

Parking Will Be Discussed In a Meeting At Town Hall

A public meeting of all property owners and businessmen interested in providing off-street parking in the East Franklin Street business district will be held at the Chapel Hill Town Hall next Wednesday night at 8 o'clock.

Rabbi Is Returning From New England

Rabbi E. M. Rosenzweig of Chapel Hill, director of the Hillel organization in North Carolina, and his wife and daughter Judy are returning this week from the island of Martha's Vineyard, Mass., where they have spent the summer.

While there Mr. Rosenzweig had an exhibit of his watercolors and drawings-in-copper at the gallery of the Vineyard Haven Art Guild. The exhibit drew much attention. Special interest was shown in the drawings-in-copper since the artist's technique with them is something he evolved himself and is quite new to work in this medium.

Mr. Rosenzweig also had an art display at the annual Island Fair, where he received two awards. He won a first prize for his painted decorations made of shells from the beaches of the island, and a third prize for a drawing-in-copper.

Judy Rosenzweig attended the island's School of Creative Arts and received its award in harp playing.

Miss McNeill Returns Miss Jane McNeill, daughter of Major and Mrs. Vinson McNeill of Lanark Road, has returned from a visit to her aunt in Fairmont, West Virginia. Miss McNeill was graduated from the University here last June and will teach English this coming year in the high school at Snow Hill.

Coach Bill Grice Is Honored by Kiwanis Club

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Grice were honored by the Kiwanis Club at its meeting Tuesday evening at the Carolina Inn. Shown above (l. to r.) are Harvey Bennett, chairman of the Bill Grice committee, presenting a suitcase to Mr. Grice as a gift from the club, and Mrs. Grice receiving the club's gift to her, a percolator, being presented by Kiwanis President Dick Jamerson. Mr. Grice recently resigned as the high school coach here to join Oberlin College's coaching staff. Shown at left are Mr. Grice's successor as Chapel Hill high school coach, Bob Culton, and Mrs. Culton, who were guests of honor at the meeting.

Rosemary Street Residents Give Views On Widening and No-Parking Proposals

The Town of Chapel Hill's mail survey of Rosemary Street residents and property owners to determine their attitude toward either eliminating parking on or widening the street is getting considerable response, according to Town Manager Tom Rose.

The survey was started under date of August 22, and already a number of replies have been received. A casual examination of them by him and members of the Town Board of Aldermen indicates that elimination of parking is preferred immediately rather than widening the street.

Mr. Rose said the replies would be tabulated and condensed in time for the town board to consider them at its next meeting on September 12.

The letter addressed to Rosemary Street residents and property owners read: "In studying the traffic situation on Rosemary Street in connection with the proposed widening program, the Board of Aldermen is considering the question of eliminating all parking on the street from Boundary Street to Carrboro."

"Varied opinions have been expressed. Some people feel that widening is a 'must' and should be done immediately. Others think that the elimination of parking is the answer. Still others feel that elimination of parking will be a hardship on some residents and will result in making the street a speedway."

Then the letter invited the addressee to express his opinion and return it in the self-addressed stamped envelope which was enclosed.

Post Office Holiday Schedule The Chapel Hill post office will not have any window service or regular town or rural deliveries of mail on Labor Day, Monday, September 5. However, the doors will be open from 6 a.m. to midnight, as usual, and outgoing mail will be dispatched and incoming mail will be put up in the boxes, as usual. The delivery of special delivery mail will also continue as usual.

Hoft Family at Beaufort Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Hoft Jr. and their children, Randy and Nancy, left last Saturday for their vacation. They spent the weekend in Kinston and then went to Beaufort for a week's stay.

Thompson Boys Fly Here Billy Thompson, 10, and Craig Thompson, 8, recently flew here from Oak Ridge, Tenn., to visit their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Thompson. Their father, W. E. Thompson Jr., will come for them this weekend.

Mrs. Russell Improving Mrs. Lucy Russell of Rockingham, mother of Phillips Russell of Chapel Hill, is making a good recovery from a serious operation she recently underwent. She is 94 years old.

At their meeting Tuesday evening at the Carolina Inn, members of the Chapel Hill Kiwanis Club paid special tribute to Kiwanian Bill Grice, who resigned this year as coach and athletic director at the Chapel Hill high school to join the coaching staff of Oberlin College. The main speakers were Tom Maultsby and Jim Neville, University athletes who were coached by Grice when they were students in the high school here, and O. K. Cornwell, Mayor of Chapel Hill and director of the University's physical education department.

Just before the actual program began Tom Rosemond, dressed as a carrier boy, distributed copies of a special edition of the Chapel Hill Weekly. The paper contained pictures of Grice and his teams here, had a short statement signed by all members of the club, and special statements by O. K. Cornwell, Bill Stewart, L. J. (Hap) Perry, Tom Rosemond, J. Temple Gobbel, Charlie Davis, Vic Cook, and the Rev. Samuel Tilden Habel. There was also a short story about Bob Culton, who has replaced Mr. Grice as coach at the Chapel Hill high school.

