

Kiwanis Delegates Go to Charlotte

Six delegates, George Hellen, B. R. Strowd, W. M. Pugh, P. A. Reavis, J. P. Jones, and Allison Honeycutt, have gone to Charlotte to represent the Chapel Hill Kiwanis club at the 17th annual convention of the Carolinas Kiwanis district. Mrs. Honeycutt is also attending the convention.

Mr. Honeycutt, former district president, will take part in the program. Mr. Hellen is the president-elect of the Chapel Hill club, and Mr. Pugh is the secretary.

The convention, held at the Hotel Charlotte, is being attended by approximately 500 Kiwanians and their wives from North and South Carolina. It began yesterday and will continue through tomorrow morning. Kiwanis officials and prominent speakers and singers will be on the program.

Entertainment of the wives of the delegates is an important feature of the convention. They will be feted at a theatre party this afternoon and will conduct a Kiwanis luncheon of their own. They will discuss husband management, the preparation of meals, and other household problems. They will also have time for shopping expeditions and sight-seeing tours while their husbands are attending the regular business session.

Delegates and their wives were entertained together last night at an informal dance and yesterday afternoon with a golf tournament.

The most important events of the convention, the Governor's banquet and reception and ball, will be held tonight. No speeches will be made at the banquet. Instead, a musical extravaganza will be staged by Dorothy Baker, soprano; Maury Pearson, baritone; Peter Martin, xylophon player; Michael Wise's concert orchestra; the Charlotte male chorus, and several quartets.

Among the prominent men on the convention program are W. T. Laprade of Duke University, W. P. Jacobs of Clinton, S. C., J. Lathrop Morehead of Durham, James P. Gallagher of Newton, Mass., Kiwanis international trustee; James M. Lynch of Florence, S. C., past international vice-president; and Joseph P. Sevier of Hendersonville, district governor.

Mr. Jacobs, president of Presbyterian College, will speak this morning, and Mr. Gallagher will speak this afternoon at a fellowship luncheon. Mr. Morehead will conduct an open forum this afternoon, and Mr. Sevier, who is president of the Fassifern school, will preside over the various sessions of the convention. Mr. Laprade will speak tomorrow morning.

Reports from every part of the district will be heard at the business sessions. The election of district officers will also be held, and the next place of meeting will be decided upon.

Henderson Expounding To His Students

rise to a group of interesting, interrelated theorems. The writer has been so fortunate as to arrive at three different proofs of the generalized theorem in its first form; and proofs of all the other generalizations and the particular theorems immediately arising therefrom. In conclusion is given the writer's proof of the original problem by means of the elegant technic and discipline of projective geometry."

I became deeply concerned when talking to Mr. Henderson about this lecture, and my concern was presently expressed in this question: "What about the Carolina-Fordham game next day? Won't you run the risk of missing it?" "Not on your life," he replied. "I've figured out my schedule, and I can get here in time for the kick-off."

By nightfall tomorrow Mr. Henderson will have put the meeting in Knoxville behind him and will be prepared to lecture on "Some Intimate Interrelations of Elementary and Higher Football."—L.G.

Henderson Will Speak in Knoxville Today

Archibald Henderson will address the mathematics section of the East Tennessee Education Association this afternoon at Knoxville, Tenn. His topic will be "Some Intimate Interrelations of Elementary and the Higher Mathematics."

When I heard about this it seemed so exciting that I asked Mr. Henderson to give me in advance some passages from his manuscript.

One passage is: "It is a singular fact, full of a latent significance, that the elementary problem which furnished the starting point of the present research, should have baffled the best efforts of some famous mathematicians and given rise to a surprising number of inadequate and often grossly erroneous so-called solutions. Among the mathematicians, geometers, and physicists, of more or less eminence, who have attacked the problem may be mentioned Todhunter, Sylvester, Greenstreet, Lemoine, Maurice, Tarry, Lanvornay, Halsted, Birkhoff, and Hopkins.

"The writer's researches, the results of which are here presented, constitute the first basic study ever made of the geometrical problem and its many implications and repercussions in other branches of higher mathematics."

Another: "The original problem has been shown by the writer to be capable of wide generalization, and of statement in a variety of forms. These generalizations consequently give
