

County Goes for Pearsall, But Chapel Hill Says No

Seventeen of 19 Orange County precincts gave overwhelming approval to the Pearsall Plan although three of five Chapel Hill precincts rejected it in Saturday's referendum, according to unofficial and incomplete returns.

In the county, the vote was 3,101 for the plan to 1,740 against. Elections Board Chairman Sam T. Latta reported yesterday. The returns will be canvassed at the Courthouse in Hillsboro today.

According to Mr. Latta the vote in Chapel Hill and Carrboro totaled 1,425 for the plan to 1,358 against, but the Chapel Hill vote alone went against the plan by 1,234 negative votes to 936 votes for the plan. The vote by precincts in the two communities was:

Chapel Hill No. 1—128 for, 204 against; No. 2—171 for and 171 against; No. 3—198 for, 330 against; No. 4—260 for, 257 against; No. 5—179 for, 272 against; Carrboro—489 for, 124 against.

Mr. Latta had only indicative returns on the other three amendments, which also were apparently approved in Orange County. Those amendments provided for a longer General Assembly term and subsistence pay for legislators, powers of attorney for married women, and openings of the legislative session in February rather than January.

All four amendments were adopted in the state-wide election.

Boy Scout Organization Making Plans For Fund-Raising Campaign This Fall

"In a meeting in Chapel Hill last Friday night, Community Drive Chairman of the Orange County Boy Scout Fund drove the stage for a successful campaign this fall," according to G. Mac Norwood, Memorial Hospital Budget Officer and Chairman of the Boy Scout Finance Committee for Orange County.

W. D. Carmichael Jr., Finance Chairman for the Occaneechee Council, which encompasses eleven other counties in addition to Orange, explained to the assembled drive leaders how volunteer leaders from throughout the council had participated in building the proposed budget of $158,000 for 1957 which will serve an estimated 20,000 boys and leaders in the Occaneechee Council.

McCoo Brown, Raleigh insurance executive, demonstrated methods for selling the "character building and citizenship training program of the Boy Scouts of America." Roy Armstrong, former Council President and Finance Chairman, explained the Scout method of organizing fund drives. He urged the committee chairman to "get the right people to see the right people" and see at least "15 per cent of the adult citizens in your community."

"There is no outside imposed goal for any community," Mr. Armstrong pointed out. "There is the goal of seeing the 15 per cent and giving that group the opportunity to contribute once they have heard the story."

Rip Collins, local Scout District Executive, explained the uses of the campaign tools in the prepared kits to the group, which included L. V. Brubb, R. K. Pickett, and C. C. Atwater of White Cross, who are putting on their first Scout drive.

Dr. Robert Murphy, Sam Gattis, Paul Carr, and Don Matheson represented Hillsboro. Mrs. Turner Forrest, Mrs. Aubrey Graham, and Mrs. John Eiland Jr. participated for Efland. Carrboro was not represented, although according to Mr. Norwood, Leon King who has resigned as chairman, has done extensive work and together with Wiley Franklin, R. B. Todd and R. S. Lloyd, prepared a complete prospect list.

Odum Brothers Win Scientific Award

Eugene P. Odum and Howard Thomas Odum, sons of Mrs. Howard W. Odum, were joint recipients of the George Mercer Award given by the Ecological Society of America, at its recent meeting at the University of Connecticut.

This award was made for the Odums' research paper concerning the marine life of one of the coral reefs of Eniwetok atoll. The paper, which was published by the society, was based on underwater studies the Odums made on the reef in 1954.

The two brothers, accompanied by their families, were here recently on a visit to their mother and their sister, Mrs. Philip C. Schinhan. Eugene has now returned to his work as professor of biology at the University of Georgia, and his brother, formerly of Duke University's biology department, has assumed a new post as director of the Institute of Marine Science of the University of Texas at Port Aransas, Texas. His wife and their two small daughters will fly to Port Aransas next week.

School Insurance Deadline Today

Today (Tuesday) is the deadline for voluntary purchase by parents of approved insurance providing coverage for their children in case of accidents occurring at school or between school and home.

The cost of a policy is $1.50 per pupil for the entire school year, and cash or checks must be turned in to home-room teachers today. After today no more applications for insurance will be accepted. Checks should be made payable to Chapel Hill Schools.

