Discovery shuttle delayed for third time

From Associated Press reports

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — The first launch of the space shuttle Discovery was postponed for the third time Tuesday night, this time apparently by a problem in the electronic system that jettisons the ship's booster rockets and fuel tank when they are empty.

Liftoff was rescheduled for 8:35 a.m. Thursday, 24 hours late.

The agency's prestige and the fortunes of America's space program ride on a successful flight. Twice before, the crew of six climbed into the ship's cockpit, only to find themselves still earthbound a few hours later.

There was no immediate explanation for the scrub, but engineers had been working most of the day on the electronic system problem, programming new commands into Discovery's onboard computer.

News in Brief

The announcement that Wednesday's launch was scrubbed came less than 12 hours before the scheduled liftoff.

Hunt blasts Helms on schools

Gov. Jim Hunt said Tuesday that if elected to the Senate he'd help the United States have "the best schools in the world," and accused Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., of ignoring education.

"During eight years as governor, I have put education at the top of my agenda," Hunt said in a campaign speech at a Fayetteville middle school. "In 12 years as senator, Jesse Helms has put education near the bottom of his list of priorities."

"The people of North Carolina should ask themselves this question: What would our schools be like if Jesse Helms had gotten his way?"

Claude Allen, spokesman for Helms, said Hunt's education initiatives were designed to boost the governor's political career.

"Gov. Hunt is endorsing the proposals of (U.S. House Speaker) Tip O'Neill, (U.S. Sen.) Ted Kennedy (D-Mass.) and the other liberal establishment without addressing the real issues," Allen said.

Bulls target No. 1 Jordan

The Associated Press

CHICAGO — The Chicago Bulls have offered No. 1 draft choice Michael Jordan of North Carolina a five-year contract worth almost $3.5 million, according to a published report.

The Chicago Sun-Times said the deal would make Jordan the third highest-paid rookie in National Basketball Association history behind only Houston's Ralph Sampson and Akeem Olajuwon, and places him among the 20 best-paid players in the NBA.

"We're in a position right now where all we have to do is iron out a few problems and the deal will be complete," said Donald Faulk, an attorney with Donald Dell's ProServ management company that is handling negotiations for Jordan. "It shouldn't be difficult. We're just trying to get all the pieces to fit together."

The major piling still to be resolved centers around the terms of the pact, the newspaper said. The Bulls are believed to be firm about a five-year commitment, but the final decision apparently will rest with Jordan.

Among the "pieces" are said to be various performance clauses such as winning Rookie of the Year or Most Valuable Player Honors, as well as an attendance clause that could bring Jordan as much as an extra $100,000 a year.
