Soccer takes another easy win

By ANDREW PODOLSKY

Despite the fact that most of the team has been nursing nagging injuries all week, the defending national champion UNC women's soccer squad easily disposed of Alabama 8-0 Sunday afternoon.

The top-ranked Tar Heels posted all eight goals in the first half and eased off in the second frame to push their record to 16-0-1, while the Crimson Tide dropped to 8-3.

The only dark cloud on the day was the North Carolina injury situation. UNC freshman Brandy Barnes is out for the season, and possibly longer, with a chronic arthritic cartilage in her knee. "Right now we're in a wait-and-see situation with Brandy," said UNC coach Anson Dorrance.

Other members of the Tar Heel walking wounded club include junior forward Wendy Gebauer with a sore ankle, senior forward Carrie Serwetnyk, junior Birthe Hegstad and sophomore forward Julie Guarnotta. All saw action on Sunday, but only Hegstad and Guarnotta started. Gebauer, Serwetnyk and Hegstad account for 24 of UNC's 53 goals this season. Serwetnyk's appearance was the first since she missed the last three games with an injury.

Sophomore midfielder Ava Hyatt led Sunday's onslaught with two goals, while Andrea Zeman, Pam Kalinoski, Laura Boone and the injury plagued trio of Hegstad, Gebauer and Serwetnyk all contributed single tallies.

"Most of the team is pretty banged up," Dorrance said. "I was pleased with Guarnotta's play today, and we just wanted to see how Carrie was coming along. She's still not quite 100 percent yet."

"We didn't want to embarrass Alabama today," Dorrance continued. "They are just starting a program and were nice enough to come on a long trip to play. We just played a simple one-touch game after the half."

Considering the competition, Alabama made a respectable showing of the day. This year marks the second official season of Alabama women's soccer. Earlier this week, the Tide was crushed 7-0 by N.C. State.

The Alabama squad includes 16 freshmen, three sophomores and one junior. Only three of the players return from last year's team.

"We are starting to play a little better," said a somewhat dejected Alabama coach Janko Emedi. "We really have to work on our recruiting a little. I guess we're as pleased as we can expect to be with our progress."

"We are going to ask coach Dorrance to help us by giving us some names for next year's recruiting," Emedi said. "After all, UNC probably gets thousands of potential players' names sent to them each year."

In the game, UNC wasted little time lighting up the scoreboard as Zeman rolled a ball into the net 5:37 into the contest. Alabama goalie Heidi Jentoft could have easily intercepted the ball, but Alabama defender Carrie Glibbery deflected it into the net for a 1-0 UNC lead. Just three minutes later Hyatt took a sliding shot from 12 yards out on the right side to move the score up to 2-0.

The next three minutes saw Hegstad's rifle over Jentoft's head, Kalinoski ripping the ball past a dazed Tide defense and Hyatt's second goal, a roller that crept over Jentoft's shoulder.

Suddenly, Alabama found itself on the unhappy end of a 5-0 score with over 65 minutes left in the contest. Coach Emedi must have realized that Jentoft was showing the advanced signs of shell-shock, so he quickly relieved her of her duties.

Enter the next victim: one Amy Dispont, who jogged sprightly into the firing-squad zone of Alabama's goal crease. Gebauer greeted her with a bullet off of a pass from Boone, jumping the UNC lead to 6-0.

After Serwetnyk rainbowed a header into the net, Gebauer returned the favor by kicking the ball to Donna Rigley, who shoveled a beautifully set-up pass to Boone, who converted it into her first goal of the season. The Tar Heels went into halftime with an 8-0 advantage.

Dorrance allowed junior goalkeeper Sherow to rest in the second half, although she didn't really exert herself too much in the initial half. Meridee Proost took over the goal-keeping duties and basically watched as UNC went into a crude form of the old North Carolina basketball freeze-ball game.

After practicing their passing for awhile, the Tar Heels gave the Alabama defense a workout and assaulted the goal with shots, none successful. The game quickly ended with a 8-0 Tar Heel triumph.

The stat sheet leaned heavily in North Carolina's favor as well. UNC peppered the Tide goal with an astounding 35 shots while Alabama never mustered a threat on UNC goalies Sherow and Proost.

The game also included six fouls and seven offsides for the Tar Heels and three fouls and one offsides for Alabama. Most of these miscues occurred in the sloppy second half when UNC mercifully practiced its keep-away, ball control offense.

So far this season, the Tar Heels have outscored opponents by an incredible edge of 53-2. They have yet to be scored upon in the first half either. With only one tie so far this season, Dorrance seemed pleased.

"After we tied William and Mary, I talked with the team about the keys to our game," he said. "We have really been working on the key areas of the (goalie) boxes, organizing the attack, backpost headers, and finishing effectively, and I saw all of those things today."
