

Ministering to others: Man shares faith with students

By HART MILES
Staff Writer

Living life in the fast lane. Being "wild." That used to be Taylor Stewart.

Now, Stewart is Campus Director of the Maranatha Campus Ministry. Now, he is a preacher.

After majoring in business administration and being in a fraternity for four years at N.C. State, Stewart did the logical thing. He took a job with Wachovia. But he was troubled, and he knew there had to be something more to life.

"There had to be more than going to school, getting a job, getting married, retiring and then dying," Stewart said.

He met a young man with Maranatha ministries who changed his life. Stewart came to grips with his conscience and decided that he wanted to make the ministry his life at age 22.

Stewart said his family opposed his decision — they thought he was making an awful mistake. But now, five years later, they too have come to see the world as Stewart does. And he has gone home to Wilson to speak at the church he grew up in.

At UNC, Stewart said he wanted to give students an option. He said he does not wish to force God into people's lives but wants to show them how they can let God into their lives.

"Students are looking for a hero," Stewart said.

He has been to many local fraternities and sororities to speak about his faith and answer questions about religion. But he said he thinks most students are afraid to come forward with their questions because of what other people might think. "Their questions need to be answered," he said.

At 7:30 p.m. each Wednesday, the Maranatha ministry holds a meeting in the Union for interested people. Stewart said he welcomes all people, for he has seen people at their lowest points and believes God can make a difference. He said he has seen drug addicts, alcoholics, suicidal people and vagrants touched.

His work has taken him to places like Jamaica and Australia. Stewart, 27, said he feels successful, because success to him is a "right standing with God — having a clean conscience, which produces joy, peace and true fulfillment."

Stewart said he thinks good things are happening on campus with Christian involvement. He said there has been much involvement and participation in planned activities sponsored by the Maranatha ministry; last week a group went down to Myrtle Beach to swim, lie out and talk about the Bible.

Although there has been a lot of controversy concerning religion in the past year, Stewart said religion persists. It will live through controversy, he said, and in the future he sees an army of young people serving God. In his own future he said he hopes to provide a Christian influence that is felt around campus.

Taylor Stewart speaks with Gino Freeman, a math/statistics tutor from Baltimore, Md.

well. West Chester's only second-half penalty corner was an act of futility, with the Rams failing to get off a quality shot.

In the first half, North Carolina had the first good scoring opportunity. In the opening moments, Blaisse sent a lead to Osomers who outran the West Chester backline but sent a rocket wide to the right. The Rams came right back, but their shot was kicked out of danger by Spee.

Following a UNC penalty corner, West Chester raced down the field for its best chance to get on the board. Spee saved the first West Chester shot but couldn't get to the loose ball. The ensuing commotion in front of the Tar Heel goal ended when Spee deflected the ball out of bounds while sitting on the ground. The Ram penalty corner that followed was thwarted by North Carolina's defense.

Although UNC outshot West Chester 14-3 and had five penalty corners to the Rams' three, one could hardly say the No. 2 Tar Heels played well, especially in the first period. This poor first-half performance led to Shelton's lecture at the break.

Shelton told her players that they lacked intensity and enthusiasm. She also told the squad, "We ain't that good."

Speaking of her coach's speech, Blaisse understated, "She was a little upset."

But Shelton's tirade lit a fire under her unit.

"She really picked us up," Osomers said. "Everybody really got psyched for the second half."

"They weren't hustling," Shelton noted of her team's first-half demise. "When they try to play in control and they think they don't need to hustle. They think they can be cool and poised about what they're doing. They mistake poise for nonchalance." Nevertheless, Shelton was still somewhat optimistic about UNC's next home game Saturday against William and Mary. "I know they're better than they've been performing," she said.

improve on individual and team performance.

"We don't set winning as a goal," Dorrance said. "We talk about personal and team performance. We would like to take the game to another level. We shoot for team and personal performance and we watch that against the ideal game, and we had moments of the ideal game in the first half today."

According to Gebauer, who scored North Carolina's first goal of the day, setting the record was something accomplished through confidence and pride.

"We don't think about the record, but we have a lot of pride and consistency in our play," she said. "We get the freshmen to know what it takes to win. We do whatever it takes so that we'll never know what it takes to lose again. The losses in 1985 helped those of us who are still around. But we can't rely on the fact that we haven't lost in so long. We have to go and play better in each game."

Gebauer was referring to UNC's loss in 1985 to George Mason in the championship game and a loss to Massachusetts earlier in the 1985 season, which ended the original 57-game streak.

And, of course, the Tar Heels have their sights set on capturing another NCAA crown this year, something senior Lori Henry says surpasses the unbeaten streak in terms of importance.

"The streak is fine, but it doesn't mean anything if we lose in the last game of the year," Henry said.

In the meantime, North Carolina will try to build upon each game in an effort to establish consistency and "take the game to another level."

