Tar Heels meet weak Deacons

By MIKE BERARDINO Sports Editor

When Wake Forest takes the Greensboro Coliseum floor tonight at 9 p.m. to meet third-ranked North Carolina, nothing short of a 20- to 30-point blowout will be expected.

The Demon Deacons' last outing was a 103-70 loss to Duke, the No. 4 team in the land. Wake Forest's offense was erratic, its defense pointless.

When third-year coach Bob Staak's team is good, it's semi-dangerous. When Wake Forest is bad, though, it can be downright abominable.

Sure to be at the front of Tar Heel minds tonight is the dangerous Deacs' last appearance, eight days ago against N.C. State. With junior guard Cal Boyd popping in a key three-pointer late in the contest and the Wolfpack choking away a five-point lead in the final 69 seconds, Wake Forest knocked off what was then the nation's 20th-ranked team, 71-67.

What will it take for a repeat performance tonight? Well, for starters, a minor miracle.

For instance, how in the name of Anthony Teachey (Wake's last true big man) are the Deacons supposed to stop J.R. Reid? The ACC's leading scorer with precisely 20 points an outing, Reid has already pulverized such defenders as Chucky Brown, Robert Brickey and Brian Williams. So how many is Herman going to rack up tonight against Ralph Kitley? The correct answer is, of course, "As many as Dean Smith wants him to score."

About the only thing the Deacons have going for them tonight, besides the considerable talents of 6-foot-7 sophomore Sam Ivy, is the fact UNC's backcourt has been slowed by injury.

Both Jeff Lebo (knee) and Ranzino

Smith (head, thigh) are banged up.

Scott Williams, at 6-10, should have a veritable field day against the tiny

"big men" of Wake. Williams (12.6 ppg) bookends Steve Bucknall.

Wilson's 23 points help Tar Heels down Duke, 66-65

By LANGSTON WERTZ

DURHAM — North Carolina has traditionally been known for its basketball and its basketball teams' ability to defy the odds and pull a win out of the deep, dark clutches of defeat.

Wednesday night in Duke's Cameron Indoor Stadium, the UNC women's team was on the other side of the comeback. They had to hold off one.

Led by a fantastic defensive effort for most of the game, UNC held off a furious Duke rally, stopping the Blue Devils' scoring barrage with one second left to win, 66-65.

"It was a neck-and-neck game," an elated UNC coach Slyvia Hatchell said afterwards. "We got a little nervous (at the end of the game) and missed some foul shots. But the last 2½ minutes Duke showed us how good they are. Maybe we caught them on a bad night."

Added UNC forward Kathy Wilson: "Duke is a great basketball team.

Wake Forest

Junior Cal Boyd is Deacs' top 3-point threat, going 20-of-49 from treyland.

Boyd (10.6 ppg) is joined by 6-4 Tony

Black (7.7 ppg. 4.6 apg), a slinky sort.

Sam Ivy, a 6-7 sophomore, is scoring

18 points a game, seventh in ACC. His

6.8 rpg also rank seventh. Transfer too). Averages just 5.9 ppg.

David Carlyle possesses good range.

But before the game we got an emotional speech from Wendy Gatlin and we all had tears in our eyes. And tonight we played like we're capable of playing."

Nevertheless, the Devils came over. close.

Following a Jenny Yopp free throw, the Tar Heels took their biggest lead to that point at 59-50 with 3:02 remaining. Duke's 6-foot-4 center Sue Harnett then nailed a foul-line jumper to pull the Blue Devils within seven, 59-52.

But Chryss Watts hit Marsha Matthews with a beauty of a feed on a fast break and the junior forward was hammered but converted the three-point play to give UNC its largest advantage, 62-52 at the 2:23

But Duke's All-American forward Chris Moreland wasn't ready to go home yet. The 6-foot-1 senior scored six of the Blue Devils' next eight and Duke pulled to within three, 65-62, after a Leigh Morgan 16-footer with 19 seconds to play.

UNC's Matthews was fouled, but failed to hit the front end of the oneand-one. Duke star Katie Meier, who had shot a horrendous 1-for-8 from the field in the first half, hit the game's biggest shot.

With Wilson close enough to identify Meier's chewing gum flavor, the Duke guard nailed a 21-foot trifecta to pull Duke within one with a second to go. The referees put another second back on the clock, but Wilson hit a leaping Watts with the inbounds pass, and the game was second Duke coach Debbie Leonard saw it a different way.

"Wilson's foot was on the endline," the 11th-year coach said after the loss. "I saw it."

Unfortunately for Leonard, the referees didn't see it that way and UNC had only its second victory in its last nine games. The Tar Heels improved to 8-8 overall, 2-4 in the ACC. Duke, which has also been struggling of late, fell to 13-5 and 2-

The game was a baptism by fire for Wilson, who has emerged into a star for UNC. Wilson, a 6-foot-2 senior, emerged from her toughest test this season with a game-high 23 points, six rebounds and five assists.

"I think Kathy Wilson is certainly one of the best players in our conference," Leonard said. "And if that's the case, she's one of the best in the nation."

Notes: Next up for UNC is a home game Saturday at 5 p.m. in the Smith Center against Virginia. The Cavaliers are ranked seventh in the nation with an overall record of 15-1 and a perfect ACC mark of 5-0.
