Off-year elections favor Democrats

From Associated Press reports

Democrats savored off-year election success in "everything, all over the country" Wednesday, while blacks and abortion rights groups celebrated L. Douglas Wilder's likely victory as governor of Virginia and David Dinkins' triumph as New York's new mayor.

"It's a very tough day for Republicans," conceded Rep. Newt Gingrich, the GOP whip in the House. Said President Bush: "Wait till next year."

Republican J. Marshall Coleman declared his intention to seek a recount in Virginia's close race, saying there must be public confidence in the election outcome "for the good of the new governor." Coleman said Wilder, if victorious, would have his full support.

But Wilder — leader by fewer than 6,000 votes in complete, unofficial returns from Tuesday's balloting — wasn't waiting to stake his claim to history as the nation's first elected black governor.

"It starts coming home to you; something happened last night," he said. Asked whether the color of his skin had mattered, he told a news conference, "I'm saying it is not and was not a factor in the results because I was elected."

Dinkins went to City Hall in New York where he will soon take office as the first black mayor of the nation's largest city. "I got a pretty fair percentage of the white vote, and I think that's very important," said the man who pledged to bring racial harmony to his city.

He said voters had spoken "with the voice of hope, here and in Virginia."

In New Jersey, Democratic Rep. James Florio celebrated his personal victory as governor after two previous campaign defeats.

Democrats savored regaining the state's top job after eight years as well as two-house control in the state legislature, assuring them the upper hand when the state's congressional districts are reapportioned after the 1990 census.

The Republican post-mortem was in progress, even before the final precinct tallies were known.

Gingrich said his party must be "willing to rethink exactly what we're going to do in 1990 if we're going to have a successful year" when 34 Senate seats, 36 governorships and all 435 House seats are on the ballot.

Sen. Bob Packwood of Oregon, a liberal Republican with a strong pro-choice voting record, said, "If we go in 1990 and abortion is the issue ... we will lose on that issue."

Abortion rights groups read the returns the same way.

"This morning's election results are a wake-up call for George Bush," an opponent of abortion, said Kate Michelman, executive director of the National Abortion Rights Action League. "To politicians everywhere, we say with conviction: If you're out of touch with the pro-choice majority, you're out of office."

Tuesday's elections were the first widespread voting since the Supreme Court's ruling last summer permitting states to impose restrictions on women seeking abortions. The topic became an issue in all three of the closely watched races, and Democrats put their anti-abortion rivals on the defensive in each of them.

"There's no way for the Republican Party to find any silver lining at all in what happened yesterday," said Democratic National Chairman Ron Brown.

"No time in my lifetime do I ever remember waking up the morning after an election where one party had won everything, all over the country."

"The Democrats are on a roll," said Rep. Beryl Anthony of Arkansas, the chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee.

"We have recruited better candidates. Our candidates have better mainstream messages. And the voters are responding."

Coleman called a news conference to announce that if the official tally in Virginia shows the candidates separated by less than one half of one percent — a certainty based on unofficial figures — "it is my intention to ask for a recount."

Wilder said at his own news conference that he was confident of the outcome. "The mandate is that in Virginia we are prepared to move and we don't care what that person looks like," he said.

Returns from 99 percent of the precincts in New York gave Dinkins 50 percent of the vote and 48 percent to Republican Rudolph Giuliani.

In New Jersey, Florio had 61 percent of the vote compared to 37 percent for Rep. James Courter with 98 percent of the precincts tallied.

While the national attention was riveted to Virginia, New York and New Jersey, much of Tuesday's action was in the nation's cities.

Coleman Young, 71, won an unprecedented fifth term as mayor of Detroit, defeating 40-year-old Tom Barrow for the second time.

Houston Mayor Kathy Whitmire won her fourth term and Miami Mayor Xavier Suarez, his third.

Abortion issue transformed to Democratic advantage

From Associated Press reports

WASHINGTON — Abortion, the issue that once had Democrats on the run, emerged as a decisive factor in Democratic victories following a political turnabout that Republicans couldn't foresee a few months ago.

"I think the abortion issue helped me considerably," Douglas Wilder said after claiming victory in his bid for governor of Virginia and the nation's first elected black governor.

Republican National Chairman Lee Atwater conceded the issue "made a difference."

Opponents of abortion acknowledged Wednesday that Democrats had skillfully turned the issue to their advantage and succeeded in framing the issue in their own terms in the public debate.

Krenz continues reform efforts

BERLIN — Communist Party chief Egon Krenz on Wednesday ousted the old guard from the ruling Politburo and replaced them with reformers in a desperate move to quell widespread unrest and strengthen his 3-week-old leadership. Thousands of East Germans disillusioned by 40 years of communist rule and skeptical of promised reforms continued to flee from their homeland, with more than 50,000 reaching the West since Saturday.

Krenz also indicated that independent, non-communist groups would be allowed a greater role in society, and provincial authorities began to legally register New Forum, the largest pro-democracy group.

Murderer's trail grown cold
BOSTON — At the corner of

News in Brief

Huntington Avenue and Francis Street in Mission Hill, near where a pregnant woman was abducted and shot to death, there are now few signs of the murder that outraged the city.

In the hours that followed the shooting of Carol Stuart and her husband, Charles, police fanned out over the inner-city neighborhood, questioning residents for leads. But the trail of the person who shot them two weeks ago as they left a child birth class seems to have grown cold.

Only one police car cruised by a package store Wednesday. A group of teenagers lounged on the steps of Fermoye Drugs, across from their intersection where it is believed the woman and her husband were first confronted.

Bakker denied probation

RICHMOND, Va. — A federal appeals court today refused to free TV evangelist Jim Bakker on bail, while he appeals his 45-year prison sentence.

A three-judge panel of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld a judge's finding that Bakker should remain jailed because he might flee.

The court said it found no reason to reject prosecution evidence that many of Bakker's followers are prepared to "do anything for him."

The court also said Bakker had shown little grounds for a successful appeal.

The 47-year-old preacher was convicted Oct. 5 in Charlotte on 24 charges of fraud and conspiracy for cheating his followers.

McKinley

Chancellor James Cansler for a third option in ruling on the appeal, but he had refused to give one.

"My hope is that they'll drop the charges," McKinley said. "This has gone on for too long. I don't see any need to pursue this any further. Why don't we just let it rest?" Any decision to overturn the student court conviction would have to come from Harrell, he added.

The Hearings Board ruled in McKinley's favor without deliberating on the second point of his appeal, severity of sentence. "By allowing this sanction (a teaching ban) to be implemented," McKinley wrote in his appeal, "I will be deprived of 80 to 90 percent of my income, which is not much to begin with. Given the fact that financial aid is not restricted by this sanction there seems no logical reason to deprive me of my financial means of existence."

McKinley also called for the resignation of BOT member John Pope, who initiated the resolution condemning the protesters.
