A Hymn Is Born

Hold the Fort
City publisher gives country boy chance

Attached to the crudely written manuscript note read: "If my song is worth publishing I would appreciate having a flute in exchange for it." Publisher George Frederick Root went out to buy the best flute in Chicago. Sending the instrument to the poverty-stricken youth in Clearfield County Penn., he attached a note to the effect that if the young man wanted a job with the firm of Root & Co. there was one waiting for him.

It was that 10 years the self-trained composer who had worked at a county sawmill for 12 months was directing music at Chicago's First Congregational Church and editing song books one of which netted him $30,000 in royalties—which he promptly gave to charity.

Came 1876 and tall handsome 22-year-old six foot, Bartine Philip Bliss was the most sought after singer and composer of gospel songs in America. Tens of thousands of penitents marched down the sawdust trail while he sang for Evangelists D. Whittle and Dwight L. Moody.

One night in Chicago after hearing a sermon on "Man's Love For God" Bliss reversed the theme and while his wife fixed breakfast next morning wrote "Jesus Loves Even Me." Hearing Moody tell the story of a shipwreck on Lake Erie because of faulty lights at a lighthouse, he came up with "Let The Lower Lights Be Burning." Waiting for a train in Ohio Bliss slipped into a church and heard the preacher say, "He be almost saved is to be entirely lost." Almost persuaded "was as good as written."

His my comrades, see the signal
Waving in the sky
Reinforcements now appearing
Victory is nigh

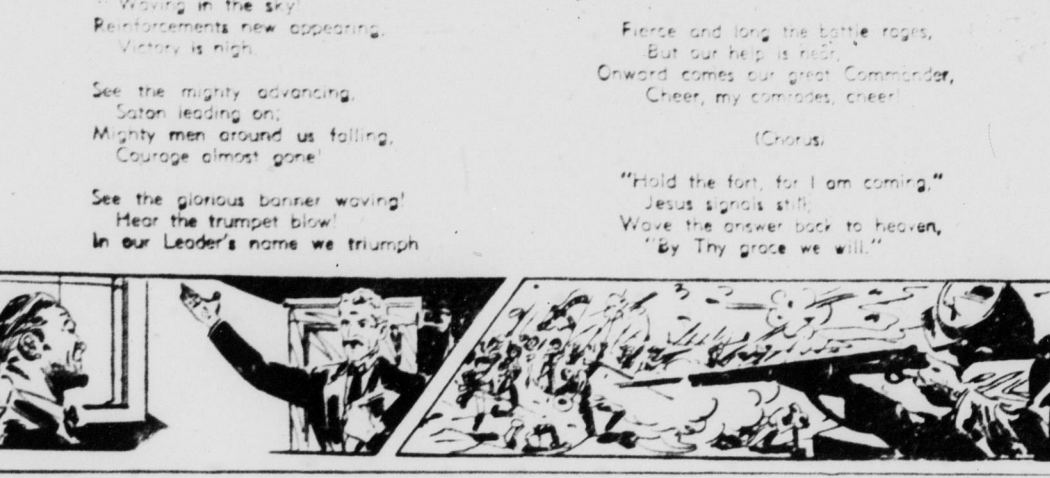

See the mighty advancing
Satan reeling on
Mighty men around us falling
Courage almost gone

See the glorious banner waving
Hear the trumpet blow
In our Leader's name we triumph

Over every foe

Fierce and long the battle rages
But our help is nigh
Onward comes our great Commander
Cheer, my comrades, cheer

(Chorus)
"Hold the fort, for I am coming."
Jesus signals still
Wave the prayer book to heaven,
"By Thy grace we will."

'Slate Belt' Survey May Boost Income

By Buck Paysour

Two men from the University were floating down a river in a boat this summer, when a fisherman yelled to them.

"You fellers caught anything?" he asked.

"We aren't fishing," came the reply.

"Well if you ain't fishin' what are you doing?"

"Looking for rocks," the UNC men, who had by this time drifted far downstream, shouted.

The fisherman scratched his head as if wondering what kind of people would be looking for rocks when they could be fishing.

