ODU wins field hockey struggle

Top-ranked women's soccer takes 2 in Omaha

Staff Reports
NORFOLK, Va. — Defending national champion Old Dominion held the North Carolina field hockey team to only two shots on goal Sunday as it defeated the Tar Heels 1-0 in a rematch of the last two national championship bouts.

The loss dropped the No. 7 Tar Heels to 6-3, while the top-ranked Lady Monarchs upped their mark to 8-0.

The game's only goal came off a Robin Smith penalty-corner shot with 21:34 remaining in the contest. Lady Monarchs Jill Reeve and Pam Neiss assisted on the play.

UNC goalkeeper Peggy Storror tallied four saves on the day as the Tar Heel defense held ODU to nine shots.

UNC has the week off before opening its ACC season next weekend against Maryland.

Women's soccer remains unbeaten

OMAHA, Neb. — The top-ranked North Carolina women's soccer team rolled again this weekend as the Tar Heels upended Creighton 9-1 Saturday and Wisconsin-Milwaukee 7-0 Sunday.

UNC, 9-0 on the season, was led by junior Tracy Donahue, who scored two goals Sunday, and freshman Tisha Venturini, who tallied three assists and one score against Milwaukee.

Creighton's score on Saturday marked only the second time this season that the Tar Heels have been scored on.

UNC's tennis best fall in tourney

WILMINGTON — Tar Heels Cinda Gurney and Roland Thornqvist both advanced to the third round of the ITCA National Clay Court Championships before falling to top-seeded Sunshine State foes Friday.

Gurney, UNC's No. 1 women's player, defeated South Florida's Kristi Bastian and Mississippi's Paloma Collantes in the first two rounds before falling to Florida's Andrea Farley 7-5, 1-6, 6-2.

Thornqvist, the top Tar Heel male, fell to South Florida's Patricio Arnold 6-3, 6-4 after rolling past Princeton's Greg Hartz in the first round and Mississippi State's Daniel Courcol in the second.

Both Farley and Arnold were No. 1 seeds in the tournament, which is one of college tennis' four Grand Slam events. Only three Tar Heel men and one UNC woman — Gurney — qualified for the tournament.

UNC's Woody Webb advanced to the second round before falling to Texas Christian's Tony Bujan 4-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Women's golf finishes third

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — The North Carolina women's golf team shot a 315 Sunday to finish third in the 14-team Lady Seminole Invitational, 27 strokes behind runaway winner Florida State.

North Carolina entered the day in second place, but Duke shot a 303 to gain 12 strokes on UNC and overtake the Tar Heels. Duke finished with a 909, and UNC carded a 920.

No one came close to FSU, however, as the host Seminoles placed four golfers in the top 10, including the first two individual finishers to finish at 893.

UNC's Meredith Quimby tied for eighth in individual play with a three-day 229. Teammate Kim Byham tallied a 230 to take 10th-place honors.

Other Tar Heel finishers were Debbie Doniger (231), Amber Marsh (232) and Mandy Kuhn (239).

Women's tennis opens season

RALEIGH — The UNC women's tennis team began its fall season last weekend at the NCSU Wolfpack Classic. The doubles team of Scotti Thomas and Nicole Transou placed third in flight C. In flight C singles, Freddy Uhllein finished third, compiling a 2-2 record in the tournament.

Defense

I heard the people screaming and I saw all the players coming at me.

"Every time I go to sleep I dream about something like that."

The 4-0 Wolfpack has lived something of a defensive dream in 1991. In 16 quarters, State has relinquished all of 10 points. The team has given up 74 yards rushing per game and 140 yards passing per contest. To cap it off, the turned the ball over three times on fumbles in the fourth quarter. The Tar Heels recovered the first in their own end zone, but grabbed the next two at State's 42- and 15-yard lines. The Wolfpack defense, one of the nation's top units, met the challenge.

"I really like the way our defense responded," Wolfpack head coach Dick Sheridan said. "In a game like this, all we had to do was hold onto the football and we win the game, but we turn it over — the most costly thing we could do. Defensively, we go out there with fire in our eyes and respond."

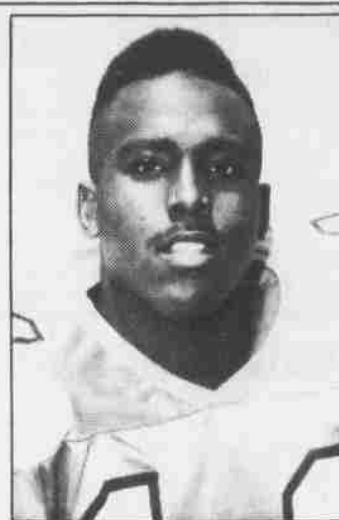

Sheridan, who had questions about his club's defense against the run, left Carter-Finley with all questions — probably even all prayers — answered.