Mr. Maultsby said he was a freshman in high school when Grice first came here. "He always gave us the very finest coaching," said Maultsby, "and everybody enjoyed playing under him. He called the plays, and we" (Continued on page 8)

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Spangler and their three daughters have left for Lenoir, where Mr. Spangler will be principal of the elementary school. They lived here this summer in the Berkut house on Old Mill Road while Mr. Spangler was completing work toward an M.A. degree.

Bull's Head Best Sellers The best-selling book of fiction at the Bull's Head Bookshop last week was a new satirical novel, "The Genius and the Goddess," by Aldous Huxley. "Hiroshima Diary" is still in the lead for non-fiction.

Chapel Hill Chaff

My church attendance this year has not been perfect. I have missed one Sunday. I think the Lord will forgive me, for on that day I was suffering with shingles and the weather was hot and steamy. I go to the Presbyterian church. I was born and raised in that denomination and I am never completely at home in any other kind of church. The hymns, the order of the service, the sermons, the bond of fellowship with other people who are Presbyterians give me a feeling I get nowhere else.

One thing, though, is different from the church of my youth. The scripture readings. In those days in the Berryville, Virginia, Presbyterian church the King James version was used. Now in the Chapel Hill Presbyterian church it's the Revised Modern version. I know the new version is in many ways an improvement. Still I like the old one better, and I miss hearing it when I go to church.

Maybe I wouldn't be on this subject except that the story of the rich young ruler has been read twice recently at the Chapel Hill Presbyterian church, a month or so ago by Mr. Barron, the regular pastor, and two or three Sundays ago by Mr. Smith, the church's minister to students. It is a favorite with me, and I was sorry I wasn't hearing it the old way. The difference in the two versions is not great, but there is a difference.

The trouble with me is that I came to know many Bible passages by heart when I was a child hearing my father read the Bible after breakfast every morning at family prayers, and now it grates on my ear when the words don't fall just so. As Mr. Barron or Mr. Smith reads I often (Continued on page 2)

Flying from California George F. Bason Jr., who has been in San Francisco, will stop by here to visit his parents before returning to the Harvard University Law School. While he was at the air line ticket office making plane reservation for his trip east he ran into the Collier Cobbs of Chapel Hill, who were on a western tour. While in California he also visited Philip Couch and saw Philip's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Couch of Chapel Hill, when they were there on a visit.

Schoolmen Will Hold Important Meeting Tonight

Carrboro and White Cross school district committees will meet with the Orange County Board of Education tonight (Friday) to seek a solution to problems caused by students from those areas attending Chapel Hill schools, which are partially supported by a tax supplement within the Chapel Hill school district. The meeting will be held at the old Courthouse in Hillsboro at 8 o'clock.

In past years students from Carrboro and White Cross have been attending the Chapel Hill schools without paying tuition or without taxpayers in those districts sharing part of the burden with those of the Chapel Hill district. Last week the Chapel Hill School Board agreed to accept them again this year, but for this year only. The Orange County board, in turn, agreed to meet with residents of White Cross and Carrboro to see if the problem could be solved. One possible solution would be a supplement to help support the Chapel Hill schools.

About 40 students who live outside the Chapel Hill district are involved. The Chapel Hill board earlier had ruled tuition must be collected for their schooling. County Superintendent P.W. Carr held that that would be illegal.

Kiwanis Candidate

Dick Jamerson, president of the Chapel Hill Kiwanis Club, announced Tuesday at the club's meeting that its board of directors had voted to urge Tom Rosemond, former president of the club, to offer himself as a candidate for Lieutenant Governor of the Fifth Division of Kiwanis. Mr. Rosemond announced at the meeting that he would be happy to do so.

The Fifth Division is composed of the 11 clubs in Chapel Hill, Graham, Roxboro, Yanceyville, Burlington, Durham, Pittsboro, Raleigh, Oxford, Henderson, and Haw River. Its present Lieutenant Governor is Guy Rawls of Raleigh.

Church Supper Tomorrow There will be a Brunswick stew and chicken stew supper tomorrow (Saturday) evening in the dining room of the Carrboro Methodist church, beginning at 5:30 p. m. Proceeds will be used for the benefit of the church building fund. Everybody is invited to come and bring the children.

Golf Meet Is Open to All Local Players

All golfers who live or work in the Chapel Hill-Carrboro community are invited to compete in the second annual Chapel Hill Amateur Golf Tournament, to be held this Sunday and Monday, September 4 and 5, at the Finley golf course under the sponsorship of the Chapel Hill Jaycees.

