Men's soccer battles Terps at home Sunday

North Carolina's seventh-ranked men's soccer team, 9-2-1 after victories over Winthrop and Duke, faces Atlantic Coast Conference rival Maryland Sunday at 2 p.m. on Fetzer Field.

Maryland has won five of the last six games with UNC and leads the all-time series 27-14-2. The Terrapins have struggled so far this season, with a 1-5-3 record and an 0-2-1 ACC mark.

Maryland, which tied No. 3 Wake Forest, features a balanced attack as nine different Terps have scored once. Goalkeeper Carmine Isaaco boasts a 1.50 goals against average.

Volleyball squad hosts Redbirds, Seminoles

UNC's struggling volleyball team returns home this weekend for games with Illinois State and Florida State, the ACC's newest member. The Tar Heels (8-10, 0-1 in the ACC) have lost nine of their last 13, and the competition is not getting any easier.

Illinois State (8-6), which has won 20 or more games each of the last three seasons, is led by senior outside hitter Lisa Rolf. UNC takes on the Redbirds tonight at 7:30 in Carmichael Auditorium.

Florida State (10-3) is 1-0 in the conference after defeating Virginia. The Seminoles invade for a 6 p.m. contest Saturday in Carmichael. FSU has a 9-1 edge in the all-time series with UNC.

Men's golfers hit road in Nicklaus Invitational

UNC's men's golf team, last season's NCAA runnerup, will travel to Dublin, Ohio, for the Jack Nicklaus Collegiate Invitational Saturday through Monday. The tournament, held at the Muirfield Village Golf Club, will use a modified match-play system.

Women's soccer travels north to face Patriots

North Carolina's top-ranked women's soccer team (12-0, 2-0 in the ACC) will take on No. 13 George Mason in Fort Belvoir, Va., Sunday.

UNC leads 11-1-2 in the series with GMU and has won the last six meetings. George Mason defeated the Tar Heels in the 1985 NCAA final.

Men's tennis sends 3 to Southern Collegiate

Seniors Bryan Jones and Chris Mumford and junior Sean Steinhour will compete for 19th-ranked UNC today through Sunday in the Southern Collegiate Championships in Athens, Ga.

All three players will play singles and two of the three will compete in doubles, although UNC head coach Allen Morris hasn't determined which two will play.

Lookin' out for No. 1: UNC tackles Monarchs

Round two begins this weekend in Chapel Hill as the No. 6 North Carolina field hockey team attempts to avenge a 1-0 loss to No. 1 Old Dominion two weeks ago.

The match will take place Sunday at 2 p.m. on Navy Field.

UNC is coming off a two-game road trip, which resulted in a 4-0 loss to Maryland Sunday and a 3-1 win over William & Mary Monday.

Head coach Karen Shelton said her team was glad to be back home.

"We're looking forward to spending some time in Chapel Hill and playing in front of our fans," she said.

Home should indeed be a welcome sight for the 7-4 Tar Heels. All of the team's losses have come on the road.

The archrival Monarchs enter with a perfect 11-0 record. ODU leads the series with UNC 15-12 since 1978, but UNC is the only team to have beaten the Monarchs in the last three years.

Shelton had praise for the Monarchs. "ODU is very talented," she said. "They are unquestionably the strongest team in the country."

Despite UNC's Sept. 29 loss to ODU, Shelton was still pleased with her team's effort.

"Even though we lost, we felt we played tough and strong," she said. "We are the only team to hold them under three goals this season."

In fact, the Tar Heel defense held the Monarchs to only nine shots in the first contest. The UNC offense tallied four penalty corners, only one less than Old Dominion's five.

Shelton would like to see another low-scoring game. "We're hoping for another close one," she said.

UNC's chances could be hurt by two key injuries. Senior midfielder Nancy Lang is still hobbled by a foot injury suffered in the first Old Dominion match. Freshman Barbara Hansen may also be sidelined.

Despite the injuries, Shelton maintained her optimism. "Even if they are out, I'm confident with who we have," she said.

No. 1 women's soccer struggles to defeat black-and-Blue Devils

By Jason Bates

Hey Duke! Have I got a deal for you. Whatta ya' say you come play the North Carolina women's soccer team a friendly little game in Chapel Hill? After all, it's only a 12-mile trip. But just to make it more interesting — you have to play without four of your starters.

No problem.

Nobody gave the Blue Devils a chance at all, but behind the play of sophomore keeper Gretchen Young, Duke dropped a close ACC match, 3-1, to the Tar Heels.

No. 1 UNC improved its record to 12-0, 2-0 in the ACC. The hobbled Blue Devils lost their fourth straight match and fell to 6-6-1, 0-2-1 in the ACC.

The game had all the makings of a bloodbath. Duke had a serious case of the injury bug going around. Four starters, including the team's leading scorer, were unavailable.

Only four minutes into the match,

UNC junior Kristine Lilly had a one-on-one against Young, but the Duke keeper won. She stopped another Lilly solo run 10 minutes later, and the tone of the match was set.

Young was able to almost single-handedly hold the Tar Heels off, as she recorded 13 saves.

But UNC's relentless pressure and a few Duke mistakes were just too much.

"To get three goals past her was a tremendous accomplishment in light of how well she was playing," said UNC head coach Anson Dorrance. "She was outstanding. She played well from beginning to end and basically made a great game of it."

Sophomore Paige Coley put the Tar Heels on the board at the 31:23 mark in the first half after swiping a pass from a Blue Devil fullback.

Seven minutes later, freshman Tisha Venturini set up Lilly with a cross pass. The resulting header rebounded off the crossbar onto the feet of UNC's Angela Kelly, who blasted it home from near-point-blank range.

The Tar Heels opened the second half playing without Lilly. They continued to dominate play but couldn't tack on an insurance goal.

It was Duke who punched in a goal, the first scored on the Tar Heels at home this season, with 22 minutes left in the game, cutting the score to 2-1.

Lilly returned five minutes later, and any Blue Devil hopes were extinguished.

With five minutes to go, Lilly set up Venturini for the final goal of the game.

Duke may not have won the game, but the squad certainly won a measure of respect from the Tar Heels, who may face a healthy Blue Devil squad in the ACC tournament.

"They played with their hearts," Dorrance said. "I credit them because I thought they played an outstanding game. They played with intensity. They never gave up. (Head coach Bill) Hempen and his athletes deserve a helluva lot of credit for today's performance."
