This is it: Tar Heels travel to Clemson for Final Four weekend

By CHRIS SPENCER Assistant Sports Editor

Back in August, UNC men's soccer coach Anson Dorrance said that he was excited about the upcoming year. Dorrance believed that the men's team had the potential to show the nation that it was a good squad, one that could earn the school's first NCAA bid since 1968.

Dorrance has proven himself a prophet this season, or maybe the team has, for on Saturday, the Tar Heels will play at Clemson in a national semifinal match at 3 p.m. No matter what happens this weekend, they have clinched their best season ever, with a school-record 20

The game Saturday is important enough to merit a live broadcast on the campus station WXYC, 89.3 FM. Air time is 2:50 p.m. or thereabouts, depending on the completion of the first semifinal, which pits Harvard, the only undefeated team left in the nation, against San Diego State.

The winners will meet Sunday at 1 p.m. for the national championship. WXYC would carry that game as well should the Tar Heels be in it.

North Carolina is in the midst of a blitzing nine-game win streak, with their last loss coming at the hands of the South Carolina Gamecocks, who later became victim No. 8 in the streak

To get to the Final Four, UNC sloshed through the Johns Hopkins turf last Sunday in a rainstorm to down Loyola (Md.) 1-0 on freshman sensation Derek Missimo's header.

The Tar Heels have already beaten Clemson twice this season by identical 2-1 scores. The first win, in Chapel Hill Sept. 21, gave the team a 5-0 mark on the year. The second one, which came in double overtime in the first round of the ACC Tournament, was crucial in UNC's quest for an NCAA bid.

In both wins, the Tar Heels found themselves down by a goal at halftime and then rallied in the second period. As in the previous games, Saturday's battle will also match two Herrmann Trophy candidates — the Tigers' Bruce Murray and the Tar Heels' David Smyth.

If the Tar Heels should weave their way to the title, Dorrance, who was named South region Coach of the Year Monday, would become the first coach in NCAA Division I history to lead two teams to national championships in the same season.

But what has happened this season to raise this team from ho-hum status in the pre-season to national championship contenders?

"Everything has fallen into place," Dorrance said Thursday, as he took a break from a pick-up game with some of the Tar Heel women players. "This year we've had a good balance of youth and experience.' The youth stems mostly from the play of Missimo. The 6-foot-4 native of Bedford, Texas, has been red hot as of late, scoring seven goals in his last 10 matches since being moved to striker. He has scored the winning goal in matches against Clemson, N.C. State, South Carolina and

The experience comes from the 12 returning lettermen the Tar Heels enjoyed this season. But they have basically been doing it through a team effort, with the same strong play of certain players coming throughout

"One tremendous key this season has been the play of Dave Smyth," Dorrance said. "He is perhaps the best player we've ever had here."

The senior co-captain has generally been responsible for the team's strong performance from his sweeper slot. In matches that the Hicksville, N.Y., native has scored at least one point (a goal or an assist), the Tar Heels are an incredible 12-0.

Other keys for the Tar Heels include senior midfielder Reid Storch ("What a great athlete he is for us," Dorrance said) and senior back Steve Dragisics, a study in consistency. The Columbia, Md., native has started all 85 games of his four-year career.

"Look at his career," Dorrance said. "How many players start every game they ever play for the University?

Another key is junior goalkeeper Darren Royer, who has broken the minutes-played record for one season at UNC with 2,200. "What an impact Darren has made on the success of the team this year," Dorrance said.

Of course, that's not all for the Tar Heels. Other standouts include midfielders Chad Ashton and Dino Megaloudis, forward John Cocking and backs Donald Cogsville and Marc Buffin, basically the rest of the starting team.

The Tar Heels have virtually exploded since that loss to the Gamecocks Oct. 21. "I think we've been gelling since that game," Dorrance said. "The loss shocked us, and we showed our potential that game. That's the game we moved Derek to forward from the midfield, and from then on we've gelled."

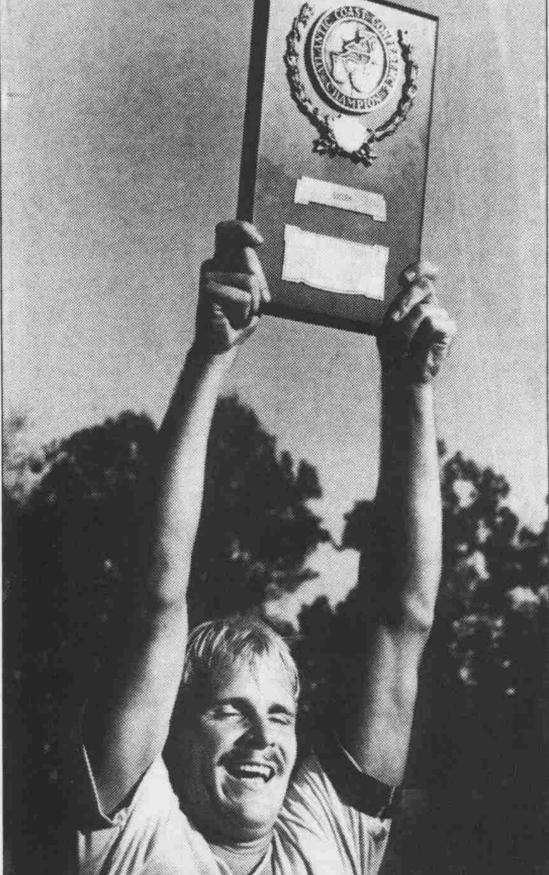

There have been some comments this week from Tiger coach I.M. Ibrahim as to the validity of the earlier Tar Heel wins. Ibrahim has said that the referees were biased in those matches.

But whatever happens this weekend, Dorrance said that this season has been special for him.

"What great camaraderie this team has," he said. "Every victory is a celebration, and we're not taking The committees will hear individ- anything for granted. For us, the uals between 3-6 p.m. on Friday, Dec. Final Four is new and exciting. We've 4. in the conference room on the first genuinely enjoyed everything that's happened, and we've appreciated
