

County Board Working This Week on New Tax Schedule

The Orange County Board of Commissioners last night (Monday) began work on the 1956-57 budget with every intention of holding the tax rate to 70c per $100 valuation.

The Commissioners last week completed hearings from various county departments on budget requests for the fiscal year beginning July 1. Last night the board sat down and began going over the estimated needs.

They hope to complete the job this week in order that some action may be taken at the July meeting next Monday, July 2, if possible.

One of the commissioners said yesterday that the consensus of the board is to hold the rate at 70c. That still would be an increase of eight cents over the 1955-56 rate of 62c. But it is estimated that at least eight cents will be needed to pay interest on school bonds to be sold before January or on short term bond revenue anticipation notes which might be marketed immediately in place of the bonds.

In addition to the schools, other county departments have requested budget increases for the coming year. The commissioners, however, hope that the increased property valuation will bring in sufficient revenue to meet what requests they will approve.

County Accountant Sam Gattis told the Weekly yesterday morning that he believed the final total of property values in Orange County would be around $78,000,000, which would be an increase of $4,000,000 over the past year. At least, that is the figure the commissioners will be using when they discuss budget estimates and the tax rate this week. Mr. Gattis explained that the values in all the townships, except Chapel Hill, have been checked and totaled, but that it is impossible to give the accurate figure until Chapel Hill is completed.

Robert Marshall Dunn of Orange County Showed Great Skill In Becoming North Carolina's Champion School Bus Driver

By Charlie Robson
Orange County school bus drivers did wonderfully well in the first annual School Bus Rodeo driving skill and safety competition completed here this past week. Robert Marshall Dunn, driver for the Aycock School in northern Orange County, won the state championship for male drivers, and Jean Bradshaw, driver for White Cross School and recent graduate of the Chapel Hill High School, is girls' champion for the district composed of Orange, Person, and Durham Counties. Alice Faye Pritchett of Greensboro, winner of the girls' state championship, is the sister of Miss Kathryn Pritchett, assistant Home Demonstration Agent in Orange County.

The contest originated with the Governor's Traffic Safety Council and was effected by the Traffic Safety Division of the State Highway Patrol as a part of its program to promote safer driving in North Carolina. The actual competition was supervised by the North Carolina Motor Carriers Association which has been holding similar contests among truck drivers for many years. This, however, is the first time a school bus driving competition has been held in North Carolina, and the first Rodeo of its kind in the country. But the Rodeo was not a single event taking place here at Chapel Hill; it was a series of contests organized from local through state level, and the finals here last week were its climax. Several months ago the principals of all the schools in North Carolina were asked to rate their school bus drivers as potential candidates in the Rodeo. They were requested to make the following considerations in consultation with the chief school bus mechanics and others who supervised the bus drivers: (1) Skill of driver in operating bus. (2) Courtesy as related to passengers and other motorists. (3) Ability to maintain discipline and handle any such problems as may arise in normal course of his duties. (4) Employing safe practices in all phases of discharging his duties as a school bus driver. (5) Cleanliness and mechanical condition of school bus throughout entire school year. (6) Driving record as it pertains to the operation of vehicles other than a school bus. (7) Attitude toward his responsibility as a school bus driver. (8) Ability to get along with students, mechanics, principals, etc. (9) Consistency in maintaining schedule and keeping records.

Jean Bradshaw and Marshall Dunn both received the highest possible ratings from their principals, Mrs. Blanche S. Mattox of the White Cross School and Mr. Jesse L. McDaniel of Aycock High School. Their records were then checked by the law enforcement sections of the Highway Patrol for any violation of the law or demonstration of unsafe driving at any time.

Carrboro Cubs Win 7th Straight Game

Carrboro's semi-pro Cubs took two baseball games last week end to bring their winning streak to seven games without a loss. Friday night they defeated Swepsonville, 8-6, in Swepsonville and Saturday they took the Durham Rams under the lights in Durham Athletic Park by a score of 6-5.

In the Swepsonville contest Bill McGinn started for the local club but was relieved by Earl Dawkins in the second. Wilson Scholars had the game's lone home run in the fourth inning, and Jack Mitchell scored a triple and a double in four trips to the plate.

Lloyd McKnight and Don Saine shared the pitching duties for the Cubs in the Durham game; Ivaloe Hill and Jack Mitchell were leading hitters with two each to their credit.

Two away games are scheduled for the Cubs this week. Tuesday night they face the Roxboro Colts at Roxboro, and Thursday night they take on the Shady Oaks team at Shady Oaks.

Chapel Hill Chaff

L.G.

I don't know any better illustrations of the recent changes in communications and travel than the message the children of Dr. and Mrs. Isaac Taylor sent to their father in the Antarctic on his birthday, June 15, and the way in which the family moved from Chapel Hill to their summer vacationing place in the North.

