

Official Says Bypass Ditch To Be Marked

The Weekly has investigated some complaints about a ditch left by the State Highway and Public Works Commission after it provided for an access service road on the north side of Highway 15-501 by-pass near the intersection with the Durham Road.

The ditch spans the area directly in front of four businesses, Southern Motors, Tar Heel Motor Lodge, Larry's Grill and Restaurant and the Chapel Hill Roofing & Heating Co. It runs south along the right side of the highway. It seems that motorists were turning off at random—not using one of the two entrances to the small business area—and were hitting the ditch because they didn't notice it in time to stop.

The ditch has been there about a month, is a little over a foot deep, a yard wide, and a little under three-tenths of a mile long. It was put there, it appears, as a drainage ditch, and possibly as a means of forcing drivers to use the entrances.

About a dozen cars have hit the ditch when drivers didn't see it. There has been no serious damage to the cars, but there possibly could be if the ditch was hit at a certain angle. One man's children were reported thrown into the front seat of the car from the back seat when he hit the ditch. He threatened suing the owner of the Tar Heel Lodge. Another man hit the ditch there, got mad, and wouldn't stay there after stopping. One person who works at one of the businesses and was accustomed to the ditch, even ran over it one time, it was said.

Suggestions from the men in the area included putting up guard rails and planting grass and covering the ditch up, which the State Highway Department probably won't do because the highway is one of limited access.

Night is when motorists usually hit the ditch, which is very (Continued on Page 8)

Johnny Allcott Is Home From Illinois

Johnny Allcott has returned from Wilmette, Illinois, where he had been visiting his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Chloupek, most of the summer. He went there by plane in early June and returned last Friday by automobile with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John V. Allcott, and his brother, Gene, and his sisters, Elizabeth and Elinor, who had recently driven to Wilmette.

Two or three times while he was in Illinois, Johnny, who is a White Sox fan, went to Chicago to see baseball games between the Yankees and the White Sox. On the way to Wilmette, Mr. and Mrs. Allcott and the other three children stopped off at Cherokee and saw a performance of Kermit Hunter's outdoor play, "Unto These Hills."

Hill to Speak In Amsterdam Friday

Reuben Hill, University sociology professor, will deliver a paper to the World Congress of Sociology at Amsterdam next Friday, August 24. His paper will be entitled "Family Patterns in the Changing South."

Mr. Hill has been in Europe since June, exploring the family research centers there. He has been based in Paris and Brussels. His summer assignment is the first part of a long term international study of the interrelations of authority patterns and family stability.

Harvey Carnes Begins Duties as Pastor Here

By Charlie Robinson
Harvey L. Carnes is the new pastor of the United Congregational Christian Church of Chapel Hill.

Last Sunday Mr. Carnes preached his third sermon in his new church. He preached on the power of the knowledge of Christ.

And Mr. Carnes should know. He comes from a large family of ministers as does his wife. He has been a minister himself since he was graduated from college at the age of nineteen.

Mr. Carnes terms himself "a Texan born and brought up in Kentucky." His parents were from Texas but moved to Kentucky just before he was born and have lived there ever since. His father, the Rev. B. G. Carnes, was graduated from college at the Congregationalist Church and also serves as superintendent of Church Extension for that denomination. His brother is a Methodist Chaplain in the Air Force. Mr. Carnes himself was a Methodist minister before he joined the Congregationalists.

Congregational Church was the first new church established in the New World, Mr. Carnes said. It was originally founded by the Pilgrims who left England because of religious persecution and sailed to America on the Mayflower. The Congregationalists, then, are predominant in New England, but in 1931 the church merged with a Southern denomination, the Christians, who were founded by James O'Kelly at O'Kelly's Chapel near here. The Congregational Church has always pioneered in the ecumenical movement and, in fact, plans another merger in the near future. This merger will be with the Evangelical and Reformed Church, a denomination that is predominantly Pennsylvania Dutch, Mr. Carnes said.

Asked why he had come to Chapel Hill, Mr. Carnes said that he and his wife liked the liberal spirit and open-mindedness they feel exist in Chapel Hill and its intellectual environment. This is a particular compliment for Mr. Carnes has served in pastorates in Virginia, Florida, Kentucky, and Massachusetts. While in Massachusetts he attended the Harvard Theological School in Cambridge, Harvard, incidentally, was founded by the Congregationalists, as was Yale and many other schools.

