Dr. Knox Writes Health Officer About Paralysis

Going to Camp Not Forbidden, but There Is Risk in All Children's Gatherings

NO CASE YET IN ORANGE

A letter about infantile paralysis, received by Health Officer Nathan from Dr. J. C. Knox of the State Board of Health, indicates that there will be no restrictions, either compulsory or advisory, upon the attendance at summer camps of boys and girls living in Chapel Hill.

It is not regarded as prudent for young people to go to camp from localities where the disease has been prevalent. No case of infantile paralysis has yet occurred in this county.

"Camps in western North Carolina have much money invested in equipment," writes Dr. Knox, "and they are rather reluctant to close their camps, but would like to restrict their membership to campers who come from sections in which poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) is not prevalent. This is possibly all right, yet there is potential danger in any gathering at the present time, especially of youngsters of the susceptible ages throughout the state.

"There is an unusual prevalence of poliomyelitis throughout the state; however most of it is in eastern North Carolina. Our knowledge of this disease leads us to believe that there is a possibility of there being a greater number of cases during the months of June and July, probably the peak of incidence being reached in the first two weeks of August. If this disease should follow the expected course we are due to have cases in numbers sufficient to comprise an epidemic.

"Since these cases have begun to increase, the State Board of

Creech Sails on Normandie

Walter Creech sailed on the French liner Normandie, the new Queen of the Seas, last Friday. Because his passport had not arrived he thought he could not make the connection in New York. But as he was walking up the street Thursday he met the postman, and the postman said: "Here's a registered letter for you from Washington." It was the passport, and Mr. Creech caught a train from Greensboro that night.

Dr. Hooker Injured in Fall

Dr. Hooker's hip was injured when he had a fall in his home one day this week. He is in Watts hospital.

The Engineering School to Move to Raleigh

The University trustees voted 58 to 11, at their meeting here Tuesday, to accept President Graham's recommendation that the engineering schools in Chapel Hill and Raleigh be consolidated into one school at the State College in Raleigh. It will take three years to complete the consolidation. There will be no new registration in the school here, but students who began their course as freshmen last fall will complete it in Chapel Hill.

The seven principal points in President Graham's report on University consolidation are:

Dr. Mangum Tells of Health Service Proposed for Three-County District

At the request of the editor Dr. Mangum has written this article about the public health service proposed for a district made up of Orange, Person, and Caswell counties. The offer of the Government to bear a large share of the cost of the enterprise presents a remarkable opportunity for the three counties to obtain, for a small expenditure on their part, a service conducted by highly trained experts in accord with the latest approved ideas in the science of preventive medicine.

By Dr. Charles S. Mangum

During the fall quarter of 1934 the school of public administration of the University, in cooperation with the school of medicine, the school of engineering and the staff of the North Carolina State Board of Health, conducted a twelve-week course in the field of public health administration. Physicians who were already connected with public health work in the state and others who were planning to undertake this work were attracted, and registered for the course. This initial effort to render assistance in this important field succeeded far beyond expectations and won the approval and the support of not only the North Carolina Board of Health but the United States Public Health Service as well.

Because of the demand for such a course it was decided to repeat it during the winter quarter, during which term the work was taken, not only by North Carolina physicians, but by others who were directed here by the public health departments of other states. The United States Public Health Service was desirous of having the course given the third time, during the spring quarter, but since the length of the course would necessitate its being continued beyond the scholastic year of the University, and because of our inability to arrange for certain instruction

Tennessee Valley Film

Electrification Project Will Be Pictured Here Next Week

A moving and sound picture of the great Tennessee Valley electrification project—free to all comers—will be put on from 5 to 5:50 o'clock next Wednesday afternoon at the Carolina theatre. It will include music by the United States Marine Band.

When the paper went to press the Tennessee Valley Authority had not named the exact day when the picture would be sent here. This information may be obtained by inquiry at the theatre.

