

She's Proud to Be Crew Member of a Viscount

—Photo by Bill Prouty

MISS NORMA JEAN BALDWIN

Miss Norma Jean Baldwin, a flight hostess for Capital Airlines, had a couple of days off last week and flew in from New Orleans to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Baldwin. Dressed in her working uniform, she is shown above at their home on Hillsboro Street.

With headquarters in New Orleans, Miss Baldwin is hostess on a new four-engine, turbo-prop Viscount that flies between there and New York. She is one of four crew members of the 44-passenger plane. On its regular schedule, the plane leaves New Orleans at 3:15 p.m. and makes only one stop (Atlanta) between there and New York. It reaches Atlanta at 5:50 for a pause of 15 or 20 minutes and then takes off for its non-stop flight to New York, arriving there at 9:58 p.m. Members of the crew spend the night in New York and fly the plane on its run back to New Orleans the next day.

Miss Baldwin says she enjoys every minute of her work. She adds she is proud to be a crew member of a Viscount. "If you write me

Swaps Smokes for Jade

Jap Officer's Fondness for American Cigarettes Started Kemp Nye on His Priceless Collection of Jade and Ivory

Lucky Strike cigarettes got Kemp Nye started on a priceless collection of Chinese jade, ivory, cloisonne enamel dating back to the Yuan, Ming, and T'ing dynasties.

The Chapel Hill businessman this week disclosed how some folks might call it receiving stolen goods—traded Japanese invaders smokes for the product of their looting in China in the late Thirties.

Kemp was a courier for the

Free Chest X-Rays

The District Health Department's mobile chest x-ray clinic will take free x-ray pictures of all comers from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. today (Friday) on Main Street in Carrboro. It gave a similar service from 2 to 4 p.m. yesterday at the Health Department headquarters back of Hill Music Hall and will be there again from 2 to 4 p.m. on August 30.

Chapel Hillnotes

Chapel Hill School Board officials searching the High School Library for a Bible with which to swear in new member Bill Sloan.

Members of the Kiwanis Club talking about the nice surprise visit they had from Leigh Skinner at their meeting Tuesday evening at the Carolina Inn.

Goldenrod blooming on the roadsides, a signal the end of summer is not far away.

Carolina Barber Shop not seeming like the same old place with Y. Z. Cannon away.

U. S. Embassy at Peking at the time of the Japanese invasion in August, 1937. He regularly carried official dispatches to U. S. embassies and consulates in the Pacific, along the China coast, and inland as far as Siam. In Hawaii, he was able to purchase American cigarettes at only a few cents per pack from the Navy's ships stores. Then, on his return to Peking, it was just a matter of doing business with a high Japanese officer who had a fondness for them, specially Luckies. Kemp tells of the officer going down the lines of enlisted Japanese soldiers and confiscating their loot to gain for himself "smoking pleasure."

Kemp kept what valuables he liked and traded the remainder in both legitimate and illegitimate channels for items that he wanted. That wasn't always easy. The beautiful vase he has from the Imperial Collection could have cost him his life. At least, Kemp thought so at the time. So, he ran for what seemed hours and about ten miles in the winding streets of Peking to escape from pursuers. Did they want the vase, back or to rob him? "I don't know," Kemp replies. "When they jumped me and my Number One boy, I took off. I didn't stop to ask."

The approximately 50 valuable items of his collection now on exhibit in the North Art Gallery of the Morehead Planetarium here demonstrate the craftsmanship of the Chinese of olden days. The ivory "Bridge of Life" (Continued on Page 9)

Change Date of Public Hearing to Limit Number of Commissioners in Townships

The Orange County Board of Commissioners voted Monday to change the date of the public hearing on limiting the number of county commissioners from each township to two to Monday, October 8, at 8 p.m. in the courthouse in Hillsboro. The hearing was originally set for September 10.

The move was made after requests that it be changed. It was felt that there would be some persons who would like to attend the hearing, but would not be here at that time, because the University will not have then started for the fall semester.

The Commissioners, at their June 5 meeting, voted to ask the N. C. General Assembly to limit the makeup of the board by statute. The move was met with varied reaction throughout the county, and, after several requests for a hearing on the matter, the board scheduled it.

Patterson at Lackland Base

Lt. Robert B. Patterson has begun training at the Lackland Air Force Base at San Antonio, Texas. For the present, Mrs. Patterson and their son, Robert Jr., are staying with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Mann of Carrboro.

Visit Roaring Gap

Mr. and Mrs. William Mangum and their daughter, Ariana, were at Roaring Gap on a recent visit. Last weekend Mr. Mangum, with his cousin, Charles Mangum, drove to Little Switzerland to spend a couple of days with Mrs. Kent Brown.

