Habitat combats poor living conditions

By LORETTA GRANTHAM Staff Writer

Orange County Habitat for Humanity uses both hearts and hands to improve poor living conditions in Chapel Hill and surrounding areas.

The Orange County chapter is part of Habitat for Humanity Inc., a nonprofit Christian housing ministry dedicated to helping poor people improve their living conditions.

The group contains volunteers from a variety of religious denominations, said the Rev. David Stanford, Habitat member and associate rector for Campus Ministry at Chapel of the Cross Episcopal Church. "We work to obtain loans or donations for less fortunate families, and we also select rehabilitation projects as well as build new, affordable housing," he said.

A former Binkley Baptist Church associate minister first envisioned the chapter, now in its second year. Its largest coordinated effort thus far began Saturday at a condemned house, located off N.C. 86, which is scheduled to be destroyed because of Interstate 40 construction. The group received permission to remove the large roof beams from the house so that they can be used in future building projects.

"The trusses are very expensive," Stanford said. "By using these we can save several thousand dollars when we get ready to build another house."

Habitat for Humanity Inc. originated 15 years ago, he explained, when workers at a farm in Americus, Ga., formed a group to address housing concerns. Since then, various chapters have sponsored projects all over the world, Stanford said, adding that former President and Mrs. Jimmy Carter are currently helping with the program.

housing makes finding economical housing in the Orange County area a more difficult task for poor families than most people realize, he said.

"Many dwellings aren't bad, just overcrowded," Stanford said. "The marginai poor, those who have been. working for 20 years and still only make $5 an hour, for example, often have several families living together in one small place."

The Orange County chapter has received 20 to 30 inquiries from needy families, Stanford said. The group's Family Selection Committee uses specific guidelines to decide which families the group can help.

"People need to have a first-hand experience with poverty to see its impact. You can't understand it from afar," Stanford said. "Habitat doesn't remove people's responsibility, integrity or sense of pride - we work as a partnership to help others help themselves.'

Alice Miller, volunteer coordinator for the chapter, said she became interested in Habitat when she visited Americus with the Binkley Baptist youth group three years ago.

"I like the physical labor better than the organizational work," she said. "It makes me feel lucky to have what I do."

George Loveland heard about the Interstate 40 project through Chapel of the Cross.

"I'm really amazed at the amount of money saved through doing this," he said. "I'm a grad student, so I work in the mind all day. It's important to know that there are other ways of serving Christ than with your mental talents. Habitat's a good reminder that you can serve with a hammer as well as with a pen."

It's fourth and goal and you've got the ball. Make your move to the first team. The National Security Agency offers you an all-pro career opportunity in the following fields:

ELECTRONIC ENGINEERING There are opportunities in a variety of research and development projects ranging from individual equipments to very complex interactive systems involving large numbers of microprocessors, minicomputers and computer graphics. Professional growth is enhanced through interaction with highly experienced NSA professionals and through contacts in the industrial and academic worlds. Facilities for engineering analysis and design automation are among the best available.

COMPUTER SCIENCE At NSA you'll discover one of the largest computer installations in the world with almost every major vendor of computer equipment represented. NSA careers provide mixtures of such disciplines as systems analysis and design, scientific applications programming, data base management systems, operating systems, computer networking/security, and graphics. MATHEMATICS You'll work on diverse agency problems applying a variety of mathematical disciplines. Specific assignments might include solving communications-related problems, performing long-range mathematical research or evaluating new techniques for communications security.

LINGUISTS NSA offers a wide range of challenging assignments for Slavic, Near Eastern and Asian language majors involving translation, transcription and analysis/reporting. Newly-hired linguists can count on receiving advanced training in their primary language(s) and can plan on many years of continued professional growth.

THE REWARDS AT NSA NSA offers a salary and benefit program that's truly competitive with private industry. There are assignments for those who wish to travel and abundant good living in the Baltimore-Washington area for those who wish to stay close to home. Countless cultural, historical, recreational and educational opportunities are just minutes away from NSA's convenient suburban location.

To find out more about NSA career opportunities, schedule an interview through your college placement office. For additional information on the National Security Agency, write to National Security Agency, Attn: M322, Fort George G. Meade, Maryland 20755.