Then as sort of an afterthought, he shouted above the roar of the river at the fast disappearing Chapel Hill, was married to Richard Neal Howell of Raleigh at Raeford Baptist Church Saturday afternoon. The couple will live in Lake City, Fla., where Mrs. Howell will teach.

boat: "Hey, if you fellers are looking for rocks, I got plenty of 'em in my backyard at home."

Chances are that the fisherman is still trying to solve the mystery of the men who were looking for rocks. Actually, there is not much of a mystery to it. The two men in the boat were Duncan Heron of Durham, and Bill Reves of St. Petersburg, Fla.

They form one of five teams engaged in mapping the "Slate Belt" of North Carolina. The survey is a Governor's project fostered by the Division of Mineral Resources of the State Department of Conservation and Development.

The five teams—four of them from UNC—have covered every inch of highway, road and river and much of the backcountry of approximately 25 counties.

Mr. Reves explained that the principal object of the survey is to bring the geological maps of the Slate Belt up to date. The only geological map of the area was done before 1900 and partially revised in 1937.

The so-called Slate Belt extends from the North Carolina-Virginia line through the heart of the state to the North Carolina-South Carolina line. It is approximately 68 miles in width.

In addition to mapping the slate, the geologists are also noting other rock types such as granite, tuff, gneiss and schist. The map, which will take about a year to complete after the survey, will serve as a basis for the later economic exploitation of slates and other rock types.

The UNC geology professors taking part in the survey are Virgil Mann, W. A. White, and Roy L. Ingram. Graduate students from UNC include Stephen Duncan Heron Jr. of Durham, Sleton S. Alexander of Statesville, Everett Brett of Raleigh, and Oscar Bradley Eckoff of Charlotte.

Mr. Heron is a professor at Duke University who is doing graduate work here. Also taking part in the survey are Mr. Reves, a recent graduate of UNC, John Parker III of N. C. State College and Doring Dahl, a graduate student from N. C. State.

Mr. Reves and Mr. Heron are the only ones who have done work by boat, as well as by automobile and foot. They explored the Cape Fear and the Neuse rivers in the vicinity of the "fall line."

The others did all their work by automobile and foot. They examined rock outcrops on every road, including those roads not listed on maps, and hiked into areas not accessible by road.

The survey, which has taken more than three months to complete, will be finished around the middle of September.

In addition to serving as a guide for prospectors, the new map will be of value to contractors. By using it, they will be able to predict the kind of rocks they will find in excavation

Miss Tilson Weds James Goodwin

Miss Nancy Letitia Tilson became the bride of James Edward Goodwin at the Chapel Hill Baptist Church here Saturday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock. The Rev. Samuel Tilden Habel officiated.

A program of nuptial music was played at the organ by Mrs. Frank Shellburne, and the church was decorated with summer flowers, greenery and lighted tapers.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carey Yates Tilson of Chapel Hill, and a graduate of Chapel Hill High School, and she attended Woman's College, and will attend the University here this fall.

The bridegroom, son of Mrs. Mary Frances Simmons, also of Chapel Hill, is also a graduate of Chapel Hill High School and is now serving with the U. S. Coast Guard and stationed in Durham.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory satin gown fashioned with fitted bodice, scalloped lace yoke and sleeves, and bouffant skirt with chapel train. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a halo of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of gladiolus.

Miss Anna Tilson attended her sister as maid of honor wearing a pale aqua antique taffeta gown designed along princess lines with ballerina-length skirt, and matching bandon. She carried a bouquet of shasta daisies.

Bridesmaids were Miss Lany Walden of Tabor City, Miss Bryte Abernethy of Chapel Hill and Miss Patricia Anne Simmons of Chapel Hill, who served as junior attendant. Their gowns and bouquets were like those of the honor attendant.

Robert Gunter of Durham was best man for his cousin, and ushers were Mac Proctor of Chapel Hill, Sam Ray of Carrboro and Yates Tilson, brother of the bride.

The ceremony was followed by a reception in the church parlor with parents of the bride as hosts.

After a wedding trip the couple will reside in Chapel Hill.

Church near Raleigh Saturday, will make their home here at 739 Raleigh Road. The bride, the former Miss Betty Lou Sorrell, is a junior in the UNC School of Nursing. The groom is employed by the State Highway Commission.
