Omnibus

Up front:

- 4 In this week's cover story, Omnibus editor Cathy McHugh tells of an unusual garden found way off the beaten track. Pony Maroney is the home of sculptor Andy Fleishman and his outdoor gallery. Visitors welcome, but check all expectations at the door.
- 3 What does Michael Jordan have in common with a wheelchair-bound author? Talent. Staff writer Chris Cain profiles Reynolds Price, a North Carolina native who offers his tips for young writers, his opinions about such revered talents as Wolfe, Hemingway and Faulkner and his praise for today's American writers.
- 6 Tired of living life with your feet firmly planted on the ground? Then get a real loft. Staff writer Beth Buffington explains the ins, outs, ups and downs necessary to rise to lofty heights.
- 7 The pope is coming; the pope is coming! Who better qualified than Joe Bob to provide a handy nation-spanning guide of the upcoming papal visit to America. Definitely no Communists allowed.
- 8 You've been waiting all week for your handy guide for what to do and where to go — fair enough. See a band, catch a movie or be daring and search out some REAL culture. Fun for all ages in Week's Fare.

8 By popular demand: GRAFFITI returns! Once again you can look forward to reading the writing on the wall (and sometimes off the wall) every week in Omnibus. This week Staff writer Kathy Peters provides you with every American's guide to proper British speech. Cheerio!

Staff: Beth Buffington, Chris Cain, Joanne Gordon, Kathy Peters, and Lisa Lorentz, copy editor.

Models needed

Are you a model person? If so, the DTH needs you to model for an upcoming fall fashion issue of Omnibus. We need two girls and two guys to model clothes for this once in a lifetime opportunity. If you're interested, bring a head and shoulders photo, a full-length photo and a resume (if you've modeled previously) to The Daily Tar Heel office Tuesday, Sept. 15 at 7 p.m. to meet with Jill Gerber, Amy Hamilton, Cathy McHugh, and Charlotte Cannon. No prior modeling experience is necessary.
