

Socialist organizer speaks on UNC campus

From staff reports

A national officer of the Democratic Socialists of America stopped at UNC this week to help strengthen the UNC chapter of the organization. Jeremy Karpatkin, the national youth and field organizer for DSA, met with campus DSA members to discuss strategies and inform them about what the organization is doing nationally. He also spoke on campus Tuesday night, explaining what DSA is.

"What we are advocating most basically is the extension of political democracy into the economic realm," Karpatkin said in an interview Tuesday. "We argue for Democratic national grassroots planning. "We want to develop more socialists," he said. "The time is going to come ... when people are going to have to make some very serious choices. We want to get people thinking." Karpatkin said he hoped his speech would get people thinking and maybe attract some non-members to DSA. He admitted, however, that he didn't have any great hope for bringing many new members into the organization.

"Things happen over a long period of time," Karpatkin said. "But I don't want to underestimate what a small group of committed people can accomplish a lot." Karpatkin said DSA was very active in North Carolina, including supporting Gov. Jim Hunt in his bid for the U.S. Senate seat currently held by Sen. Jesse Helms. Though Hunt is not aligned with DSA, the two-term governor is the best alternative to Helms, Karpatkin said. "In this particular race, the highest priority (for DSA) is defeating Helms," Karpatkin said.

Karpatkin's visit was part of a one-week tour to build up DSA chapters in the South. Karpatkin was at Duke University Monday and at Atlanta University Wednesday. On Thursday he visited Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn., and today was scheduled for the University of Kentucky in Lexington, Ky.

Conway announced he was supporting Hiday in the election, and he anticipated his staff members would do the same. Winstead said the court's decision was a fair one. "I think the judicial process works exceptionally," Winstead said. Assistant Student Attorney General David Maslia, counsel for the Elections Board, said that he supported the court's decision but that he felt the board acted according to the law in disqualifying Hiday. "We bow to the Constitution in hopes that in the future more effective legislation (is enacted)," Maslia said. Terrell criticized the Campus Governing Council for not upholding the constitution requirement for graduate representation on the board and for not changing what he called the "defective" elections laws. "The real culprit in this case is not the candidate Hiday, and it is not the Elections Board; it is the CGC," Terrell said. J. Matthew Martin, counsel for Winstead, said the elections process favored candidates "who have connections with the CGC and pass muster with the DTH." Winstead has submitted his own complaint to the court, charging that the DTH did not provide adequate coverage of his campaigns for four campus offices. Martin said that the complaint is still pending but that Winstead was negotiating with the court on the matter.

Reggie Holley, newly elected speaker of the CGC, said the council had been unaware of the requirement for proportional graduate representation and had approved board members on the basis of requirements in the elections laws that the board have two to five graduate members. Holley said he and Sutherland had worked to gain maximum graduate representation. "We were in a terrible predicament," Holley said, noting that the board was approved only 19 days before the Feb. 14 elections. "Andy Sutherland and I made every attempt to get graduate students on that board. Graduate students just didn't appear to be interested in it."

port the procedures and guidelines of the Carolina Union Board of Directors. This is an attempt to let you know that we don't think the responsibility for meeting black students' needs is totally on the board." Board members' reactions to the memo were mixed. Martha Nell Hardy, professor in the speech department, said, "I'm comforted in knowing there is an ongoing plan to deal with this. But I don't think it changes our plans." Hardy said it would take time for the Black Cultural Center to be established and that the Union Board needed to make a decision as soon as possible.

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department said Thursday that an eight-month investigation had left it stumped as to how the Reagan campaign obtained debate-briefing materials and White House documents from the Carter administration in 1980 but concluded there was "no credible evidence of a crime."

In a three-page report, the department also said it had found no evidence of "any plan or conspiracy by Reagan election officials to obtain the Carter briefing materials or any other confidential, internal Carter documents."

Justice Department spokesman Tom DeCair said criminal activity had been discounted because the briefing materials were not government documents and contained no classified information. The internal White House documents also contained no classified information, DeCair said.

He said that despite inconsistent statements by top Reagan appointees about the materials, no polygraph tests were administered because "no investigative purpose would have been served since there were no legally significant inconsistencies."

The federal deficit is projected at $180.4 billion in the fiscal 1985 budget Reagan submitted to Congress.

Although Reagan said he does not favor tax increases or cutting the defense budget, congressional Democrats insisted that both these steps are necessary to achieve deficit reductions.

"What first must be settled is whether military spending and the huge revenue losses caused by the 1981 tax bill are open for consideration," said Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas.

RALEIGH — U.S. District Judge Franklin Dupree will hear arguments March 26 on whether the Federal Election Commission can force the National Congressional Club and its advertising arm to turn over certain information.

The FEC asked Dupree last week to force the club and Jefferson Marketing Inc. to answer FEC subpoenas and orders for information and documents about the organizations' operations.

The FEC probe at least partially focuses on activities of the club, which is linked to Republican Sen. Jesse Helms, and Jefferson Marketing in a 1982 congressional campaign in North Carolina.

RALEIGH — The Reagan administration should comply with a North Carolina judge's ruling to protect recipients of Social Security disability benefits nationwide, Gov. Jim Hunt said Thursday.

Hunt said the benefit program is "in a terrible mess" and he promised to seek federal help when he meets with Reagan on Monday. Hunt and other governors are scheduled to talk with the president about issues facing the states.

"Despite the intent of Congress and despite a recent series of federal court rulings, people who are legitimately disabled and unable to work are not being treated fairly by the federal Social Security Administration," Hunt said at his weekly news conference.

WASHINGTON — Negotiators from the White House and Congress resumed talks Thursday on trimming federal budget deficits, and tax-writing committees in the House and Senate began work on deficit-reduction packages of their own.

In a news conference Wednesday night, President Reagan — who called for the talks to find a $100 billion down payment on eliminating deficits — urged the bargainers to "get down to business."