Chapel Hill Chaff

L. G.

When I was reading in bed and was about to turn out the light and go to sleep, a night or so after we got back last fall from our trip to Europe, I said: "I'm homesick."

I expected this to be a sort of shock, but I was fooled. My wife knew exactly what I was thinking—whether because she was a mind reader or because she had heard remarks from me indicating dissatisfaction at being in the U. S. again, I don't know—and she said: "Well, you can't go back to England now."

It was indeed England I was thinking about. The fascinating sights I had seen and the hospitable and lovable people I had met there were reason enough for this; another reason for my thoughts' being on England was that it was freshest in the memory of all the countries we had visited—we had boarded a boat train from London to Southampton only ten days before—and we had stayed in England much longer than anywhere else.

But every now and then I am stricken with homesickness for some other place. It all depends on which one chance sets me to day-dreaming about. Paris (the first city on our Brownell tour), Nice, Rome, Naples, Perugia, Assisi, Florence, Venice, Bologna, Padua, Verona, Milan, Lucerne, Brussels, the Hague, Amsterdam, Edinburgh—not a day comes but I don't have a spell of homesickness for one or several of these. If we made only a short stop at a place, a couple of hours as at Assisi or half an hour or so at Padua or Bologna or Verona, I am all the more eager to revisit it so that I can get better acquainted. Travel is by long odds my

(Continued on Page 2)

Recreation Program Here Is Described as Poorest Among All N. C. Towns of Our Size

Chapel Hill has the "poorest recreational program of any town its size in the state," the Rev. Charles S. Hubbard, pastor of the University Methodist Church and a member of the North Carolina Recreation Commission, told the Chapel Hill Kiwanis Club this week.

Speaking at the regular meeting of the club at the Carolina Inn, Mr. Hubbard Hill "stop leaning on the University" for recreation and "plan a program separate and apart" from the institution.

Supporting his criticism of the recreation program as it is now, Mr. Hubbard said there are no facilities here for young people and adults which are completely devoted to recreation and which are not a part of the University.

"We should reassess the value of recreation for children, not because of juvenile delinquency but to raise the cultural standards of all our people," he said. "Recreation leaders now realize that their program is more important for middle-age people and old people than it is for children."

He pointed out that the churches see their responsibilities in that field. The church program now includes worship, education, and fellowship; and under the head of fellowship, the churches feel recreation is one of the most important aspects.

"In North Carolina today," Mr. Hubbard said, "the larger churches are employing recreational leaders and building swimming pools and bowling alleys so that the members may get together and come to know each other better, informally as well as formally."

L. C. Cheek Jr., a civil engineer, was inducted into the club as a new member. Guest Kiwanians were Sher-

(Continued on page 12)

To Build Drive-In Depository

The Bank of Chapel Hill will erect a drive-in depository on its East Rosemary Street parking lot for the convenience of its customers.

Construction will start next week, and its completion is anticipated about September 10. The building will be eight by fourteen feet and will be of an attractive design with brick and pre-cast stone exterior. The spacious teller window will be trimmed with steel.

The building will be put 24 feet back from the street on the west side of the present parking lot, and the approach be widened.

Some customer parking will be retained on the lot, but it is hoped that it will be sufficient because once the window is opened employees' automobiles will not be parked in the area.

At that time the flow of traffic in the area will be completely reversed from what it is now. Cars will enter on the east side and depart on the west, being so arranged for the convenience of customer drivers, who will be able to transact their business while sitting under the wheel of the car. It will also enable customers to make deposits or secure change without having to park and do business in the main institution or to drive to one of its branches at Carrboro or Glen Lenox.

The building will have year-around air-conditioning. It was designed by James M. Webb and Associates, architects, Ellington Sparrow will be the contractor, and the estimated cost will be $7,500.

Convention Will Be Seen Here on TV

The Democratic Convention in Chicago will be televised by three stations in this vicinity, beginning at noon on Monday. All three major networks will carry the convention over channels 2, 11, and 28 in Greensboro, Durham and Raleigh respectively.

Beginning Monday at noon, the convention will be opened by Party Chairman Paul Butler and then will come a welcome by Chicago Mayor Richard Daley. The official "Call for the Convention" will be issued by convention secretary Dorothy Vredenburg. Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois will then address the delegates. Concluding this first session will be the report of the secretary, the official appointment of the chaplains of the leading religious faiths of the nation and appointment of standing committees.