The United Congregational Christian Church of Chapel Hill, although only 150 strong, seems to be one of the most active congregations in Chapel Hill. They are now building and expect to complete by fall a new $45,000 educational and recreational building adjacent to their church. The new building is of the very latest design and construction and will include facilities for Sunday school, student activities, and other activities of the congregation.

The building is being constructed by T. W. Poe and Son of Durham. James Webb, its architect, has already drawn up plans for more improvements on the present church building for the future.

What about Mr. and Mrs. Carnes' plans for the future and their plans for the church? Well, they plan to place particular emphasis on music in the church. Mrs. Carnes is a qualified music teacher and will organize children's choirs in the church during the fall. As a supplement to his pastoral work, Mr. Carnes is interested in the civic organizations and their work. He is particularly interested in the PTA and the schools, especially since his older daughter, Debbie, will be starting school in Chapel Hill this fall.

Mr. Carnes may decide to take some courses in the Theological School at Duke while he is here, for he feels that he can always learn more that will be of use to him in his work. But for the present he plans to devote his time to his congregation, both the township and the students in the University, and that should

Johnson Describes Dollar Days as Highly Successful

The Dollar Days promotion held here over the weekend "was a tremendous success," according to Moyle Johnson, who was in charge of the promotion. Mrs. Jane Whitefield, executive secretary of the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Merchants Association, said she also felt it was highly successful.

Mrs. Whitefield said she heard several townpeople remark that local merchants have become more promotion conscious, and that local persons no longer have to go to Durham to get bargains and the goods they want.

Firemen Attending Raleigh Convention

Local persons attending the North Carolina State Firemen's Association Convention this week in Raleigh are Fire Chief J. S. Boone, C. E. Vashaw, Thayer Lloyd, Odie Pendergraft, B. R. Smith, W. H. Ray, and Eric Crabtree.

Mr. Ray and Mr. Crabtree are attending only one day, while the others will attend all three days of the convention, which began yesterday (Monday) and will last through Wednesday.

The delegates will elect a new association president and take up other association business, including finances.

Chapel Hill Women Back From Meeting

Mrs. Charles Stanford and Mrs. Robert Lester returned Saturday from Roaring Gap where they attended a meeting of the Daughters of the American Colonies. Afterward they were the house guests of Mrs. Van Matthews at Charlotte at her beautiful home in Blowing Rock with nine other members.

On the way home they stopped at the Old Settler's Museum in Deep Gap. This, says Mrs. Lester, was one of the most fascinating things she had ever seen and she strongly recommends it to anyone interested in the pioneers of North Carolina.

$25,000 Grant Made To Nursing School

Announcement of a Mental Health Training Grant Award has been received by the University's School of Nursing from the National Institute of Mental Health.

This award is in the amount of $25,106 for the first year and includes support of the graduate program for the preparation of teachers in psychiatric nursing. The receipt of this grant adds strength to a program which is badly needed, not only in North Carolina but in the entire South.

The program at the University School of Nursing is designed to prepare individuals for teaching positions in psychiatric nursing and has been planned in cooperation with the Southern Regional Education Board.

Extension Division Appoints Professor

Roy Elmer Sommerfield has been appointed as assistant professor of education in the Extension Division of the University. The announcement by Chancellor Robert B. House came following approval by Acting President William C. Friday and the Board of Trustees.

Mr. Sommerfield will take up on September 1 his duties which include travelling throughout the state to instruct UNC extension classes in education for teachers in need of the courses. He will also teach at the UNC School of Education.

He was born in Benton Harbor, Michigan, is married, and has three children.

Chapel Hill Chaff

J. J.

Ed Hodges of Durham is a sports car fancier. When he appeared recently on a Durham television program about sports cars one of the things he said was that he and his wife own four cars.

Not long ago Mrs. Jane Whitefield went to call on Mr. and Mrs. Hodges. As she drove up to the house her small daughter Susan said, "Mommie, I don't think we better go in. They already have company."

"No, Darling," Mrs. Whitefield reassured her, "all those cars belong to Mr. and Mrs. Hodges."

Mrs. Hodges, the former Miss Betty Arnold of Chapel Hill, works here at the Colonial Press on West Franklin Street. When I saw her there one day last week I asked her what she and Ed wanted with two cars apiece.