The 48-minute film will show the construction of the Norris dam, the Muscle Shoals development, the bridging and diversion of streams, soil erosion work, the housing program, and views of mountains and forests and rivers and farms and cities.

At the request of L. M. Brooks and R. P. Vance the Authority agreed to send the picture here, and it is to be put on at the Carolina through the courtesy of Manager E. C. Smith.

Mrs. Summerlin in Mexico

Mrs. Irl Summerlin, accompanied by her children, Sara and Sammy, has gone to Mexico to visit her sister. Her address is Zitacuaro, Michoacan, Mexico. Mr. Summerlin will live in Durham this summer. The house has been let to M. B. Fowler of Durham. When Mr. Fowler leaves in the fall, it will be taken by Mrs. Frank Miller.

Pritchard Gets Ph.D. and Job

W. N. Pritchard, Jr., formerly of Chapel Hill, a graduate of the University in the class of 1918 and an M.A. of the University of Alabama, received his Ph.D. in chemistry from Purdue University this week. He has been appointed chief chemist of the Pigment and Chemical Company of Collinsville, Illinois.

Have Bought Out O'Kelly

Jack Sparrow and Alex Koonce have bought out the O'Kelly Tailoring Company and will operate it, under the name of Sparrow and Koonce, as an up-to-date cleaning, pressing, and repairing establishment. O'Kelly and his wife will continue to work there.

Chapel Hill Chaff

Walking down the street on Commencement day I was hailed from a car. It was my old friend, Dr. Eben Alexander, now of Knoxville, Tennessee, with his wife and Eben, Jr. They took me aboard and we rode around the village for a few minutes.

"Are you drinking any highballs these days?" I asked the doctor, knowing him to be an ardent teetotaler.

"No," he replied firmly, "and I wish I could persuade you never to drink another one."

I made some allusion to the fact that in his youth he had been a rollicking blade, but he evinced no keen desire to reminisce about that.

"What are you now, an elder or a deacon?" I asked.

"Now, if I told you, you wouldn't know the difference between 'em," so he didn't tell me.

"How are the cock-fights getting along?" I asked.

His solemn mien was suddenly abandoned. He smiled broadly, and in his eyes was a glitter such as you see when you mention ice cream to a child.

"I've got three game chickens that are the pink of the cock-fighting aristocracy of Tennessee," he said. "I have had a lot more, but I've given away about twenty-five this year."

"Whenever I hear a broken-down, rickety old Ford rattling into the yard," put in Mrs. Alexander, "I know it is some farmer coming with another gamecock."

I inquired which was more seemly in a deacon (or elder), drinking highballs or cock-fighting, but we never did settle that.

$65 Prize Tonight

Holder of Lucky Number to Get Accumulation of Other Weeks

The cash prize this (Friday) evening at the Carolina theatre will be $65. It has mounted to this figure because in the last three weeks the holder of the lucky number was not at the theatre when the drawing was made.

Hitherto the weekly prize has been $15, but now it has been raised to $20. So, for this evening $20 is added to the accumulated and unclaimed $45.

The old registration has been canceled, and a new registration is now in progress. Anybody may get a number by asking for it at the theatre.

Mrs. R. H. Sherrill was the person who lost $45 by not being present when her number was announced last week.

The drawing takes place at about 9 o'clock every Friday evening. To get the money the holder of the lucky number must have bought that day a theatre ticket (which, however, may be used on any later day) and must be, if not in the theatre, within sound of a call from the door.

Francis Speight's Exhibit

Francis Speight will have 20 paintings on exhibit in the Hill Music hall from June 25 to July 15. Mr. Speight is conducting a class in landscape and portrait painting during the first term of the summer session.

The Bull's Head Hours

The Bull's Head Bookshop, managed by Miss Elizabeth Johnson, will be open at the following hours this summer: morning, 8:30 to 1; afternoon, 3:30 to 5:30; night, 7 to 9.

