

Jordan's statement endangers Reagan policy

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A statement by Jordan's King Hussein that an Arab-Israeli peace is hopeless as long as the United States sides with Israel is "a disappointing setback" for President Reagan's Middle East peace initiative, administration spokesmen said Thursday.

Publicly, officials said they would not give up on the plan, whose success depends on getting Jordan to enter peace talks with Israel. But privately, they said chances of making progress this year had been eliminated and some changes would be needed if the plan is to be revived.

They also said Hussein's statements would make it more difficult, if not impossible, to get Congress to go along with plans to sell Stinger anti-aircraft missiles to Jordan and to spend $220 million to create a Jordanian strike force for the Persian Gulf.

The king said in a New York Times interview published Thursday that Americans "have made your choice, and your choice is Israel and support of Israel. That being the case, there is no hope of achieving anything."

He said the Reagan initiative, first proposed on Sept. 1, 1982, "is hopeless."

John Hughes, the State Department spokesman, said the Hussein interview was "a disappointing setback — of course it is." He said the administration "regrets the timing" of the statements, although it will continue to push planned weapons sales to Jordan.

The king's remarks constituted the second blow to the administration's Middle East diplomacy in the past month. A setback for American policy in Lebanon led to the withdrawal of Marine peace-keeping forces and the end of the U.S.-brokered 1983 Lebanese-Israeli troop withdrawal agreement.

The interview was a particularly sharp slap at Washington because it came less than 24 hours after Reagan went before a Jewish audience here to ask the Jewish community not to try to block plans to sell U.S. arms to Jordan.

Hussein was in Washington only last month for meetings with Reagan.

The president conferred at the White House on Thursday with Secretary of State George P. Shultz, regarded as the chief architect of the peace initiative, and National Security Council staff specialists on the Middle East.

Reagan declined comment when reporters questioned him later. But White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the peace plan "is still on the table. We would hope that in time, King Hussein ... could continue an active participant as he has in the past."

The Reagan plan focused on having Jordan represent Palestinian interests in peace talks with Israel, with the goal of resolving the status of the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Hussein has held several apparently unproductive meetings with Yasser Arafat, chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization, to try to work out a joint negotiating strategy. Their most recent talks were last week.

At the State Department, Hughes defended the Reagan initiative as "the most realistic, workable and promising approach to a solution. Backing away from negotiation, even temporarily, does nothing for the Palestinian cause."

State and Nation

WASHINGTON — A White House guard shot a man carrying a sawed-off shotgun along the fence surrounding the White House grounds Thursday night, the Secret Service reported.

"The president's all right," said White House spokesman Larry Speakes.

The man, identified by the Secret Service as David Mahonski, 25, of Williamsport, Pa., was shot when he pointed the sawed-off shotgun at a Secret Service officer, a U.S. Park Police spokesman, Sgt. Tony Ferraro, said in a news conference.

Ferraro said there was one live shell in the 12-gauge, single-barrel shotgun.

could attract the necessary two-thirds vote.

Reagan opposed the silent-prayer proposal by Sen. Alan J. Dixon, D-Ill., said Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn.

WASHINGTON — Sen. John Glenn has decided to quit the race for the Democratic presidential nomination and intends to make a formal announcement today, campaign sources said Thursday.

"He basically made up his mind yesterday and confirmed it and signed off on it this morning," said one campaign aide, who asked not to be identified by name.

Added another supporter: "Yes, ... I think I think he made the correct decision under the circumstances."

The Ohio senator scheduled news conferences Friday in Washington and Columbus, Ohio.

BUTNER, N.C. — Hustler magazine publisher Larry Flynt said Thursday he's threatening to kill President Reagan with a "transfusion of AIDS" because it's the only way he can get his day in court.

"This is the first place I've ever seen that ... you can threaten to kill the president of the United States and two federal judges and a half dozen prison employees ... and they won't take you to court," Flynt said in an interview at the federal prison in Butner.

Flynt is serving a 15-month sentence for contempt of court stemming from outbursts during court appearances related to the cocaine trafficking trial of automaker John Z. De Lorean.

The demonstrators marched by Hunt's Senate campaign office on their way to the prison. Chapel Hill resident Mary Rider said, "I'm here to bring my body to be counted for saying no."

Duke University law student Louise Harris said the death penalty was "arbitrary and capricious. I think a lot of people have to learn to love and forgive, instead of kill."

Among the protesters were members of Amnesty International and the North Carolinians Against the Death Penalty. The first 34 marchers wore index cards bearing the names of the remaining 34 N.C. death row inmates.

On Ashe Street, Raleigh police officers and N.C.

corrections officials drove by as the march proceeded down the sidewalk. Police Maj. Tom Justice said the safety measures were taken to ensure that everyone had the right to demonstrate peacefully. Several motorists on Western Boulevard yelled at the protesters.

Supporters of capital punishment also made an appearance across the street from the prison. William Minick, who led a group of five from Fayetteville, said supporters of the death penalty "would not sit idly by."

As Huchins neared his scheduled time of execution, the death penalty opponents lit candles and sang songs outside the prison.