"So we can borrow money," she replied. "We used to have a terrible time getting a bank to lend us anything. Now we just tell them we have four cars and they let us have all the money we want."

Fakery is so prevalent in most movies it's a pleasant shock to encounter a Hollywood scene, be it never so fleeting, that has the ring of truth. This rare sensation is imparted momentarily in "Safari," a film here the other day at the Varsity Theatre.

A little native boy is a member of a white man's Kenya safari when it is encircled by the murderous Mau Mau. He slips through the ring of attackers and runs for help. At his best hope, he flees across the African plain. Small, spindly, barefooted, and black. A herd of giraffe scatter before him and move off in (Continued on Page 2)

50 Years of Service

Elease Winston Has Been Cooking for Archibald Henderson Family Since 1906

On last Thursday, August 16, after Elease Winston had served breakfast to the man for whom she had worked for fifty years, he handed her a little box and the following letter:

"This is to congratulate you and my whole family upon your attaining the fiftieth anniversary of your coming to work for us. This gift is a token of appreciation, not only of your faithful and devoted service but of your friendship and solicitude for the welfare of us all. Long may this relationship continue!"

She opened the box and there was a gold bracelet! "The Boss" at the breakfast table was Archibald Henderson. Elease Weaver joined the Henderson family August 16, 1906, when she was 14 years old. Five or six years later she married Reuben Winston. They had four children, two boys and two girls. Reuben died eight years ago. Reuben, Jr., is in the Navy and the other son is in the U. S. Air Force. They are both stationed at San Diego, California. When their mother went to visit them they tried to persuade her to come out there to live with them but she decided to come back to the place where she was born and had lived all her life.

Recreation Building for Girl Scouts And the Community Church Is Planned

A building for the use of the Girl Scouts and the Community Church of Chapel Hill will be erected on the church's property off Purefoy Road.

The anticipated cost will be $1,000 according to the permit to build issued by Building Inspector P. L. Burch to Mark Burnham, local contractor.

Another permit issued since last Thursday went to L. B. Tripp for $6,000 to erect a dwelling on the Hillsboro Road.

Mr. Burnham is supervising erection of the pavilion-type building for the scouts. It was given by the University to the Girl Scouts of Chapel Hill, and came from the site of the new Institute of Government building.

Members and friends of the Community Church moved it and then last Saturday began putting in the uprights.

When completed in about a month, it will be 20x60 feet, enclosed on one side and have a small storage room. It will be for use by all Girl Scout troops in Chapel Hill.

McGinty Entering National Tourney

C. S. McGinty of Chapel Hill left Saturday to compete in the veterans division of the National Doubles Tennis Championship at Chestnut Hill, Mass.

The Chapel Hillian will team with Dr. Sam Levelle of Greensboro in the tourney. In other tennis news over the weekend John Tapley and Bill Lee, both of Chapel Hill, were defeated in the men's doubles finals of the Sandhills Invitation Tennis Tournament at Southern Pines Sunday.

Kattsoffs Injured In Highway Crash

Mr. and Mrs. Louis O. Kattsoff and their daughter Nita were hospitalized on August 6 at Asbury, N. J., after a traffic accident in which their car was hit by a speeder. Mr. Kattsoff, who was driving, suffered a broken shoulder. Miss Kattsoff's nose was broken, and Mrs. Kattsoff suffered hip injuries and a possible concussion. All three received many bruises.

The Kattsoffs are spending the summer at Allenhurst, N. J. After the accident, they were rushed to the Pitkin Hospital in Asbury Park, near where the accident occurred. All three members of the family are recuperating satisfactorily.

At the time of the accident Miss Kattsoff was on her way to a rehearsal of a summer show in which she is to dance. She has resumed her rehearsals and expects to be in the show.

Miss Mooneyhan Is Home From Mexico

Miss Mildred Mooneyhan, principal of the Chapel Hill Elementary School on West Franklin Street, has returned from a vacation in Mexico and will reopen her office at the school tomorrow (Wednesday).

Most of Miss Mooneyhan's time in Mexico was spent in Mexico City and on the west coast at Acapulco, the famous Pacific beach resort where the mountains meet the sea. On her way to Mexico City she traveled on a highway that took her through Laredo, Monterrey, Victoria, Valles, and Zimapan. She made side trips to Puebla, Taxco, and Cuernavaca.

