NCSL fears president's military powers

By JIM TOWNSEND
Staff Writer

The N.C. Student Legislature overwhelmingly approved a resolution Tuesday night opposing U.S. military intervention in Nicaragua without the consent of Congress.

By a vote of 12 to 2, delegation members passed the measure denouncing "any action by the Reagan administration to militarily intervene in Nicaragua, unless that action is approved by a majority of the members of the House of Representatives and the Senate of the United States of America, or unless Nicaragua takes an offensive action against the United States."

Delegation Vice Chairman Steven Epstein said he wrote the resolution in response to the "threats of both governments," adding that U.S. involvement in a war in Nicaragua would be "terrible for America's morale."

"The last thing this country needs is another Vietnam," he said.

Epstein defended the resolution in a debate preceding the delegation's vote, saying that by supporting the Contra guerrillas' efforts to topple the Sandinista government the Reagan administration was in effect fighting a war in Nicaragua and trying to provoke that country into striking first.

"Nicaragua does not pose a threat to the United States," Epstein said. "It is quite likely, though, that the U.S. government would seek to provoke Nicaragua into an attack on El Salvador or Honduras or even a U.S. ship off their coast, much in the same way that we provoked Cambodia. The idea is to make it look like they fired first."

College Republicans President Ray Shimer dismissed the idea that the United States was at war in Nicaragua.

"We are not at war in Nicaragua," he said, calling the Nicaraguan government another example of a "revolution gone bad."

"They get rid of one dictator only to allow another to take over," he added.

Ray Jones, a supporter of the resolution, said he voted for it because he was becoming "increasingly disturbed by the thought that the president possesses the power to initiate military action in places like Grenada and Lebanon. He has more power with the military than he is capable of handling."

permanent transcript, he said. The CGC voted against the bill, however.

"I think people should go back and write down their records," Berger said.

Holley said it would be a bureaucratic hassle to try to re-create the voting records. Working on bills in committee and wrapping up this session of the CGC were more pressing concerns for him, he said.

CGC members would be more than willing to convey their records to interested constituents, Holley continued. "I don't think any representatives would lie on where they stood on various issues," he said.

funding for an organization?" John Nicholson (Dist. 17) asked.

"What's the Scottish population of this campus?" Harris retorted.

The measure passed by a 13-8 margin.

Only two groups are now constitutionally funded. The Carolina Union receives 33 percent of student fees, and The Daily Tar Heel gets 16 percent.

BSM President Sherrod Banks was "satisfied" with the outcome but expressed some dismay at another

Soviets aid rebel wounded

From Associated Press reports
MANAGUA, Nicaragua - One hundred government troops wounded in combat with U.S.-supported guerrillas have been flown to the Soviet Union for medical treatment, a Defense Ministry spokesman said yesterday.

The injured, mostly young men wounded fighting rebels in northern Nicaragua, boarded an Aeroflot jetliner Tuesday for the flight to Moscow, Guillermo Gonzalez said.

Arms talks begin again

MOSCOW - The United States and the Soviet Union yesterday resumed talks on controlling the spread of nuclear weapons, the first superpower negotiations on nuclear arms since February.

question that came up in the debate against the measure dealing with the fiscal responsibility.

"The question of BSM's stability, I think, reflects on their inexperience or non-knowledge of the BSM," Banks said. "The BSM has been here since 1969, and to say one mishap with the said the talks began yesterday morning at the Soviet Foreign Ministry and will last through Friday.

Dole new majority leader

WASHINGTON - Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas was elected Senate majority leader yesterday when the Republican Caucus picked him by a vote of 28-25 over Sen. Ted Stevens of Alaska, Stevens' office announced.

Dole, who has chaired the Senate Finance Committee, was the party's 1976 vice-presidential nominee and is considered a potential presidential candidate in 1988.

Black Ink's funding means the BSM is not a stable organization is silly."

Banks is referring to last year when the BSM's funds were frozen for having more than the limit of five late requisitions, all of which were from the Black Ink.
