

Like the Man Who Came to Dinner, the Snow Arrived at Supper Time and Decided to Stay

Like "The Man Who Came to Dinner," Chapel Hill's first 1956 snowfall arrived at supper time on Monday evening and decided to stick around a while. It had been raining spasmodically during the day Monday. At the University Filtration Plant, Superintendent Max Saunders recorded .36 inches of rain from 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon to 5 o'clock Monday afternoon.

At just about the time Mr. Saunders was taking his Monday reading, the rain turned to sleet which rattled down on Chapel Hill's wet sidewalks for a good portion of the next hour. Then, just as villagers were beginning to sit down to supper, the snow began.

It snowed and it snowed and it snowed. Sometimes it stopped for a while, then resumed. When Chapel Hill went to sleep for the night, it was snowing. When the town woke up the next morning, the snow was still sifting down through the naked branches of the village trees.

The snow finally quit about the middle of the morning. Mr. Saunders picked up a ruler, went outside, and took several readings in flat areas. The snow on the ground measured three inches. More than that had fallen, but some of it had melted as it hit the ground early Monday evening before the temperature slipped below freezing.

C. W. Davis, superintendent of schools for the Chapel Hill district, ordered classes suspended at the Chapel Hill High School, the Elementary School, Glenwood School, Lincoln High School, and Northside School. Near Carrboro and White Cross schools, part of the county system, were also ordered closed for the day.

Big Time Sports, Press Freedom Are Involved in a Bubbling Student Dispute

A student political fight, concerning Big Time athletics and freedom of speech, boiled over on the University campus and spilled into the state press during the past week. The latest development in the fight was an official announcement by Don Fowler, president of the student body, that the co-editors of the Daily Tar Heel—Ed Yoder and Louis Kraar—must stand a recall election about two weeks after the spring semester begins next Wednesday.

Some views of the co-editors had long disturbed the student body. The biggest complaint the students had against the campus newspaper was its condemnation of Big Time athletics. However, Mr. Yoder and Mr. Kraar never claimed to be representing the popular view. They said they were elected to the job to express their own convictions

George Barclay to Purchase Service Station Enterprise

George Barclay, former University football coach, has given up coaching in favor of settling down in business in Chapel Hill.

Mr. Barclay told the Weekly yesterday that he had nearly completed arrangements to purchase Odis Pendergraft's Texaco service station at the main downtown intersection on the corner of East Franklin and South Columbia Streets. "I hope to be able to take over by February 1," he said yesterday.

Meanwhile, Mr. Pendergraft said he hadn't yet decided what his plans were. "I have several projects in mind," he said, "and I definitely hope to remain in business in Chapel Hill."

Mr. Barclay spent three years as head football coach at the University. His contract expired at the end of the past season, and he was replaced by Jim Tatum, former head coach and athletic director at the University of Maryland.

Road Block to Be Set Up Tomorrow

The Jaycees' annual road block for the March of Dimes will be set up tomorrow (Saturday) on West Franklin Street in front of the Poe Motor Company. Manned by public-spirited young men who are members of the Jaycees, it will be in operation from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

As in former years, motorists will be asked to stop and contribute to the March of Dimes, the nation's most potent weapon in its battle against polio. About $480 was collected at the road block last year.

Roy Martin and Don Stanford are co-chairmen of the project this year.

Girl Scout Cookie Sale Begins Today

The Girl Scouts' annual cookie sale will begin today (Friday) and continue a week. Members of the various troops will make a door-to-door canvass during the drive and will also sell boxes of cookies on the street in the business district. Proceeds of the sale will be used to provide camping equipment for all Girl Scouts in the community.

The sale is being directed by Mrs. Marty McGuire, with the assistance of group captains in the various neighborhoods throughout town. She asks that everybody buy as many cookies as they can use.

Football Team Enjoys a Barbecue

About 250 people were on hand to eat barbecued steer Monday night in the Tin Can at a supper given for the University football team by the Chapel Hill Athletic Club. They included the players and coaches, University officials and faculty members, former University athletic stars, and members of the Club and their guests. Coach Jim Tatum spoke, making his first public appearance here since he was signed up this month as the University's new football coach.

