World Briefs

Red Cross workers killed in Somalia

MOGADISHU, Somalia—The Red Cross said Tuesday that 11 of its workers were killed in Somalia and warned that huge international food aid shipments to the starving country must be better coordinated or violence could worsen.

The United States plans to start airlifting food into the Horn of Africa nation this week, and Germany began its own airlift Tuesday.

As many as 2 million people are estimated to be in imminent danger of dying from starvation. Aid programs so far have been undermined by widespread looting in the lawless country.

"Somalia still remains an extremely dangerous and volatile place and large quantities of food swamping the country in an uncontrolled fashion could quite easily spark off new security problems," the Red Cross said Tuesday.

The International Committee of the Red Cross said 11 employees were killed last Wednesday as the Red Cross was trying to transfer them and their families out of the city of Kismayu.

Once the U.S. airlift begins, Red Cross workers likely will handle the distribution of food in Somalia, U.S. officials have said.

The Red Cross, however, says that if that is to be the arrangement, the planes cannot have U.S. markings or carry weapons.

Since the overthrow of dictator Mohamed Siad Barre in January 1991, law and order has been replaced by clan warfare. Barre had fueled clan divisions by carrying out purges of clans opposing his regime.

On Aug. 16, dozens of gunmen hijacked hundreds of metric tons of food and fuel being delivered by the U.N. World Food Program to Kismayu.

U.S. to issue Iraqis air strike ultimatum

WASHINGTON — Despite warnings from Baghdad, the United States and its allies are ready to present Iraq with an ultimatum: Stop air strikes against dissident Shiites within 24 hours or risk of being shot from the skies.

The declaration is due to be delivered on Wednesday to the Iraqi mission at the United Nations in New York and will be explained by President Bush in a statement, administration officials said on Tuesday.

In Chicago, Bush said the allies, through the economic embargo and U.N. inspections, were "putting the lid on Saddam. And believe me, he is going to live up to each and every one of those U.N. resolutions. I am determined to see that, and I will."
