

Fine Young Cannibals prepared to drive fans crazy

By BRIAN SPRINGER
Staff Writer

1989 has been a dream year for the Fine Young Cannibals, who will bring their intelligent, soul-flavored dance pop to Cameron Indoor Stadium at Duke University tonight.

While many critics have lumped the band into the "one-hit wonder" heap, Cannibals Roland Gift, David Steele and Andy Cox have dominated the radio airwaves for the past several months with their album The Raw and the Cooked and its singles, "She Drives Me

Crazy" and "Good Thing."

The history of Fine Young Cannibals can be traced to the breakup of the Beat in 1982. Singers Ranking Roger and Dave Wakeling formed the band General Public, leaving songwriters Steele and Cox in search of a singer. The fledgling band went so far as to make an appeal for a singer on MTV. Finally, Steele and Cox interviewed and hired Gift, a charismatic saxophonist in Acrylix, a band which had opened for the Beat.

The band was treated as a joke during its beginnings and was discouraged by I.R.S. Records head Miles Copeland; a complex legal settlement held Steele and Cox contractually bound to I.R.S.

Taking the name Fine Young Cannibals from the 1960 B movie All the Fine Young Cannibals, the band released an eponymous album in 1985. The album generated a tremendous response overseas, but was largely overlooked in America despite the hit single "Johnny Come Home."

The group spent three years on sab-atical after its debut. Steele and Cox worked as a production team, lending their skills to bands such as Pop Will Eat Itself and the Wee Papa Girls. Gift worked as an actor, playing roles in Sammy and Rosie Get Laid and Scandal. The band's only activity during this period was contributing a cover of the Buzzcocks' "Never Fallen In Love" to the soundtrack of Jonathan Demme's Something Wild.

I.R.S. finally managed to lure Fine Young Cannibals back into the studio last year. The band cut the more poised

The Raw and the Cooked with the aid of Prince sideman David Z. Since its release, the album has established Fine Young Cannibals as this year's wildly successful British export. The Raw and the Cooked has been certified double platinum and is still enjoying a run of several months at the top of the international charts.

In concert, Fine Young Cannibals rely more on presence than flashy theatrics. The band pulls covers from a virtually unmatched smorgasbord of influences. Few acts can switch from Smokey Robinson to the Buzzcocks in the blink of an eye. Of course, Gift and company also have two albums' worth of material from which to draw. Expect to hear all of this year's dance floor hits, from the Prince-ish funk of "She Drives Me Crazy" to the latest single, "Don't Look Back." The band fears being pigeonholed into a musical style more than anything, so at least a diverse show is guaranteed.

Opening for the band will be newcomer Neneh Cherry, whose single "Buffalo Stance" and album Raw Like Sushi were lauded as being among the most progressive musical stylings of 1989. Cherry is now trying to prove herself as a road performer. From advance word, she has managed to get the audience dancing even before the Cannibals hit the stage. Also on the bill is an all-female cappella band, the Mint Juleps.

Despite rumors of discord and possible breakup in the wake of the members' various side projects, Fine Young Cannibals remains a close-knit group that lives to perform in concert. Get ready, Triangle, because tonight Fine Young Cannibals is set to drive you crazy with perhaps the most dance-ready tour of the season.

Frank Dodson, Campus Christian Fellowship campus minister, said his organization helped students in a crisis situation, and there were other support groups in the area that support young pregnant women. "Convenience does not outweigh the taking of human life."

Sharon Sentelle, co-founder of UNC Students for Life and chairwoman of the UNC College Republicans, said the congress was going beyond its jurisdiction by passing resolutions concerning abortion.

"I think that Student Congress is elected to further student affairs on campus, and I do not see that this resolution does that in any way. It would seem to me that this is a clear case of people getting power and wanting to jump on the bandwagon with a controversial issue."

Student Congress member Todd Wyatt (Dist. 4), a co-sponsor of the resolution, said the argument that Student Congress was not representing the student body could be used in any case and was not specific to this one. If the students are not pleased with the representation provided by congress, then next election they can vote the members they believe unsatisfactory out, he said.

In reference to the resolution, Wyatt said, "It's a fundamental freedom — the right to make a very personal and private choice. It can't be dictated by anybody."
