MAGICAL

THE NUTCRACKER: A PLAY
adapted by Karl Joos from the stories of
E.T.A. Hoffman

One of the greatest 19th-century fairy tales comes to the stage in a magical theater adaptation — not the ballet, but a new holiday event for the whole family.

November 29 - December 23

Co-Produced by Wachovia Personal Trust Group

INCREDIBLE STUDENT PASS AVAILABLE. With the Incredible Student Pass you can see The Nutcracker: A Play, plus three other great plays: Love's Labour's Lost by William Shakespeare, True West by Sam Shepard, and The Rivals by Richard Brinsley Sheridan. All for only $30! Or you can see the last three productions for only $25. Just show your student I.D. at the Paul Green Theater Box Office to buy your Student Pass. (Limit two per I.D.)

4 For better or for worse?

Can a team survive losing its three best players to the NBA? The Tar Heels will try to do just that on the strength of their powerful front line.

By DAVE GLENN

13 How 'bout them Hoyas?

Alonzo Mourning leads Georgetown on a hike to Denver, where they'll find Illinois, LSU and UCLA. North Carolina is picked ninth.

16 The Rock

After the hype, after the problems, after the injuries, Kevin Madden has finally become the cornerstone of a Tar Heel team.

By ANDREW PODOLSKY

17 The Hard Place

After overcoming tragedy and inconsistency, Scott Williams hopes his added strength can put opponents in a tight spot.

18 Rick looks to out-Fox the competition

After showing glimpses of stardom last year, Rick Fox hopes to use his versatility to explode on the wild world of college hoops.

By JAMIE ROSENBERG

19 Where's the beef?

It's in the North Carolina frontcourt, where a bulked up Pete Chilcutt hopes to make good use of his increased playing time in Dean Smith's 1989 rotation.

By NEIL AMATO

24 The best from top to bottom

Which conference has the most quality teams? Try the Big East, followed by the ACC and the Big Ten.

By DOUG HOOGERVORST

26 Will Magic make Michael disappear?

Don't bet on a repeat in the NBA. The Lakers return, but Jordan finally leads the Bulls to the promised land.
