Bonds from page 3

he said. "In this case, the hospital board decided how much to borrow and made a proposal to a group of underwriters who offered the money."
 Every lender gets a form of document, or bond, which specifies the rate at which the borrower will repay the debt, the time in which the borrower will repay the debt and other specifics of the loan, Tuchi said.
 "Under most circumstances, an individual will borrow directly from a lender," he said.
 "When you borrow money tax free and in large volume, you can't deal directly with a lender."
 The University hires an investment banker who serves as an intermediary to find lenders, he said.

The bond is paid back by the University in various ways, depending on what the project is, Tuchi said.
 Bonds that financed the student recreation center will be paid back with student fees, he said.
 Bonds that paid for the Kenan-Flagler School of Business will be paid back by private donations.
 "None are paid back by out-of-state appropriations," he said.
 All UNC projects currently are funded by bonds.
 The state has not provided appropriations to finance projects for the School of Social Work, the School of Dentistry or the other schools of the University that require additional funding, Tuchi said.

"The way in which the state has provided money in the last few years, there haven't been enough appropriations to finance our projects," he said.
 Gordon Rutherford, director of facilities planning and design, said selling bonds to finance projects was not a new policy.
 "The things that we sell bonds for the state never has supported," he said.
 The revenue from the sale of the bonds determines whether the University will be able to construct new projects, Rutherford said.
 "The student rec center would never have seen the light of day if we weren't willing to support student fees which provided source revenue for bonds," he said.

Dahmer enters plea of insanity

The Associated Press
MILWAUKEE—Jeffrey L. Dahmer pleaded guilty but insane to 15 slayings Monday, six months after he admitted killing and dismembering 17 young men, having sex with corpses and saving one victim's heart to eat.
 If found insane, Dahmer could be sentenced to a mental institution where, after a year of treatment, he could petition for release every six months.
 "His plea is horrible," said Shirley Hughes, mother of victim Anthony Hughes. "It's driving me mad. He's not insane."
 However, defense attorney Gerald Boyle and District Attorney E. Michael McCann said the chances are slim that Dahmer ever would be released, even if found insane at a trial later this month.

"I don't think anybody needs to be alarmed by this," Boyle said.
 "Anyone who thinks that a person sentenced to a mental institution gets out in six months or a year or a year and a half should go about the business of doing some research," he said.
 "It is extremely difficult ... to get out, especially when it was a violent crime that has taken place."
 Dahmer, 31, pleaded guilty to two counts of first degree murder and 13 counts of first degree intentional homicide. The charges are different because the killings occurred while different laws were in effect.

Prosecutors say Dahmer admitted he drugged and strangled 17 men, had sex with some of the corpses, dismembered them, took photographs of their bodies in various stages of mutilation and boiled some of their skulls to clean them.
 He was charged here with only 15 counts because the first slaying took place in Dahmer's hometown of Bath, Ohio, in 1978, and prosecutors said there wasn't enough evidence on one slaying Dahmer claimed in the Milwaukee area. He has been charged in Ohio and will stand trial there after his sentencing in Wisconsin.

"Ultimately the final decision is David's because he's the athlete who has to compete," Comfort said, "and if he wants to go this way, I'm really excited."
 "It gets me excited just sitting here talking about it, to have someone who's that elite that can do it."
 As a freshman, Monasterio set a school record in the 500 freestyle with a time of 4:25.41. He captured the ACC title in the 200 butterfly and competed at the NCAAs for UNC in three individual events and two relays.
 Monasterio cannot point to a single event and label it as his best or his favorite. Whenever he designates one as his best event, he winds up doing better in the other ones because there is not as much pressure placed on those events.

 "I think this year I'm going to concentrate on the 200 fly just because it may be better for me internationally later," Monasterio said. "But I still have a lot of fun with my 200 and 500 freestyles."
 As a junior and a co-captain, Monasterio supposedly has a leadership role on the men's team. He does not consider himself to be much of a leader, however.
 "I'm a captain and all, but I think I might have been voted captain just because I can swim fast," Monasterio said. "I hope I can lead the team by example and maybe motivate them to swim fast. I don't think I have many leadership qualities. I don't give the halftime speeches."

Old Mill Rd., also said she felt widening the bypass necessary.
 "I'm sure that it is needed from the amount of traffic here," she said.
 "Yes, we've been inconvenienced, but there's always an inconvenience in life."
 But Mary Lou Hendrick of 758 Old Mill Rd. disagreed with her neighbors about the construction.
 "I think they should have put (the bypass) out around the town," she said.