Summer Session Classes Begin Today, with Large Enrollment

Chapel Hillians Who Are Going to Europe

Miss Mary Thornton and Mrs. A. W. Hobbs set out yesterday for Norfolk and will sail from there today on the City of Hamburg. During most of their time in Europe they will be in Grenoble, France.

They found out day before yesterday that the Holbrooks and Miss Johnnie Bason were to be on the same boat. Miss Johnnie is helping take care of the Holbrook baby. She will visit the home of her mother's ancestors near Strassburg.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Coker and John Couch are to sail toward the end of August, to attend the International Botany Congress in Amsterdam. They will return in time for the opening of the University in mid-September. Mr. Coker and Mr. Couch are the Southern scientists who have been asked to read papers at the Congress.

The Bus Line Argument

It Is at Last in Progress in Raleigh after Many Postponements

The lawyers' argument before the State Utilities Commission in Raleigh, on the Greyhound Lines' application for a franchise to operate busses between Greensboro and Raleigh by way of Chapel Hill, is at last in progress. It began yesterday and will continue today.

The interest of the people here, in the proposal, seems to have been largely dissipated by the repeated postponements of the hearing.

The Carolina Coach Company, which operates the bus line between here and Durham, is bitterly opposing the Greyhound application. It says that the new service is not seriously needed and that the Carolina Company would be ruined by the competition. Civic bodies in Durham are also in opposition because they do not want to see traffic taken away from that city.

Unusual Student House

To Be Erected This Summer on the West Edge of the Campus

A house different from any structure that Chapel Hill has ever known is about to rise on a lot on the west edge of the University campus back of Swain hall and just across the way from the Graduate Club. It is to be a dormitory, or, rather, a sort of club, in which only five students are to be quartered: a freshman and a sophomore, a junior, a senior, and a graduate student.

The owner is the Atlantic Corporation of Charleston, S. C. Who the individuals are who compose this corporation has not been disclosed.

The plans show a one-story building facing the campus. There are a lounge, a reception room, a big sleeping porch; and five little rooms that are called loges. Each of these is for one of the five students. Toward the north (that is, toward the main street) is a courtyard. The Charleston influence is shown here by an enclosing wall of the serpentine type.

Brodie Thompson, who has the contract, says the building will be finished by September. It will be fireproof throughout.

Wines Are Being Sold in Chapel Hill

Wines are being sold openly, and in considerable quantity, at the Carolina Coffee Shop in Chapel Hill. Bottles bearing the trademarks of well-known brands—French, Italian, Hungarian, and domestic—are displayed in the windows.

"We have nearly exhausted our supply," said George Livas, the proprietor yesterday, "but we will have another shipment coming in soon." Asked if any objection to the sale had been made by the authorities, Mr. Livas said no.

The last legislature legalized the sale of wine made in North Carolina but retained the prohibition against wine brought from other states. It has been

Director Knight Will Include As Many Regular Session Features As Possible

TERM WILL END JULY 24

With enrollment increased by 20 per cent over last year, classes in the first term of the summer session will begin at 8 o'clock this (Friday) morning. In a conservative estimate based on advance room reservations and other factors, Edgar W. Knight, director, said yesterday that he expected last summer's registration of 943 to be exceeded by about 300 or 400 students.

Indications are that enrollment at Raleigh and Greensboro will also be larger than last year.

As many regular session features as possible will be included in the two summer terms, although many extra-curricular activities cannot be maintained. Student government will be organized under the leadership of Francis Fairley. The Playmakers will present one performance either indoors or in the Forest Theatre. The combined Y. W. Y. M. C. A. will be active, conducting vesper services every evening from Monday through Friday, operating the self-help bureau, and planning and executing the social program of dances, picnics, hikes, etc.

Various special conferences and institutes have been provided for, including the state conference on adult education, July 17 and 18; the conference on art education, July 19; the special lecture course in instruction and administration in higher educational institutions throughout the first term; the eighth annual parent-teacher institute, August 19-23; and the 14th annual