Chancellor R. B. House pronounced the invocation and introduced other officials of the University. E. Carrington Smith, president of the Chapel Hill Athletic Club, made a short speech of welcome addressed to everybody at the supper and then presented trophies to the graduating members of the football team. Chuck Erickson, the University's director of athletics, introduced each one of the players by name and introduced Coach Tatum prior to his speech. Jake Wade, the University's sports publicist, introduced members of press, radio, and television sports staffs.

George Barclay, Mr. Tatum's predecessor as coach, presented watches to the graduating members of the team. It was announced that Will Frye had been selected by the players as the most valuable member of the team, and he received the "Most Valuable Player" award. This (Continued on page 10)

Chapel Hill Chaff

A remarkable parallel between a scene immediately before the eye and a scene described in a poem came to the mind of Walter Eaton at our house one day last week. Amanda Kay Kyser, the beautiful three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kay Kyser, came in and began to play with our globe, a Christmas gift from my nephew, Pembroke Rees, mounted on a table in the corner of the room. She stood and looked at it, fascinated by the varied bright colors of the world's lands and waters, and then she patted it and revolved it on its axis.

Mr. Eaton asked me if I had Palgrave's "Golden Treasury," the famous anthology of lyric poems. I said yes and brought him what I thought was all of Palgrave. But it wasn't. It was a reprint of the first edition, published in the 1850's, and did not contain what he wanted to see. The next day I got a letter from him saying he had been to the University Library and had found in the complete Palgrave, a later edition than mine, the poem that "I was pleasantly reminded of when your small neighbor and your globe were in close proximity."

The poem, a charming fancy indeed, appears on the next page. The man who wrote it was the older brother of Alfred Tennyson. The explanation of the name, Tennyson-Turner is that he added Turner because of an inheritance he received from an uncle of that name. I learn from Edmund Gosse's article on Alfred Tennyson in the Encyclopedia Britannica that his brother Charles "published four volumes of sonnets which have been highly praised."

Dining Room Staying Open

The Monogram Club Dining Room, which is open to the public, will remain open every day between the University's fall semester, which ends today, and the spring semester, which will begin Wednesday. Its serving hours are from 12 noon to 2 p.m. for lunch and from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. for dinner.

Mrs. Hogan Improving

Mrs. M. E. Hogan, who has been in Watts Hospital two or three weeks, is improving and hopes to come home this week-end.

John Manning and Ed Hamlin Enter The Campaign for the Senate Seat For Orange and Alamance Counties

A lot of rumor and speculation about the Orange-Alamance seat in the State Senate died out yesterday as two Orange County men officially announced they would seek the office in the spring Democratic primary. They are Chapel Hill attorney John Manning and Hillsboro newspaper publisher Ed Hamlin.

With Remus Smith

Stewart Named Co-Chairman of Bond Election Unit; Vote Set for March 27

William S. Stewart, judge of Chapel Hill Recorder's Court, and Remus J. Smith Sr. of Hillsboro have been named co-chairmen of a 40-member steering committee to organize a campaign in favor of Orange County's proposed two million dollar school bond issue.

The Chapel Hill district and county school boards named the co-chairmen, as they had the members of the steering group. The election on the bond issue has been scheduled for March 27, which is one week later than originally planned. The change resulted from legal requirements affecting the New York bond attorneys handling the issue.

The county commissioners had called the election for March 20, but consultation with the bond attorneys revealed that that date did not provide sufficient time for publication of legal notices and other requirements attendant upon such a bond issue.

Orange County citizens may file objections to the proposed issue anytime during the 10 days beginning yesterday. The commissioners will consider such objections in determining whether a public hearing will be held on the matter.

Registration books will be open from March 3 through March 17. March 24 has been announced as challenge day. A large number of members of the steering group and many school officials from all parts of the county struggled through Monday night's snow to attend the campaign organizational meeting. Promotional strategy and financing plans were discussed at the gathering.

