Netters open year with easy victory

From staff reports
The UNC volleyball team kicked off its Labor Day weekend, not to mention its season, in fine fashion Friday night, with a four-set victory over Liberty University.

Coach Peggy Bradley-Doppes' Tar Heels started slowly, but gathered strength midway through the first set. UNC won that opening frame and went on to take a 15-13, 15-8, 10-15, 15-8 victory over the Lady Flames.

North Carolina's record is now 1-0, while Liberty fell to 0-1.

"I can't really complain," Bradley-Doppes said. "The kids are still going through a transition period right now, and we haven't even scrimmaged. This is the first time we've been on the floor."

Sherril Vogel, a senior setter from Wheaton, Ill., led the Tar Heels with 31 assists, many of them going to Sharon German, a 6-foot junior middle blocker who had 11 kills on the night. Right behind German in the kills category were Lisa Joffis, Liz Berg and Andrea Wells, who had 10 apiece.

Berg, a sophomore outside hitter from Arlington Heights, Ill., also served three aces against the Lady Flames.

Football

In the weeks leading up to the game, Brown repeatedly stressed that the public shouldn't expect a "very pretty" performance from the untested Tar Heels, who started a redshirt freshman at quarterback and just two seniors on defense.

One of those two senior defenders, inside linebacker Mitch Wike, suffered a "perforated small intestine" when he was kicked in the stomach during the second quarter. Wike, who missed the rest of the game, underwent surgery later Saturday night and will be out "indefinitely."

In his stead Saturday, freshman backer Karekin Cunningham turned in an outstanding performance in his first collegiate game, making 11 tackles.

Deems May, UNC's starting quarterback, struggled through a night of relentless Gamecock blitzing and Tar Heel dropped passes. The 6-foot-5, 220-pounder from Lexington ended up 13 of 34 passing, for 121 yards. He was sacked once and did not throw any interceptions.

May also ran UNC's option attack quite admirably, holding on to the ball on end runs until the last possible second before pitching to the trailing back. Often, that man was Torin Dorn, who picked up 66 yards on 14 carries.

Basically, breakdowns in two areas — pass offense and pass defense — prevented the Tar Heels from causing any semblance of self-doubt among the ultraconfident Gamecocks.

"We knew going into this ballgame, you have to throw against the University of South Carolina, with what they do against you defensively," Brown said. "And we knew that to have a chance to win the ballgame, we couldn't give them the big one. But we gave them the big one early."

With USC up 3-0 midway through the first quarter, Ellis finally broke through. Dropping back to pass on second and 10 from the Tar Heel 48, Ellis tossed a weak pass toward Carl Platt over the middle. Dan Vooletich, the UNC strong safety playing man-to-man on Platt, a tight end, went for the ball, but came up empty.

Platt, a slippery sort at 5-foot-9 and 175 pounds, came down with the reception at the UNC 30, then shed Vooletich's tenuous grasp and sped untouched into the end zone. Vooletich, a junior still adjusting to a new position after playing free safety last year, pounded his fist on the Williams-Brice grass, clearly upset with his mistake.

"I had good position; I just didn't go through his hands getting the ball well enough," Vooletich said. "I slipped down and I didn't wrap him up and get him down. It's my fault all the way; I should've made the play."

Despite that setback, the UNC defense pulled together to stop the Gamecocks on their next two possessions. Taking over at its own 25, North Carolina's offense finally got going.

After one incomplete pass, May hit Reggie Clark for 15 yards and a first down with a throw that bounced off Dorn's hands en route to Clark.

A quick out to Randy Marriott picked up 12 yards, and Dorn gained five more to the South Carolina 43 on a sweep. May threw incomplete on the next play, setting up a key third-and-5 play. With the gambling Gamecocks blitzing, UNC hit paydirt with a perfect play.

May handed off to Dorn, who started to sweep left. As the USC pursuit honed in on the ball, Dorn handed off to Marriott for a reverse. The speedy senior from Wendell found 43 yards of beautifully vacated turf before him, and he coasted into the end zone for the first touchdown of the Mack Brown Era. Greene's extra point cut South Carolina's lead to 10-7.

The teams then traded punts before the Gamecocks put together the game's most significant drive. Taking over at its own 30 with 5:51 left in the first half, USC ground out a 13-play, 70-yard scoring drive culminated by Green's 2-yard leap up the middle just 35 ticks before the break.

Along the way, Ellis twice pulled improbable first downs out of his helmet with clutch throws on third and long. The first time came on third and 16 from the USC 37, when Ellis whipped a bullet left-to-right cross-field to Anthony Parlor, who beat UNC cornerback Larry Whiteside for a 31-yard gain to the Tar Heel 32.

After two non-gainers and a five-yard penalty for delay of game, Ellis came through again, this time flicking a short pass over the middle to a streaking Robert Brooks. Brooks didn't stop until he made it to the 19, a gain of 18 yards and another big first down.

Six plays later, following a conversion of a third-and-1 from the 10 and an interference call on Skeet Baldwin in the end zone, Green scored, giving South Carolina a 17-7 lead and a firm hold on the ever-important momentum.

The Gamecocks' third-down magic lasted all night. While the hosts turned third downs into firsts on 11 of 15 tries, UNC went just 5 for 17 in that department.

Brown went so far as to call that disparity "the biggest difference in the ballgame."

The UNC offense continued to sputter in the third quarter, unable on its three possessions to penetrate any deeper than the Gamecock 48. Meanwhile, USC all but put the game out of reach with an eight-play, 83-yard touchdown drive capped by Green's 1-yard vault with 1:56 left in the period. That made it 24-7.

Afterwards Brown, the extreme pessimist, sifted through the few positives of his team's Labor Day weekend trip.

"It hurt them to lose the game, which is something you always want to see," he said. "It bothered them. I didn't think there was ever any doubt in their minds coming into the ballgame that they were going to win."

With Oklahoma up next for the Tar Heels, mustering a similar level of confidence will not be easy.
