Nematodes Damage Cedar Grove Leaf

In Cedar Grove township severe nematode damage has been noted in the tobacco fields of Tom Wheeler, William Pope and others.

As a rule the damage from these tiny insects is not apparent to the eye, but nevertheless takes a heavy toll both in quality and quantity of tobacco. This year many fields are so severely damaged as to be noticeable from the highway.

One of the most effective control measures is to rip up tobacco stalks immediately after harvest. In this way many of the roots are exposed to sun and drying wind which together tend to destroy nematodes. This practice alone will not control this pest but will greatly reduce its damaging powers. Other control measures are rotation and fumigation.

George Simpson Is To Direct Research

George Simpson has become director of the North Carolina Research Triangle and will undertake his duties in Raleigh within a few days.

Granted a year's leave of absence from the University's Department of Sociology and from the Institute for Research in Social Science, Mr. Simpson will be the executive officer of a broad new program of scientific and economic development which is backed by authority of Governor Luther Hodges and the Department of Conservation and Development.

The Research Triangle has three angles—The University at Chapel Hill, State College in Raleigh, and Duke University at Durham.

Mr. Simpson will continue to live in Chapel Hill and will commute to Raleigh, Durham, Greensboro, and to whatever other places his duties may take him.

Welfare Problems Beset Commission

Mrs. Jane Parker, county welfare superintendent, had some problems to discuss with the Orange County Board of Commissioners when she appeared before that body in Hillsboro last Monday morning.

The biggest problem on the commissioners' minds at the moment, however, concerned Mrs. Parker herself. She had resigned, effective around November 1, and they were faced with a tough prospect: how to find a successor with the same high degree of competence who would be willing to work for the same low rate of pay.

Mrs. Parker's major problem concerned a reduction of federal and state aid (cut from $6 to $4 per patient per day) for hospitalization payments. That decrease was announced about a week after the county budget was approved. A short time later both Duke and Memorial Hospitals raised their rates.

The commissioners dwelled briefly on their major problem after Mrs. Parker had completed her report. They decided they would look around and find someone they wanted to come to work, then take up the question of how much money it would take and where the cash was coming from.

One Still Captured In Month of August

Five raids during the month of August netted Sheriff Odell Clayton's forces one 180-gallon still, 120 gallons of non-tax paid whiskey, 3,000 gallons of mash, and one 1941 Ford. The accounting was made before the county commissioners in Hillsboro on Monday morning.

Sheriff Clayton told the commissioners that his office collected total cash receipts of $1,910.44 in August, with $1,769.90 coming from fines and costs in criminal cases, and $140.54 coming from service of civil papers.

Sentences imposed on defendants in cases originating in the sheriff's department totaled 30 years, and suspended sentences and probation added another 29 years and 60 days.

Other activity during August included 79 arrests, service of 49 civil papers, summoning of 101 jurors and serving of subpoenas on 25 witnesses.

Good Afternoon for Football

Several hundred fans turned out on Labor Day afternoon to watch the University's football team practice.

Out-of-towners came from Durham, Raleigh, Greensboro and Charlotte. Chapel Hillians were present with their wives and families. Infants in strollers were on hand, too. So were a group of youngsters who put on a game of football of their own, out of the way of the varsity. And, so were two members of the town's dog colony.

Several of the spectators remembered the players' numbers from last season or had had access to pre-season dope books, and identified them for the less-informed.

A couple of pairs of field glasses were seen in use, and camera enthusiasts snapped pictures.

Almost everybody was trying to keep out of the sun, looking for a breeze, and wondering if it was going to rain. But they stuck it out to watch a little rough work and to talk about prospects, how-many-games-are-one - woulda - said - anything-

Coker - and - Johnson - had - been - signed - by - Duke - or - State.

Few, if any of the spectators knew junior quarterback Dave Reed was lost for the season as a result of a knee injury suffered last Saturday. They watched a lively scrimmage and commented on the ball handling, the tackling, the blocking, and the running.

It was a good afternoon for watching and listening.

The University School of Public Health is the fourth oldest professional school of its kind in the United States.

Leaflets Available

The Chapel Hill Unit of the League of Women Voters has made available at strategic places about town a number of leaflets detailing and explaining the proposed amendments to the North Carolina Constitution to be voted on tomorrow (Saturday).

The leaflets will also be available at many of the polling places tomorrow. They state the arguments both for and against passage not only of the amendments relating to the schools but also those relating to sessions of the General Assembly and powers of attorney for married women.
