

School Plans Outlined

Supt. Honeycutt and Guy B. Phillips Talk of Programs at P.T.A. Meeting

About 125 parents attended the P. T. A. meeting at the high school last week and heard Superintendent A. W. Honeycutt outline his school program for the year.

Mr. Honeycutt announced that a revised individual report card, similar to the one used for the first three grades last year, would be used this year for the entire elementary school. The card contains a personality and proficiency analysis and is expected to encourage the pupil to compete with himself against his own record.

One of the school's chief objects this year will be to reduce the number of failures.

Mr. Honeycutt looks forward to the time when such activities as band, glee club, sports, hobby clubs, and health work, all of which are now considered extra-curricular, will be a part of the regular school program.

Guy B. Phillips, chairman of the program committee, said that in November, January, March, and April the organization would conduct two programs on the third Tuesday of the month, one for the elementary school, to be held in the afternoon, and one for the high school to be held at night. There will be general meetings in February and May.

At the November meetings Miss Ruth Hunter, principal of the elementary school, will tell of extra-curricular activities in grades below the seventh, and W. H. Shaw, principal of the Needham Broughton high school in Raleigh, will discuss extra-curricular activities in the high school.

Among the other speakers who will address the P. T. A. this year are Miss Ruth Fitzgerald of the Woman's College in Greensboro (topic, character training); Key L. Barclay, also of the Woman's College (emotional and social problems of the adolescent); Roben J. Maaske of the University (guidance in the elementary school); W. D. Perry of the University (common sense in guidance); Mrs. Fred Fletcher, recreational director (a recreational program for Chapel Hill children); and Miss Mary Coleman of the Woman's College (common sense in recreation).

Potts Leaves University

Ramsay Potts, campus leader and crack tennis player, resigned from the University this week and has gone to Greenville where he has a job with the Blount-Harvey Company. Potts said he was leaving the University because, when he had been asked: "Do you receive any financial aid in attending this institution from any other person than the one upon whom you are naturally dependent?", he had answered: "No." In resigning this week he said that at the time he answered the question he was receiving his tuition from an unrevealed source.

School Children See Films

Two films, "Living Places of Animals" and "Flowers at Work," were shown to the elementary school children at the chapel period yesterday. Mrs. P. H. Quinlan had charge of the meeting. Mrs. Totten gave an introductory talk.

The Old-Clothes Round-Up

The Community Club and King's Daughters wish to thank the people of Chapel Hill for their generous response to the Old Clothes Round-Up. Anyone who was overlooked and would like to make a donation should call Mrs. H. D. Crockford.

to maintain that Mrs. Lawson had much to do with Estelle's success, for Mrs. Lawson is known as an excellent swimmer and a beautiful dancer, and she is no ordinary golfer.

Archibald Henderson recalled Bob Lawson as "the best college baseball pitcher I have ever seen," and he got the evening's longest and loudest round of applause when he continued: "A year or so ago Mrs. Lawson was voted the most valuable citizen of Chapel Hill. I have always contributed to the causes she sponsored, not only because I knew them to be good causes but because I was scared not to."

Donald Ross, world famous builder of golf courses, told about Mrs. Page's visits to Pinehurst. "The championships she won there were just as important, as to the class of players she met, as the national championship," said Mr. Ross. "We all know what a splendid player Mrs. Page is, but I want to say a word to you about her sportsmanship and her general behavior on the links. She is always generous to her opponents, courteous to the caddies, and thoughtful of the people who conduct the tournaments. I have often said that if you can play two rounds of golf with a man or a woman, you can learn pretty well what their quality is. Mrs. Page has stood the test; she has proved herself a perfect lady in every respect."

On behalf of Durham, Mayor William F. Carr offered congratulations to the champion and to Chapel Hill. Victor Bryant spoke for the Hope Valley Club, John Heller for the Sedgefield Club of Greensboro, and William B. Umstead for the Congress of the United States.

The first speaker introduced by Mr. House was Mayor John M. Foushee. He told the company how proud Chapel Hill was of Mrs. Page and how happy the community was to make known its high esteem for her.

Governor Hoey, introduced by Mrs. Henderson, began his talk by confessing his total ignorance of golf. But, whether the field of action was the golf links or some other place, he delighted to honor the man or the woman who could do anything better than anybody else, and therefore he took pleasure in presenting the trophy cup to Mrs. Page on behalf of the people of Chapel Hill. The cup, of bronze and standing two and a half feet high, had been placed before the Governor while he was speaking, and as he ended he took it up and placed it before the champion. In a few graceful words Mrs. Page thanked her neighbors for their gift and for their expressions of friendship.

