Men's soccer coasts to victory, defeats Atlantic Christian, 12-0

By DAVID HALL
Staff Writer

After a 20-minute period during which seemingly nothing clicked, the UNC men's soccer team was finally able to slay the not-so-mighty squad from Atlantic Christian College by the margin of 12-0.

A pair of freshmen, Derek Missimo and Tommy Boykin, both garnered hat tricks as the Tar Heels raised their record to 4-0. Atlantic Christian slumped to 1-3-1.

North Carolina coach Anson Dorrance was kind in giving ACC's eulogy. "You don't want to schedule 20 Dukes," Dorrance said of his own squad, "and I'm sure that after today they don't want to put 20 UNC's on their schedule."

The first 20 minutes can be described best as adventuresome. Aside from sophomore John Cocking's game-winning goal 3:06 into the contest, the North Carolina offense was unable to get on track. The defense also committed numerous miscues.

Witness: At 16:30, Cocking received an excellent pass from sophomore midfielder Nick Efthimou and booted it home. The goal was disallowed, however, because UNC was offside.

At 18:18, Missimo skillfully weaved his way through the Bulldog defense. Yet when it came time to actually score, he kicked the ball straight into the hands of Atlantic Christian goalkeeper Chris Hendley.

The Tar Heels were just warming up for their onslaught, though. At 30:31, Chad Ashton fired a corner kick to Missimo, who used all of his 6-4 frame to head in the insurance marker and put UNC up, 2-0.

At 34:04, junior back Donald Cogsville shook off his somewhat despondent play and streaked down the field with the ball. He worked a perfect give-and-go with Boykin, firing in his first score of the year off Boykin's assist.

After that, the Atlantic Christian defense rolled over and pretended it was dead. Boykin scored all three of his goals in the first half, which before the half mercifully ended with the Tar Heels up 6-0. Unfortunately for the Bulldogs, there was another half to play.

"I thought the players did a good job of playing themselves into the game," Dorrance said. "They lacked that intensity at the beginning that perhaps they would have for a Clemson (whom UNC will play Sunday). Yet I was very pleased with the play of (senior midfielder) Mike Moltzon. He was fired up from the start."

After a fiery halftime pep talk by UNC assistant coach Elmar Bolowich, the Tar Heels emerged to further pillage. At 62:50, Missimo, recovering from a badly sprained ankle, received an excellent lead pass from Moltzon and chipped in the team's seventh goal of the afternoon.

After a Steve Dragisics score at 65:12, Missimo returned to complete his hat trick, with an assist from junior Dino Megaloudis. Missimo later added his fourth goal and Efthimou eventually completed the merciless display of offensive prowess with the final goal of the game at 77:36.

"Atlantic Christian is not as strong as they were in previous years," Dorrance understated. "This game is more of a preparation for Clemson. We did not want to take a risk with regard to our opponent before such an important matchup. The players can't wait to take them on."

In assessing the game, Dorrance said, "I was not disappointed. I can understand how the players might have lacked a certain intensity."

Now the Tar Heels will focus their thoughts on the bitter rivalry with 18th-ranked Clemson. "We are determined to go out and prove that we are an outstanding team," Dorrance said.

State will not play Pirates next season

From Associated Press reports

RALEIGH — North Carolina State has declared a one-year moratorium on its football series with East Carolina while officials determine a way to prevent the kind of post-game violence that occurred last weekend, Wolfpack Athletic Director Jim Valvano said Wednesday.

Meanwhile, East Carolina football coach Art Baker said officials should increase security to prevent future outbreaks, even to the point of eliminating access to the bank at one end of Carter-Finley Stadium.

"We are not blaming anyone," Valvano told reporters prior to boarding a flight at Raleigh-Durham Airport. "The only thing we're responding to is the fact that in two of the last three years, the game has not been conducted in a way that makes a good statement about intercollegiate athletics in general and football in particular."

N.C. State's athletic council came up with the recommendations following a three-hour, closed-door meeting Tuesday night, after which it was announced that the council had reached a unanimous decision, but that the results would not be released.

After a 45-minute meeting with N.C. State Chancellor Bruce Poulton Wednesday morning, Valvano said Poulton approved the ruling.

"You must send a very clear message to everyone involved," Valvano said. "(The violence) cannot be tolerated and that is the case here."

More than 50 people were injured in a post-game celebration when nearly 2,000 fans, most of them identified as ECU supporters, crashed through a restraining fence and a row of hedges in the south end zone at Carter-Finley Stadium and mangled two goal posts. Damages to the field and stadium were estimated at $7,200, Valvano said.

N.C. State public safety officer, Robert W. Malason, suffered an injury to his right eye when he tried to pull an ECU fan from a goal post at the north end.

"I think he has identified his assailant," Valvano said. "I hope that there is some follow up on that, that an indictment is forthcoming."

The Athletic Council also recommended that the two schools meet to discuss the future status of the series.

"Top priorities of the dialogue are that, if the series should continue, future games be conducted with safety, sportsmanship and integrity," Valvano said.

Valvano said the discussions would begin shortly and should conclude by Jan. 1, 1988. He said a statement would be issued then about the future of the series.

Baker was in Raleigh Wednesday to address the weekly meeting of the Raleigh Sports Club. He said he hoped people "wouldn't look down their noses at us like we've got people in cages and then we let them out."

During Saturday's melee, Baker ran out onto the field and tried to wave the fans back onto the bank. He took his team and coaching staff off the field and into the locker room when the game ended and said he didn't see what happened.
