Well I-Miss Beverly Horne Price regret to say that this is my last personal. I began writing this column as a continuation of my most flawless predecessors The Queen Mother, and Saphire Olivia Johnsson. Hopefully some-one will carry on this tradition of writing hooty yet dignified per-sonals. The Beverly era has come to a close but she will still be around. She will still look at the flawless men on campus, drink the sweet nectar of tea, and terrorize all the frat boys. "Who is this girl?" you might ask. Well, my girlfriends suggest that I do not disclose this information. I, therefore, will remain a mystery. However, I will give you some hints. I am one out of ten; my closets hold two different styles of clothes; I can change my hair styles faster than you can change a record on a turntable; and my best friends call themselves girls (though I wonder sometimes). These personals were meant to bring some humor, carry on some Chapel Hill gossip, and primarily make people see that there are different types of people in this world. I tried to make people understand that its OK to be different. And if Beverly has changed only one person's mind about accepting someone with a different lifestyle then it has been worth all of my efforts. "Monsieur et Dame- I beg you,