At Acapulco Miss Mooneyhan stayed at the Hotel Caleta, which faces on the beach, and in Mexico City she was at the new ultra modern Hotel Aiffer, which had just opened.

Fruit Flies May Help in A-Bomb Attacks

Maurice Whittinghill, University professor of zoology, is shown examining fruit flies he is using in experiments which may play an important part in understanding the effects of radiation on humans in case of an atom bomb attack. He is conducting the experiment under a contract awarded by the Atomic Energy Commission.

By Buck Paysour and Bill Van Treuren

Think twice the next time you swat a fruit fly who is helping himself to the bananas on the kitchen table. This little pest is playing an important part in research which might some day save your children's lives.

Maurice Whittinghill, a zoology professor, is now using the lowly insect to determine what future radiation might have on effects generations. He is conducting the research under a contract awarded by the Atomic Energy Commission. In case of an atomic bomb attack, his findings could help in better understanding of what radiation exposure might do to humans.

For the purposes of his experiment he is using only X-rays. Actually, the UNC professor first became interested in the project even before the first atomic bomb was dropped on Hiroshima. He first exposed fruit flies to radiation almost 20 years ago when he was a post-graduate fellow at the California Institute of Technology.

The Atomic Energy Commission contract was awarded on the basis of this early work and a plan he proposed for new research. His work under this contract is now in the preliminary stages.

Mr. Whittinghill has found that when one generation of the Drosophila—that's scientific lingo for fruit fly—is exposed to

Pony Was Only Thing Catherine Wanted; She's Happy Now Because She Won One

By Charlie Johnson
Twelve-year-old Catherine Borden will soon get something she has been wanting for a long time. She won a pony last week and expects to get it some time this week.

Catherine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Borden of 115 West University Drive, used to ride the ponies at Watts Motor Court. Children were allowed to ride them free of charge, but there was one drawback. Only one bridle was available, so only one child could ride at a time.

By saving her money and earning it in various ways, Catherine bought a bridle of her own. But when she went back to ride the ponies, she discovered they had been sold. This was sometime last spring.

Catherine then decided that she had to have a pony to go with her bridle. She asked her father for a pony, but he didn't get it because the Borden's had no place to keep it.

So, she entered a contest sponsored by Kagan's of Richmond, a meat packing firm, that was holding a national contest and was giving away several ponies for prizes to persons naming several brand wagners and sent in several names, including "Corky," "Big K," and "Storm King." While she was visiting an aunt in Lumberton last week, her parents were notified that she had won a pony. They didn't tell her about it until she returned Saturday. An agent of the firm sponsoring the contest is expected to call her this week to tell her when the pony will get here.

Catherine doesn't know what kind of pony she has won, nor does she know which name won it for her. Mr. Borden said he doesn't know at the present where the pony will be kept, but he hopes to find a place soon.

When questioned on the telephone about winning the pony, Catherine answered in the most polite way, "Well, I think it's wonderful. I wanted one for my birthday, but didn't get it," she said.

She had once told her father that she didn't want anything else in the world but a pony. She's happy now, because she's got one.

Ward Wins 4-Day Vacation in Cuba

Bernice Ward of Chapel Hill, one of the partners in the furniture store of Johnson-Strowd-Ward here, has been awarded a four-day "Havana Holiday" by Walker Martin, Inc., General Electric distributors of Raleigh.

Accompanied by Mrs. Ward, he will leave for Cuba Thursday of this week from the Raleigh-Durham Airport. They will return next Monday, also by plane.

The prize all-expense trips are awarded by Walker Martin, Inc. for sales achievement by G-E appliance dealers. This trip is the eighth annual holiday sponsored for North Carolina G-E dealers exclusively.

"We are happy to have so many winners," R. W. Martin, president, Walker Martin, Inc., said. "The Johnson-Strowd-Ward Company was awarded the trip because of its outstanding sales of G-E major appliances during 1956."

To Fill Positions

Twelve administrative posts in public schools and colleges of the South will be filled this fall by recent doctoral graduates of the University, according to Dean Arnold Perry of the School of Education.

Graduate at Elon
Harold Glosson of Chapel Hill and Alpha Blake of Hillsboro were graduated from Elon College at the close of the summer term last week.