"They were like the No. 1 defense in the nation coming in, and I think they played like it," Burnette said. "We thought in order to have a good game, we had to be as good running the ball as passing the ball. We didn't have that balance today."

Actually, the Tar Heels were pretty balanced offensively — they could not do anything right.

Against the pass, N.C. State's defense controlled the line of scrimmage, sacking Burnette five times and pressuring him on numerous other occasions. Against the run, the Wolfpack held the Tar Heels to a minuscule 33 yards on 37 carries, the seventh straight time N.C. State has held its opponent under the 100-yard mark. The Wolfpack accomplished all this despite the loss of leading tackler Billy Ray Haynes with an ankle injury in the first quarter.

Brown said the Tar Heels did their part to make the Wolfpack look good.

Chuckie Burnette

"I expected N.C. State to play good on defense," Brown said. "I was more disappointed in the way we played. I know we didn't respond the way I hoped in our running game. We didn't run it that well against Army last week, so it's probably more our problem than N.C. State's."

Refusing to place the offensive failure on Burnette's shoulders, Brown was concerned that no Tar Heel stood up and took control on offense.

"We didn't have many guys on offense that jumped up and took the challenge to go score," Brown said. "That's the thing you need. You need a guy who's going to go make a play, and we didn't do much of that today."

The Tar Heels did it once, putting from page 10

Wolfpack had intercepted 13 passes. After last season, the Wolfpack lost six defensive starters, four of whom were drafted by NFL teams.

"The talk was that the defense was going to be the weak spot because of inexperience," Thomas said. "We had to go out and show that inexperience doesn't mean that we're not going to be good."

"We took it upon ourselves this summer to work just as hard as we could. We were lifting every day, running every day. We did everything we could as players to get ready for the season."

But Savage said no matter how good State has played, a doubter has lurked.

"It seems that after every win, you find some critic out there saying, 'Well, that team wasn't good enough,'" Savage said. "Each time a critic complains, we're going to just go out there and play harder."

As State's star cornerback, Savage has been a cornerstone of the defense, in both on-the-field performance and on-the-field confidence.

"I'm going out there on the field thinking that I'm better than the receiver that's across from me," Savage said. "Sometimes it pays off to be just a little conceited, and not too much. I take it to the limit."

Savage said the State squad was out to earn some respect from UNC.

"Carolina's the type of school, they talk, they disrespect N.C. State," he said. "We're the type of team that respects everybody, because you've got to be a great football team to play in this conference. We just want to earn a little more respect."

"North Carolina's just that other team that we had to beat. People here always tell us, 'We don't care what you do for the whole season, just beat those Tar Heels.' In a way, that got into me."

"When I saw that Carolina blue, that adrenaline was really flowing today." And so it was for the rest of the Savage State defense, bleeding Wolfpack red.

together a 10-play, 57-yard drive in the third quarter to score the first touchdown against the Wolfpack in 18 regular-season quarters. On a third-down play from the NCSU 7, Burnette rolled left and hit Jauch in the front corner of the end zone for the touchdown.

On the other side of the ball, the UNC defense continued to show the effects of missing linebacker Dwight Hollier, who had recorded three straight games of double-figure tackles against the Wolfpack. In addition to an already bruised defense, Tommy Thigpen was immobilized and carried off the field at the start of the fourth quarter. The junior linebacker stretched a nerve in his shoulder and may miss up to two weeks.

"I was really concerned about our defense coming into the game because they hadn't practiced," Brown said. "Six or eight guys didn't practice all week, and you're not going to play very well when that happens. That's not the same defense we had in spring practice."

The main beneficiary of the lackluster Tar Heel defense was reserve Wolfpack quarterback Geoff Bender. UNC might have grabbed the momentum on the first play of the second quarter when an Austin Robbins hit broke the arm of State starter Terry Jordan. But clutch relief play by Bender kept the Wolfpack in control.

After two running plays, Bender faced third and 4 at the UNC 26. The redshirt freshman picked up the blitz, changed the play to isolate flanker Eddie Goines on UNC cornerback Sean Crocker, and floated a perfect pass to Goines on a deep post for a 10-0 State lead.