Last year's winners as shown above are (l. to r.) Archie Meekins, gross winner, and Bob Watson, net winner. Both are students in the University's School of Dentistry. Trophies will be given in each of the two departments of this year's tournament, and smaller awards will be made to other leading contenders. Eighteen holes will be played Sunday and Monday. The entry fee of $2.50 will cover all greens fees for the two days of play. Entry blanks are available at the course and at the Town and Campus stores. Players may register right up to tee-off time at 9 o'clock Sunday morning, according to Fred Abernethy, Jaycee chairman of the tournament. The course will continue to be open to the general public during the tournament.

Children in Second and Third Grades to Receive Salk Polio Injections about Two Weeks After the Opening of Schools

Ivey Takes Over as New Director of U.N.C. News Bureau

Pete Ivey assumed the directorship of the University News Bureau yesterday. He succeeds the late Robert W. Madry, who was with the bureau for more than 30 years till his death last April. The 42-year-old newspaper editor comes here from Shelby, where he was executive editor of the Daily Star. Before that he was associate editor of the Winston-Salem Journal and Sentinel. He is a native of Rocky Mount and a University alumnus of the class of 1935.

Mr. Ivey joined the Journal and Sentinel in 1938. In World War Two he was an Army public relations officer. In 1951 he won a Nieman fellowship in journalism at Harvard and studied there a year while on leave from the Journal and Sentinel. He is married to the former Miss Helene Gores of Weaverville. They have two daughters, Sarah Lane, 9, and Helen Roemer, 6.

Opening Day at the Elementary School

The following announcement about the opening of the Chapel Hill elementary school on West Franklin street was made yesterday by its principal, Miss Mildred Mooneyhan: "When the school opens at 8:30 Wednesday, September 7, the students will be taken to their classrooms, and they will find their names posted outside the classroom doors as follows: First grades and 7th grade (one section), ground floor; 2nd and third grades, main floor; 4th, 5th, and 6th grades, top floor; 7th and 8th, basement of old wing at the back of the high school building. Student guides will be on hand to give assistance where it is needed. The supply fee of $3 per student should be paid to the teacher. School will be dismissed at 12 o'clock noon Wednesday and no lunch will be served in the cafeteria that day. Beginning Thursday, September 8, the regular schedule will be observed and lunch will be served in the cafeteria."

Restaurants Staying Open Most Chapel Hill restaurants will remain open throughout the day Monday, Labor Day.

The second dose of Salk vaccine against poliomyelitis will be administered to second and third grade pupils in Chapel Hill shortly after school convenes, probably during the second week, it was announced yesterday.

Dr. O. David Garvin, district health officer, who made the announcement, said it was in line with a State Board of Health letter urging use of Salk vaccine now in hand prior to its expiration date.

The letter pointed out that the polio onset period has apparently passed for this year, that North Carolina has had a "considerably smaller number" of cases reported this year than in the past several years, and that there now seems to be "no justification for further delay" in administering second doses of vaccine.

Thus, they will go to second and third graders who received the first shots as first and second graders last May. Discoverers of the vaccine recommend that three doses be administered within an eight month period, the third some six months from the second. Therefore, it is desirable that the second be given soon so that the third will not come too late next spring, which would be close to the 1956 polio onset period.

Dr. Garvin said that the department hopes to get sufficient vaccine to institute the first course to 1955 first graders so that they will have a full course of vaccination before next spring.

The vaccine against polio is supposed to immunize one for a long period, Dr. Garvin said. Thus, the earlier children receive it the longer they will be immunized.

Dr. Garvin said, to his knowledge, there had been no unfavorable experience with the first vaccine dose here.

Skrettings Go to Tallahassee, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Skretting left Wednesday to move to Tallahassee, Fla., where Mr. Skretting will begin his new duties there as a faculty member of Florida State University. He will serve as professor of education in charge of social studies education.

In order to make the move to Florida, Mr. Skretting recently resigned from the faculty of the University of North Carolina here and Mrs. Skretting resigned her post as the University's Dean of Women. They will make their home in Tallahassee at 648 West Lafayette Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Skretting, who lived here at 208 Hillsboro street, recently spent about three weeks visiting their parents in Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

At Missions School

Mrs. J. A. Warren of Chapel Hill was the dean of a missions school held last week at Duke University's School of Religion. The mission school's faculty included A. C. Howell of Chapel Hill, who taught a course on "Introduction to Five Spiritual Classes." Chapel Hillians who attended the school included Mrs. W. W. Pierson, Mrs. J. F. Hanning, Mrs. J. E. Wadsworth, and Mrs. Moyle Johnson.

On Camping Trip Last week Mr. and Mrs. O. V. Cooke went to Oak Ridge, Tenn., and joined Dr. and Mrs. M. K. Berkut, who had been there for the summer, for a camping and fishing trip in the Norris Dam area. On the way home Mr. and Mrs. Cooke will stop off at Asheville to pick up a gift collection of books for the University Library, of which Mr. Cooke is an official.
