursday.

"Currently, graduate students have second priority (after undergraduates) on financial aid, and that to me is a kind of second-class citizenship within the University structure," Terrell said.

According to Eleanor Morris, director of student aid, when financial aid funds are limited, undergraduates will get preference in consideration for those funds. That policy decision was reached three years ago by the Faculty-Student Scholarship, Awards and Student Aid Committee, Morris said. "Graduate students are referred to other aid sources outside the University," she added.

Terrell said he wanted the GPSF to take a more active role in policy decisions concerning graduate and professional students. The GPSF currently appoints representatives to many chancellor's committees, but Terrell said that he would like to go one step further.

"Chancellor's committees are limited in their effectiveness," Terrell said. "Graduate students need to form their own committees, which not only report to the chancellor, but sit down with and discuss issues with the chancellor and other University administrators.

"The Graduate and Professional Stu dent Federation is an organization that requires strong and active leadership, like we've had this past year under Chris Capel," Terrell said. One third of the students enrolled at UNC are graduate and professional students whose concerns and needs are too often overlooked.

"Many people have an inaccurate picture of the average student at UNG," Terrell said. "People think this is totally an undergraduate institution. That is wrong."

"The University's diversity, academic standing, strength, character and reputation depend largely on the graduate student population." he said.

"The GPSF president can help assure that the unique needs of graduate and professional students are met," Terrell

According to Bernholz, selling ACC rights to pay cable channels and then charging N.C. residents to see those games may constitute a violation.

Bernholz said the ACC Fans Committee had written Gov. Jim Hunt and other public officials asking them to look into the matter.

BEIRUT, Lebanon - U.S. warplanes shrieked over Beirut on Tuesday to survey positions of militiamen who had shelled U.S. Marines, and a spokesman for the Shiite militia said there were strict orders to avoid new clashes.

Diplomatic activity intensified in the Syrian capital of Damascus, meanwhile, and there were reports that U.S. officials were joining in seeking ways to replace U.S. and other Western troops in Lebanon with U.N. peacekeeping forces.

One Marine was killed and three others were wounded Monday in a battle with anti-government Shiite Moslem militiamen. Shiites said Marine fire killed three civilians and wounded 22 others.

The Marine Corps office in Washington identified the slain Marine as Lance Cpl. George L. Dramis of Cape May, N.J.

In one of the most striking indications of just how far the economy has come, the government also reported Tuesday that new home sales climbed by about 52 percent in 1983, the biggest yearly increase ever.

But some private analysts saw last month's small rise in the Index of Leading Economic Indicators as a sign that while the recovery isn't about to fizzle, growth in 1984 will not be as robust as in 1983.

RALEIGH - Republican Sen. Jesse Helms' re-election committee Tuesday reported that it has collected more than three times as much in contributions during 1983 as Gov. Jim Hunt's committee.

The Helms committee also reported spending seven times as much money during 1983 as the Hunt committee.

The Helms for Senate Committee reported contributions of $2,669,005.63 during the last six months of the year and $4,372,814.20 to date, while the Jim Hunt Exploratory Committee reported contributions of $1,419,465.90 for both the last six months and the year to date.