"It demonstrates great consistency, and that's why I'm excited," said Dorrance, reflecting on the landmark victory. "If you'd asked me earlier this year if I thought we'd break the record, I didn't think we'd do it."

North Carolina will see action again next weekend as they travel to Orlando, Fla. and Barry College on October 8 and 9, respectively. The Tar Heels' next home game will be on Wednesday, when the Radford Highlanders come to Chapel Hill for a p.m. battle.

defense, they don't have to blitz.

"I don't see any weaknesses they have. They're good at all positions. I just think it's one of the best football teams I've ever coached against."

The second half started just as inauspiciously for the Tar Heels as did the first. Once again, Hall botched his first snap from center, and this time UNC wasn't so lucky as Auburn lineman Ron Stallworth pounced on the loose ball at the UNC 14.

To its credit, the Tar Heel defense refused to buckle, forcing Lyle to come on and kick a 23-yard field goal to make it 26-0.

Yet another UNC three-and-out offensive series was followed by a Slack-led, 68-yard Tiger touchdown drive. Love topped it off with a three-yard run around left end to give Auburn a pollster-pleasing 33-0 advantage at the 7:09 mark of the third quarter.

UNC finally broke through on its next possession. Hall scrambled 16 yards out to the 32 and picked up another 15 when Auburn safety Carlo Cheattom was flagged for a personal foul at the end of the play.

Then, on a fourth-and-two play from the Auburn 46, Kennard Martin ripped off an eight-yard gain. Four plays later, Hall dropped back and found Clark, who had beaten Auburn corner John Wiley on a post pattern, to break up the shutout.

The Tigers marched right back downfield, going 81 yards in six plays to make the score 40-7 with 59 seconds left in the third period. Danley left UNC linebacker Chuck Sledge coughing in his dust on a 33-yard TD run.

North Carolina used the final 15 minutes to play some reserves and dress up the final score a little. Martin bulled over twice from the 2, sandwiching his runs around an 11-yard TD by Auburn fullback Alex Strong.

Martin, who started at tailback in place of Torin Dorn, ran 15 times for 71 yards Saturday.

"I asked our football team again after the game, 'Are we a better football team now than we were when we went to South Carolina?' and they unanimously said yes," Brown said. "They're disappointed in the loss, but they darn sure understand where Auburn fits.

"We're very, very physically beat up — which you can imagine after the four ballgames we've played — and emotionally down. We've got a tough week ahead of us."

Wake Forest, and a game that should be a true "battle," is next.

Rounding up the Top 20 action

From Associated Press reports

"Good teams have to be able to win on the road," says UCLA coach Terry Donahue. And seven members of the Associated Press Top Twenty, led by second-ranked UCLA and No. 3 Southern California, did just that.

In Seattle, a place they hadn't won in their last three visits, the UCLA Bruins needed a 48-yard pass play from Troy Aikman to Reggie Moore with 1:28 left to beat No. 16 Washington 24-17.

Southern Cal had an easier time in Tucson. Rodney Peete threw three touchdowns to Eric Affholter, leading the Trojans to a 38-15 victory over Arizona.

UCLA and Southern Cal are 4-0, as is No. 20 Oregon, a 34-13 winner at San Diego State. However, Saturday's game was the Bruins' first Pac-10 contest while USC and Oregon are 2-0.

Other road winners were No. 6 Florida State, 48-28 over Tulane, No. 7 West Virginia, 22-10 over Virginia Tech, No. 12 Alabama, 31-27 over Kentucky, and No. 19 Michigan, 62-14 over Wisconsin.

The only top 20 team to lose on the road was No. 14 LSU, which dropped a 19-6 Southeastern Conference decision to No. 17 Florida.

Meanwhile, No. 1-ranked Miami pounded Missouri 55-0, fourth-ranked Auburn hammered North Carolina 47-21 and No. 5 Notre Dame trounced Stanford 42-14.

Elsewhere, it was No. 8 South Carolina 35, Appalachian State 9; No. 9 Nebraska 48, Nevada Las Vegas 6; No. 10 Oklahoma 35, Iowa State 7; No. 13 Oklahoma State 56, Tulsa 35; No. 15 Georgia 36, Mississippi 12 and No. 18 Wyoming 35, Fullerton State 16.

Clemson, the No. 11 team, was not scheduled.

In Southern California's 38-15 win at Arizona, Peete hit Affholter for touchdowns of 15 yards in the third quarter and 11 and 9 yards in the final period. The Trojans capitalized on three Arizona mistakes, including two fumbles, for touchdowns, and Peete directed scoring drives of 63, 80, 87, 17, 43, and 98 yards while completing 20 of 27 passes for 219 of USC's 451 total yards. Southern Cal controlled the ball for almost 42 minutes.

After Peete's first touchdown pass, USC's Junior Seau recovered a live ball on the ensuing kickoff that set up Scott Lockwood's 2-yard run.