Committees are expected to be announced soon to handle finance, publicity, speakers, organization and other activities.

Building and Loan Stockholders Told Of Flourishing Business Last Year; Miles Fitch Is Elected a Director

In their reports to the annual meeting of the Orange County Building and Loan Association's stockholders Monday night J. S. Bennett, president, and W. O. Sparrow, executive secretary, told of extraordinarily flourishing business in the year 1955.

Miles M. Fitch was elected a new member of the board of directors, raising the membership to nine. The eight members of last year's board were re-elected. At the directors' meeting that followed that of the stockholders J. S. Bennett was re-elected president, W. O. Sparrow executive secretary, and Douglas Fambrough assistant executive secretary.

Mr. Fambrough, for their excellent performance "in handling the work of the association accurately and promptly and meeting all local needs as well as the requirements of the two organizations that supervise our management, the State Insurance Department and the Federal Home Loan Bank."

In conclusion Mr. Bennett said: "Your association is in excellent financial condition, with adequate personnel, quarters, and equipment to handle the needs of the community."

Monte Milner Is to Become an Eagle Scout at Ceremony This Sunday Night

The Boy Scouts of Orange County will stage their first 1956 Quarterly Court of Honor at 5 p. m. Sunday, January 29, in the Morehead Planetarium under the direction of Tony Jenzano.

Monte Milner, member of Troop 9 sponsored by the Laymen's League of the Chapel of the Cross, will be awarded the Eagle rank in a ceremony which will climax awards to Scouts in the various troops throughout the county.

The unique ceremony planned will involve the use of the stars as guideposts. Each troop is expected to attend as a unit. This will be the first in a series of four district Courts of Honor for the Chapel Hill and Orange County Scouts. Prof. Rueben Hill will stage the next ceremony, which is scheduled for the fifth Sunday evening in April.

The Court is a function of the district advancement committee headed by Dick Donnan, Vernon Crook, Jesse Dedmond, Jesse Knight, Herman Preslar, and Howard Williams are committee members. Mr. Donnan has reported that in 1955 nine of the 59 Eagle scouts in the 10-county Occaneechee Council were from Orange County and seven of those were from Troop 39 of Chapel Hill.

Parents are especially urged to attend this colorful ceremony which recognizes Scouts for their achievements. The ceremony is a public function and there will be no admission charged.

Tatum's Contract Wasn't a Secret

University Chancellor Robert B. House told critics this week that football coach Jim Tatum's contract terms were never intended to be a secret—it was just that no one had asked for them before.

"That is, no one had asked except a representative of Time Magazine on January 12. The University News Bureau at that time obligingly reported the terms: Five years, at $15,000 a year, 'renewable after five years if mutually satisfactory,'" in the words of the Chancellor. Mr. House added, "There is no monetary, tenure, or other agreement with Mr. Tatum outside this simple agreement."

Mr. House also made official his week the announcement of Eddie Teague as another Tatum assistant. He joins Emmett Cheek and Ed Kensler on the coaching staff.

Mr. Teague has been an assistant to Coach Tatum at Maryland since 1952. He is a Marine veteran of the Korean War, and formerly played football both here and at N. C. State College. He received his "master's degree here in 1947 following a three-year hitch in the Marines, and then went to Guilford College where he served as a coach and athletic director prior to his second tour of duty with the Marines.

Greenwood Coffee Club Mrs. J. C. D. Blaine and Mrs. William Cherry will entertain the Greenwood Coffee Club at 8 p.m. Tuesday, January 31, at Mrs. Blaine's home on Greenwood Road. Mrs. Blaine will show colored slides taken during her trip to Puerto Rico and other islands in the Caribbean Sea.

Saturday School

Chapel Hill school children, ears glued to radio sets Tuesday morning, greeted with glee the broadcast announcements that all local schools would be closed because of the heavy snow.