Governor Frank Clement of Tennessee will deliver the keynote address at Monday night's session, which will begin at 8:30 o'clock. Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, still an active figure in party politics and a supporter of Adlai Stevenson for the presidential nomination, will also address the delegates. Mr. Butler will speak, and a film of the history of the party will be shown and narrated by Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts.

Tour Buncombe County

Mrs. Musella Wagner and Mrs. Howard Weeks have recently returned from a tour of Buncombe County sponsored by the North Carolina Society of County and Local Historians. While on the tour they spent some time in Asheville and at The Lodge on the Blue Ridge Parkway. The Lodge is the only hotel that is right on the Parkway.

Letter from London

Mr. and Mrs. Loren MacKinney write from London of their delight in seeing Mrs. Leon Wiley and the Norman Eliasons.

Returning from Island

Mrs. John M. Booker will return Sunday from a two weeks' stay at Sea View Inn on Pawley's Island, S. C.

Return from Greece

Mr. and Mrs. Preston H. Epps returned to Chapel Hill last week after a trip to Greece. They spent two weeks in Athens and the surrounding area and then went on to Rome, Italy, for a couple of days. They went over and returned by air, stopping in New York on their return.

Switching Allegiance to Carolina

—Photo by Bill Prouty

GLORIA DE HAVEN

By Charlie Robson

Actress Gloria De Haven was in town this week.

The former Hollywood star, who is currently engaged in TV and recording work, visited Coach Jim Tatum and his family prior to going with the Tatum's to see the College All-Stars play the Cleveland Browns in Chicago. Miss De Haven met the Tatum's through a mutual friend, Dick Finscher of Miami, and it was with Mr. Finscher that she came to Chapel Hill.

Miss De Haven has become a real football fan through Coach Tatum's influence, she said. He introduced her to a lot of other coaches, Duffy Doegerty, Bud Wilkerson, to name a couple, and she's become very interested in the game.

She had been following Coach Tatum's teams at the University of Maryland for several years, but now she has promised to switch her allegiance to Carolina. "I've got a lot of confidence in Jim and any team he coaches," she said.

She'll be back to Chapel Hill in the fall for the Tar Heels' opening game with State.

Miss De Haven has no plans for any motion picture in the near future, but she expects to start her own TV show this winter. She likes the east, especially Miami, where she is now living, much better than California, even though she was born in California, and she would much rather work in the east than return to Hollywood.

Her TV plans call for guest appearances on Ed Sullivan's and other shows, and about October she is scheduled to make a test film of her own show, a new television comedy program. The show is as yet unnamed, but if a sponsor likes the preview film, she expects to go on the air in February.

The celebrated motion picture star, who got her start in 1944 in "Two Girls and a Sailor" with June Allyson and whose most recent picture is "The Girl Rush," has recently signed a recording contract with a newly formed company and expects to devote a lot of her time to this. The company is so new it hasn't been named yet, but it has been formed out of the old RKO company that was recently sold and has a lot of good stars, Miss De Haven said.

Asked if she planned to do any work on Broadway, Miss De Haven said she'd like to very much if the opportunity comes along. She was in a Broadway show, "Seventh Heaven." It didn't do so well, but she likes that kind of work a lot. "I'd like to try another," she said.

This was Miss De Haven's first visit to Chapel Hill and she likes everything about it, except for the chiggers in the Tatum's yard. But she'll be back in the fall, and all the chiggers will be gone by then.

Russell Grumman Retires as Director of the University's Extension Division

The retirement of Russell M. Grumman as director of the University Extension Division was approved Tuesday at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the University Board of Trustees. Charles F. Milner has been appointed Acting Director to replace him.

The resignation will become effective August 31, and Mr. Milner will assume his duties September 1.

Mr. Grumman joined the Extension Division as associate director in 1925. He later became acting director and in 1928 was made permanent director. He received his B. H. degree from Springfield College, Mass., in 1918. He was a teacher and coach at the Brooklyn Friends School in New York and attended Columbia University and the Union Theological Seminary.

Mr. Milner received his master's degree from the University here in 1941. A native of Ohio, he has lived in North Carolina since 1930.

University Acting President Bill Friday also told the committee that he is naming a 17-member committee to recommend a new Chancellor for the University here to replace Robert B. House, who will retire next June 30. The committee will be composed of trustees, faculty members, and alumni.

During Grumman's 31 years with the Extension Division, the organization has greatly enlarged its services through the use of mail, radio and television.

"I wish to express sincere appreciation to the University and the State of North Carolina for the opportunity to be of service to young people and adults reached in countless ways by the Division's program and activities," Grumman said in a recent report to University officials.

CHARLES F. MILNER

RUSSELL M. GRUMMAN