

Socialist condemns U.S. policies

By KEITH BRADSHAW
Staff Writer

Socialists should lead the United States in ending support for right-wing Third World governments while introducing radical economic changes at home, said author Michael Harrington Friday during a speech in Hamilton Hall.

"Why do we so often back reactionaries in the name of democracy and drive people into communist movements in the name of anti-communism?" he asked his audience of about 250.

"The American welfare state is the cheapest welfare state in the world," he added.

Harrington is co-chairman of the Democratic Socialists of America party and is a professor of sociology at the City University of New York. He delivered the opening address of the two-day DSA Southeastern Regional Organizing Conference.

He said the Democratic Party is incapable of reforming U.S. domestic and foreign policy because it is still concentrating on New Deal liberalism. Socialists now have the ideas for liberal and radical change, he said.

"The Democratic Party right now is ideologically bankrupt," he said.

The United States has forced opposition groups to turn to communism by aiding right-wing governments in China, Indochina, Nicaragua, Iran and other countries, he said.

"The United States has been one of the most effective recruiting forces for the Communists," he said.

U.S. national security would be improved not by increased arms spending but by a foreign policy based on tolerance for change in the Third World, he said.

A democratic, capitalist revolution is impossible in the Third World because the current world economic order makes those countries ever poorer, he said. Products sold by rich countries have become more and more expensive compared to the prices fetched by Third World exports, he said.

Harrington said poor countries should strictly regulate multinational corporations and limit their repayment of foreign loans to a fraction of export earnings.

American workers should realize that Third World workers are not the enemy, he said.

"What they don't understand is that their enemies are the multinational corporations which play American workers off against Third World workers," he said.

No American or foreign company should be allowed to close a factory without consulting its workers and local residents, he said.

"I think every corporation in the United States should have representatives on its board of its unions and of the communities in which it operates," he said.

Harrington advocated a series of changes in work practices and tax law to help the working man and to reduce unemployment.

The United States should introduce a national health care system because the present practice of including medical insurance payments as an employment benefit makes it more expensive for employers to hire extra workers, he said.

The working week should be reduced to 30 or 35 hours and the very wealthy should be taxed to expand programs for the poor. President Reagan is mistaken to think that the federal budget can be balanced by cutting the poor's benefits, he said.

"Government spending goes overwhelmingly to the middle class," he said. "The poor get about 12 percent of social spending."

Socialists can have an extra impact in the poor South, Harrington said. "The white poor South against the black poor South—that has been the tragedy of the South. We can play a catalytic role (here)," he said.

Marcos victory claim disputed

From Associated Press reports

MANILA, Philippines — Thirty computer operators marched out of the government's election commission Sunday, claiming the ballot-counting that showed President Ferdinand E. Marcos defeating Corason Aquino was falsified.

An international observer group, meanwhile, accused Marcos' partisans on Sunday of vote-buying, intimidation, snatching ballot boxes and tampering with election returns in Friday's special presidential election.

A computer operator, who refused to give her name, told the Associated Press that workers spotted the problem Saturday night, when Aquino was leading in the commission's count by 100,000 votes. By midday Sunday, Marcos had taken over the lead.

leader of South African blacks, would be released, but she did not know when.

Mrs. Mandela, who has emerged in recent months as an anti-apartheid leader in her own right, was besieged by journalists at Johannesburg's Jan Smuts Airport after she flew in from visiting her husband at Cape Town.

Haiti violence cools down
PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — After two nights of wild rejoicing and mob retaliation against the hated secret police of the ousted Duvalier regime, life began returning to normal Sunday for the city's 1 million inhabitants.

Their celebration turned to violence, which killed at least 100 people and damaged businesses associated with 28 years of Duvalier rule.

Jean-Claude Duvalier became Haiti's "president-for-life" in 1971 at the age of 19 on the death of his father.

Boulton to respond to feasibility of BCC proposal in 4 to 6 weeks

By DENISE MOULTRIE
Staff Writer

Donald Boulton, vice chancellor and dean of student affairs, told the Black Cultural Center steering committee Friday that he would give them a response to their proposal within four or six weeks.

Boulton said he had not known the potential of a cultural center until he received the proposal last Monday.

As indicated in the committee's proposal, "I can see how it (a center) can become a major recruiting tool," he said. "There are many questions I have to ask. As I read and digested the proposal, I saw that this cultural center encompasses more than University affairs."

The most pressing questions are those involving the actual costs of some projects discussed in the proposal, he said. As a result, other department and faculty members will have input in his decision.

During their meeting with Boulton Friday, some members of the committee expressed concern about Boulton's full support of the proposal. He said he guaranteed them his support if they were willing to support him in his effort to convince others of the necessity of a center.

After the meeting, committee members were optimistic about the future of the proposal. Camille Roddy,

STV to hold public meeting Tuesday

The board of directors of Student Television will be holding a meeting on Tuesday, Feb. 11 at 5 p.m. to formulate and adopt a new organizational constitution.

A copy of the current constitution is posted in STV's office, room 207 in the Union. Attendance is open to the general public; questions and comments are welcome. Check at the front desk of the Union for an exact room number.

SPLIT.

Split up your training in the Army Reserve into two summers. You can do it if you're a high school junior and 17. Take your Basic Training between your junior and senior years, then your Special Army Skill Training the next summer.

You miss little or no school, and you get a big edge on the future competition for jobs, experience and opportunities.

You also get paid. You earn at least $1,100 for each summer, plus over $1,225 a year for serving one weekend a month, normally, and two weeks annual training.

Before you think about splitting for summer, think about splitting summers, and talk it over with us.
