Couple die in collision

From Associated Press reports

INTERCOURSE, Pa. — An Amish couple was killed Monday when their horse-drawn carriage collided with a tractor-trailer and was dragged more than 100 feet along a rural road in Lancaster County, state police said.

Melvin Beiler, 55, and Katie Beiler, 52, of Gordonville, Lancaster County, were pronounced dead at the scene by Deputy Lancaster County Coroner Vincent Walsh.

The couple were riding in their horse-drawn carriage when a tractor-trailer driven by Ronald Yoder, 32, attempted to pass them, said state police dispatcher Sandra Sweigart.

Beiler apparently did not see the truck enter the passing lane and turned left, hitting the front of the truck, Sweigart said.

The carriage became pinned underneath the tractor-trailer, which dragged it for 109 feet before coming to a stop, Sweigart said.

No charges have been filed, Sweigart said. The truck driver was not injured, she said.

U.S. funds not used

From Associated Press reports

MIAMI — The United States has paid rebels fighting the leftist Nicaraguan government thousands of dollars for food, clothing and medical supplies that merchants say were never purchased, according to a report published Sunday.

The rebels, based in Costa Rica, also allegedly charged the United States for enough supplies to outfit at least 1,000 insurgents, even though their numbers have totaled less than 385, The Miami Herald reported.

The allegations, by rebel sources and merchants in Costa Rica, were made against the Nicaraguan Revolutionary Armed Forces, a small rebel unit led by Fernando "El Negro" Chamorro, and the Costa Rican branch of Kisan, a tiny group of blacks and Indians from Nicaragua's Atlantic coast, the newspaper said.

Both groups are affiliated with the United Nicaraguan Opposition, the umbrella organization of U.S.-supported Contra rebel groups trying to overthrow the Sandinists.

About $1.89 million of the $27 million in U.S. humanitarian aid given to the Contras has been spent in Costa Rica.