Mrs. Taylor called up Western Union and gave the address: Lt.-Commander Isaac M. Taylor, Mobile Construction Battalion Special, U. S. Navy Airoppac, McMurdo Sound, Antarctic, care of Naval Communications Station, Washington, D. C. The message was the song, Happy Birthday to You, signed by the Taylors' five children.

The Western Union operation here sent it to Washington and there it was sung by wireless to Dr. Taylor in the Antarctic. A couple of days later Mrs. Taylor got a joyful acknowledgment from him.

As for the children's and the mother's travel: Alex and James flew to Boston Wednesday and were met there by their grandmother and taken to her home in Newburyport. Mrs. Taylor, Kate, Livingston, and Hugh took a plane to Boston one day last week, took possession of the station wagon which was driven there from Chapel Hill by David Hare, and drove to Newburyport. After a short visit there they will go to Woods Hole at the south end of Cape Cod to board a boat for Martha's Vineyard. They have a cottage at Gay Head on that island for the rest of the summer.

A man in Raleigh wrote last week to ask me about the origin of the name, Chapel Hill. This is old stuff. (Continued on Page 2)

The festival was sponsored by the Carrboro Cubs baseball team in an effort to raise money to keep the team in operation. The turnout for the festival was more than was expected, according to officials in charge.

Umstead, Fogleman Best (?) Fishermen

Ten Chapel Hill and Carrboro "Lucky Dads" and nine members of the Merchants Association went to the Eastern North Carolina coast last weekend on the annual fishing trip promoted by the association. Monk Jennings was in charge of the trip.

Two $7.50 cash gift certificates redeemable at any member of the Merchants Association were awarded for fishing prizes. One went to Frank Umstead for catching the most fish; he caught around 15. The other went to Herman Fogleman for catching the largest fish, which was a 15-pound blue dolphin.

The party left Chapel Hill around noon Saturday, spent the night at Harker's Island, about 20 miles south of Morehead City, fished Sunday from 4 a. m. to 4 p. m. and returned to Chapel Hill Sunday night.

They went out about 30 miles off Cape Lookout in two cabin cruisers and located, according to Mr. Jennings, blue dolphin, king mackerel, Spanish mackerel, amberjacks and rock bass.

"It is generally agreed that the trip was one of the best fishing trips ever to be staged by the Merchants Association. All the fathers who went expressed their appreciation to the local merchants for making the trip possible," Mr. Jennings said.

Argentinian Rebellion Routs Summerlin from Bath

"Chief of Bureau Sam Summerlin in Buenos Aires was routed from his morning bath to take a telephone call from a private source that 'trouble is brewing'."

This is from an Associated Press inside-the-family bulletin telling about how Summerlin beat all his competitors to the news of the recent rebellion in Argentina. He got it a full hour before it reached Vice-President Rojas, who was at the opera, and put in a telephone call to the AP office in New York just as the rebels seized Santa Rosa.

Summerlin had met the Haitian Ambassador and his wife, and when Argentine gunmen invaded the embassy to capture rebels who had taken refuge there the Ambassador talked freely, and furiously, to him.

Edwin S. Lanier won the Democratic nomination for State Senator and Donald M. Stanford won a seat on the Orange County Board of Commissioners in the second primary Saturday.

According to the unofficial returns, Mr. Lanier, University student aid officer, defeated John M. Manning, Chapel Hill attorney, by a vote of 2,211 to 1,853.

The same unofficial returns showed that Mr. Stanford, a Chapel Hill dairy farmer, defeated the incumbent Sim Efland, businessman and farmer of Efland, by a vote of 2,072 to 1,865.

The returns will be canvassed and made official today (Tuesday) at Hillsboro. The unofficial tabulation appears elsewhere on this page of the Weekly today.

Mr. Lanier, a former mayor of Chapel Hill who is now half-way through his first four year term as a member of the Board of Commissioners, came from behind to defeat Mr. Manning who was high man in the first primary. In so doing, Mr. Lanier lost only five—Efland, Patterson, Chapel Hill 1, 3, and 5—of the county's 19 precincts. On the other hand he captured Tolar's, Caldwell, Cheeks, Hillsboro, University, and Cole's Store, which had been lost to either Mr. Manning or to E. J. Hamlin in the first primary.

In defeating Mr. Efland, who is completing his third term on the Board of Commissioners, Mr. Stanford carried only eight of the precincts, but those by wide pluralities. They were Patterson, White Cross, Carrboro and Chapel Hill's 1 through 5.

Both Mr. Lanier and Mr. Stanford yesterday expressed their appreciation for the support accorded them in both primaries. "I am deeply grateful, and will work for the best interests of all of Orange County," said Mr. Stanford. He will take office in December.

Mr. Lanier, who will represent both Orange and Alamance Counties as senator in the 1957 General Assembly, also said he was "grateful" for the vote and support. "I shall try hard to deserve their trust and respect," he added.
