The Daily Tar Heel CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

Bill

Boulton said the University began preparing annual crime reports about five years ago.

"We make our crime reports public because we want the people who are here to know, 'Look, it's the real world. Take care of yourself,'" he said.

"It's not the southern part of heaven here. There's a little hell, too."

John Swofford, athletic director, said a policy approved last year from the National Collegiate Athletic Association, which requires the reporting of graduation statistics, was needed.

"It's information that the public generally deserves to know, and parents," Swofford said.

"It's a plus for college athletics," he said. "It adds a degree of accountability to athletic programs that's appropriate."

The graduation rate for University athletes in recent years has topped more than 70 percent, Swofford said. Nationally, that rate is about 50 percent, he said.

The reporting could help the University's athletic programs, he said. "Compared with some other athletic programs, our University will look good in the eyes of recruits, and that will ultimately help us."

University statistics show that 76 percent of the students who entered the class of 1988 have graduated (using the benchmark 6-year graduation rate), compared with the national average of 43 percent for public universities and colleges.

Anthony Strickland, assistant director of undergraduate admissions, said it is not clear how much the plan would cost the University because the exact reporting requirements have not been spelled out.

"The motive of Senator Bradley is a good one, I'm sure," he said. "But when the bill passes, I'm sure he's not going to say, 'Here are the extra people and the extra postage to do this.'"

Although the University's graduation and crime rates have been public for several years, they have never been presented together in a systematic way, Strickland said.

"We have no qualms about giving this information out," he said.

The University receives about 50,000 requests for information each year, Strickland said. About 20,000 people apply to enroll as freshmen, transfer or readmitted students annually.

Incorporating the statistics into admissions materials would not be too difficult, he said.

SEAC

said. "It doesn't agree with the first amendment or the Constitution."

All universities should encourage a free flow of ideas and this policy is preventing UNC students from being exposed to new ideas, Dunaway said.

Baumann said SEAC wanted to continue canvassing on this and other issues because it is more effective than setting up tables. More than 90 percent of the students SEAC contacted through canvassing wrote letters, he said.

"Canvassing is an effective grassroots tool," he said. "People don't come by the (Pit) tables as much."

People are more likely to write letters if a SEAC member comes by their room with pen and paper in hand, he said.

Housing has not singled out SEAC, but student groups should have a right to canvass on a political level, he said.

Lisa Abbott, SEAC co-chairwoman, said Baumann and Dunaway will work with the housing department to get permission to canvass in the future.

"Canvassing is the most important avenue we have to educate people," she said. "It's the most important tool of the environmental movement."

SEAC meanwhile will canvass apartments, Abbott said.

Students' letters will be taken to the Chapel Hill Town Council Oct. 29 following an "alternative transportation march," in which people will ride bikes and big wheels, she said.

The $9.1 billion dollars in the highway trust fund could be better spent on education and energy conservation, Abbott said.

Low Tide

Calvin and Hobbes

Shoe

Doonesbury

THE Daily Crossword by Bernice Gordon

© 1990 Tribune Media Services, Inc.
All Rights Reserved

ACROSS
1 Sad word
5 Stallone role
10 Religious painting
14 Fiji port
15 Sky hunter
16 Pianist Peter
17 Certain star
19 Fr. town
20 Most austere
21 A gender
23 One of the Stooges
25 Romantic interlude
25 Mothers tenderly
29 Vehicles
32 Divert
33 Give — (aid)
34 Period
35 Beverage nut
36 Court paper
37 Make level
38 Addition to a house
39 Raft mover
40 Good reason
41 Winner in a race
43 Dell inhabitant
44 Monogram parts: abbr.

45 Dog
46 Romance language
48 Stopped
53 Finishes
54 Musical gamut
56 Pickling spice
57 Wipe clean
58 Wheel shaft
59 Sailing word
60 Took a chance
61 Stadium part

DOWN
1 Horned vipers
2 Entice
3 Tel —
4 Likewise
5 Western shows
6 Emerged
7 Building in Philadelphia
8 — voyage
9 Spottily
10 Slap in the face
11 Instrument
12 Shield border
13 Racehorse (1950 leading money winner)

18 Napoleon's Grande —
22 Islet: Eng.
24 More frigid
25 Used an oven
26 Soap plant
27 Instrument
28 "A rose —..."
29 More foxy
30 Stir
31 Pilot
33 Fr. city
36 Established
37 Road surface
40 Agony
42 Zoo items
43 Maroon
45 Mink-clad
46 Commonplace writing
46 Helen's mother
47 Blue dye
48 Slightly open
49 Beat it!
50 Vehicle for hire
51 Fr. fashion magazine
52 Roe or doe
55 Macaw