By Wednesday, however, the glee had faded. Superintendent C. W. Davis announced that all Chapel Hill schools would make up the lost day tomorrow (Saturday) by holding classes on a regular week-day schedule.

Carrboro and White Cross schools planned to hold classes on Saturday, also.

Public Forum on Home-Building to Be Held at 10 O'Clock Tuesday Morning

Several prominent North Carolina architects will speak here Tuesday morning, January 31, in a public Architectural Forum to be held in the University Library's assembly room by the Chapel Hill Art Guild. To begin at 10 a.m., it will be open to everybody, without charge. Coffee will be served.

An announcement says that the forum will be of special interest to prospective home builders and to all who went on the Chapel Hill tour of contemporary homes sponsored by the Art Guild.

Bob Gladstone of the University's Department of City and Regional Planning will be the moderator of the forum panel, to be composed of Charles Haynes of Durham, James Webb and Ted Tillman of Chapel Hill.

Art Society Roster Reaches New Peak

Membership in the North Carolina Art Society has reached a new high of 1,028, it is reported by Miss Emily Pollard, chairman of the Society's membership drive in Chapel Hill and the rest of Orange County.

Miss Pollard said that a leading role in the organization's increase has been played by Chapel Hill, which has more than trebled its membership within the last few weeks. She urges everybody who is interested in art and the new State Art Museum in Raleigh to join the Society.

Membership dues are as follows: Annual, $2; contributor, $5; patron, $10; life, $100. Checks may be sent to Miss Pollard here in Chapel Hill or to The North Carolina Art Society in Raleigh.

To Attend Chicago Meeting

Dr. R. Beverly Raney, professor of surgery at the University's Medical School, will be in Chicago this weekend for a meeting of the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgery. Dr. Raney, who is chairman of the Academy's instructional course committee, is the director of orthopaedic surgery at the University.

Meanwhile, the names of at least two other persons were being mentioned as possible candidates: Both of them—attorney John LeGrand of Chapel Hill and merchant R. O. Forrest of Hillsboro—indicated they were considering entering the race.

The Senate seat rotates between Orange and Alamance Counties: Alamance has the seat for six years, then Orange for four. The seat has been held for the past six years by present senator Ralph Scott, brother of U. S. Senator Kerr Scott. Prior to that it was occupied by Jim Webb of Hillsboro, who has since moved to Greensboro.

In the spring primary, only Orange County voters will cast ballots on the Democratic candidate. In the fall general election, voters from Orange and Alamance will get a chance to select the new member of the Senate.

Mr. Manning is a former judge of the Chapel Hill Recorder's Court and a former president of the Chapel Hill Parent-Teachers Association.

Mr. Hamlin, editor of both the News of Orange County and the Alamance News and business manager of the Chapel Hill News Leader, has served as chairman of the Orange County Board of Elections for the past six years. He is a former president of the Hillsboro Merchants Association.

Mr. Hamlin made the following (Continued on page 12)

and Edward Waught of Raleigh. The maintenance of art instruction in the Chapel Hill public schools is the chief purpose of the Art Guild, which has a membership fee of one dollar a year. Mrs. Cornelius Lansing is president of the Guild. She invites everybody to come to Tuesday morning's forum and learn the why and wherefores of modern home-building.

Wildcats Knocked To Fifth Position

Chapel Hill High School slipped to fifth place in the Class AA District Three high school basketball standings here Monday evening as a fired-up Henderson team crushed the local Wildcats by a lopsided score of 74-44.

Henderson scored its eighth straight conference victory in the game to cushion its hold on the league lead. John Doshier was the only Chapel Hillian to score over 10 points as he poured 21 points through the hoop.

The Wildcats were playing without the services of three of their regular starters—high scorer Jim Neville and co-captains Clyde Campbell and Gordon Blackwell.

In the preliminary girls' game, the Henderson team defeated Chapel Hill by 42-28.

Exams to End Today

Final examinations for the University's fall semester began last weekend and will end today. Spring semester classes will begin Wednesday, February 1.
