Brown added to N.C. Democratic primary

The Associated Press

RALEIGH - The state elections board has added Jerry Brown to the ballot for the Democratic presidential primary after a protest from the former California governor.

"He contacted us and wanted to know why he hadn't been nominated," State Elections Director Alex Brock said.

Brown was not among the names listed last week after the Feb. 4 deadline for qualification. Brock said Brown had not asked to be on the ballot. But Brown's campaign said it never received the necessary form to make the request. Brock said the form apparently went to the wrong address. "His attorneys contacted us the next morning after the board nominated candidates and stated that he had never received our notice, and so the board reconsidered," Brock said. North Carolina requires candidates who want to be on the ballot to state that "It is principally to keep candidates who don't want to have their name on our ballot from appearing," Brock said. We don't just arbitrarily put someone on the ballot just because we hear they're running for president." Brock said his office sent the form to Brown's residence in Sacramento, Calif., instead of the campaign's headquarters in Alexandria, Va. The letter was sent twice, he said. "I had not heard from Mr. Brown, and so we sent him another letter about a week before (the deadline)," he said.

The California address was the one Brown registered with the Federal Elections Commission, Brock said.

"My understanding is that was indeed a mistake," said Kevin Connor, Brown's deputy campaign manager in Manchester, N.H. "My understanding was that materials on the part of the state were mailed to an incorrect mailing address."

Brown's campaign declined further

To qualify for the ballot, a candidate must either have raised enough money to receive federal matching funds or have submitted a petition signed by 10,000 registered voters in the candidate's party.

poor sales and financial mismanagement have caused the yearbook to hit hard times, Franzese said. The money from Student Congress is a small, but important, part of the Yack's budget because it provides starter funds for the book, Franzese said. The Yackety Yack asked for $9,269. The yearbook eventually wants to become autonomous from student fees, Grissom said the Toronto Exchange, an exchange program which sends students to Canada, also would go under fire at the hearings because it did not reach the entire student body. While congress will cut some funds from all organizations, some will bear the brunt of the cuts, he said. "My fear est budget presented - the CGLA." The Carolina Gay and Lesbian Association has had the most professional.