As the party broke up Mayor Foushee, Y. Z. Cannon, and Clarence Pickard were complimented from all sides for their success in arranging and managing the dinner.

Community Club Meets Nov. 5

The regular monthly meeting of the Community Club will be held at 3:30 next Friday, November 5, in the parish house. The program will be in charge of the education department. The department's work this year is centered in "The Youth Conservation Movement." Miss Ruth Current, state home demonstration agent, will discuss "Some Phases of the 4-H Club."

Rhodes Scholarship Applicants

The following students have been named by a faculty committee to represent the University in the state competition for a Rhodes scholarship: John B. Foreman, Lytt Gardner, W. P. Hudson, Robert N. Magill, and John McNeill Smith.

cars, reached the north sidewalk, and walked eastward to where Turrentine was standing with a group of friends in front of the restaurant next door to the barber shop.

Woods had his right hand in his trousers pocket. When he came within a few feet of Turrentine he pulled out a pistol, pointed it, and fired. The bullet tore through Turrentine's breast. As he was shot he was moving forward, apparently in the effort to grab the pistol in his assailant's hand. After a few moments' struggle Turrentine dropped to the ground, dead.

Woods dropped his pistol and fled. That night he gave himself up to the police. He told them that he has 19 years old and came from Greenville, S. C. His fingerprints were sent to the Bureau of Federal Investigation in Washington, and Chief Sloan awaits information as to whether he has a criminal record.

As was expected, Woods said that he would plead self-defense. The eye-witnesses, one of whom was questioned by the editor of this newspaper, says that there was no occasion for self-defense; that Turrentine made no attack on Woods or any hostile move against him before the shooting.

The witnesses of the tragedy and other negroes with whom the editor talked could see no shadow of justification for Woods's deed. They all spoke of Turrentine as a man of good character who was not contentious and behaved himself well.

In his year or more of service he had won the affection of the members of the printshop force. He used to go out and bring trays of drinks to them from the drugstores, and sandwiches from the restaurants, and he was ever on the alert to do whatever task fell to him. During lulls in the work the printers would talk to him about football and other topics. He came to have a place like that of the traditional "old family retainer," and news of his death cast a pall over the shop.

"I am going to charge Woods with first degree murder," said Prosecuting Attorney Roy McGinnis yesterday. "He went home and got his pistol, and came back and killed Turrentine. As I see it, the element of deliberation and intent to kill is plainly present in this case."

The Lynchings on Visit Here

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lynch of New York were here Sunday and Monday with President and Mrs. Frank Graham. They strolled about the campus and explored buildings old and new—the Library, the Playmakers Theatre, Person Hall, the Graham Memorial, the Gymnasium. While Mr. Lynch stopped in the South building to see old friends, Mrs. Lynch and Mrs. Graham went to Whitehall to see antique furniture, shining pewter, old glass, and fine linens. Mrs. Lynch writes under the name of Mildred Harrington. She has written many articles for the American and other magazines and for several years has been on the staff of the American.

Citizenship Dept. Meeting

The citizenship department of the Community Club will meet at 3:30 this (Friday) afternoon in the parish house. Mrs. F. W. Hanft will talk about the county budget and the county's functions. Then there will be a call meeting of the whole Community Club.

can't see the Tar Heels winning."

Of course the Carolina adherents do not look upon the affair with the cold eye of reason. Of course their emotions color their opinions. But it is not unnatural in them to say: "Well, the prophets got badly fooled twice—maybe they'll get fooled again." Anyway, going to and fro in Chapel Hill, you hear many persons not given to loose talk say they think Carolina has a good chance to win.

A cold-blooded gambler, with no loyalties to cloud his judgment, would almost surely prefer, if he had to lay an even bet, to risk his money on Fordham. And he might give some odds—but they would be narrow odds.

Both teams are expected to be at their top strength tomorrow. Art Ditt, the Carolina fullback, who was hurt in the N. Y. U. game, is ready for the fray again. Maronic, bruised in the Tulane game, has returned to action. Fordham's regular fullback of last season, John Lock, has recovered from his injuries and is ready to play for the first time this fall.

Shore-Beacham Marriage

John Sherman Shore and Miss Hazel May Beacham were married last Friday evening in the Presbyterian church. The bride was attended by her aunt, Miss May Wilson of Greensboro, as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Ford of Greensboro, Miss Murray McGowan of Shelby, Miss Mildred Steed of Candor, and Miss Eloise Gibbs of Columbia, N. C. Stuart Sechrist of Greensboro was best man.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Shore formerly attended the University. Mr. Shore was a member of the class of 1932 and Mrs. Shore of the class of 1936. Both of them are now on the staff of the Greensboro Daily News.