University Names Associate Doctor

Dr. Tyndal P. Harris has been appointed associate physician of the University, according to Dr. E. McG. Hedgpeth, University physician. Dr. Harris is a native of Cochran, Ga. He received the degree of bachelor of science in medicine from UNC in 1947. Dr. Harris is married to the former Mary Elizabeth Vardeman. They are the parents of three children. The Harris have purchased the A. C. Shearer residence in Westwood and will occupy it in October.

Chapel Hill Fells Selma High, 27-13

Hard running, blocking and tackling of the Chapel Hill High School football team in its 27-13 season opening victory Friday night were praised yesterday by Coach Bob Culton and fans.

Selma High School, a non-conference foe, was the victim of 68, 80, 65, and 85-yard drives and runs by the Wildcats. Although Selma scored twice, it was against the lighter Chapel Hill reserves, but they themselves performed creditably and the entire team was the recipient of praise.

Neil Clark sustained the only serious injury of the night. The Wildcat back suffered a dislocated shoulder that will keep him out of action at least a week.

Chapel Hill counted in the first quarter on a 68-yard march with Ruffin Harville, Tommy Goodrich and Baldy Williams alternating to the Selma eight from where Goodrich went off tackle for the TD. Goodrich converted to make it 7-0.

In the second quarter, Chapel Hill drove 80 yards with Harville passing to Sammy Carroll for 45 yards and the second touchdown. Selma came right back to recover a fumble on the Chapel Hill 30 and score with Jimmy Earp plunging over from the one. Bobby Creech converted to make it 13-7 at halftime.

Harville returned a punt 85 yards for the Wildcats third touchdown. On the run he received key blocks from Tommy Hogan and Charles Todd. Goodrich added the extra point from placement.

Chapel Hill marched 65 yards to score early in the fourth period. Harville set up the TD with a 25-yard run to the five from where Bob Costello plunged over. Goodrich ran over the extra point to make 27-7.

Against the reserves in the final period, Selma drove 50 yards to score with Creech plunging over from the one.

Defensive standouts for Chapel Hill were Harville, Hogan and Hayward Pendergrass. Earp and Creech carried the defensive burden for the visitors.

Score by periods:
Selma 0 7 0 6-13
Chapel Hill 7 6 7 7-27

Aldermen Consider Annexation, Receive Report on Glendale Sewer Proposals

The Board of Aldermen was scheduled to meet last night to consider the annexation to the town of an area encompassing the Glenwood School, a section of University property, and a tract of 26 acres of land to be developed for their personal use by 23 families who call themselves the Chapel Hill Housing Group.

The aldermen were also expected to receive a report from Town Attorney John LeGrand on a proposed contract between the town and the Durham Realty and Insurance Company concerning a sewer system for the company's Glendale development on the east end of the village.

The board met as a committee of the whole last Thursday night to discuss the contract with Worth Lutz of Durham, president of Durham Realty and Insurance. Mr. Lutz proposed that the company begin to be reimbursed for the cost of the sewer system as soon as the first ten houses are constructed in the area. The town will have to float a bond issue to provide money for the reimbursement.

Members of the Chapel Hill Housing Group, who petitioned for annexation at the July meeting of the board, are mostly young University faculty members with children. They formed the group to purchase and develop the land for their own use, rather than for sale or rent. They plan to build their homes within the next year.

The petition, signed by Robert E. Agger, Robert Gladstone, Harold Harris and John Kelton as trustees, stated that members of the group intended to reside in Chapel Hill permanently. They gave the following details of their development:

1. It would be built around a single U-shaped street, in order to best preserve the wooded nature of the land.
2. They would build and pay for the sewer system, under the supervision of the town manager.
3. They would provide sidewalks and streets paved with Chapel Hill gravel.

Hearing on Fire Contract Friday

Formal notice that the Greater Chapel Hill Fire District intends to contract with the Town of Chapel Hill to furnish fire protection has been given to the public, and a hearing will be held on the matter at the Town Hall here Friday at 4 p.m.

Interested persons are invited to attend the meeting and either assent or state their objections. The general terms of the contract provide that the town will furnish the fire protection in return for the annual tax of 10c per $100 value on the property it protects.

Hillsboro Defeats Southern, 14-0

Hillsboro High School opened its 1956 football season with a sound 14-0 victory over Southern High at Hillsboro Friday night.

With quarterback Ray Barnes sparking the hosts' effective T-formation attack, employing criss-crosses and flankers, Coach Glenn Auman's crew scored in the second and third quarters. The Wildcats maintained a tight defense throughout to live up to advance billing as a chief contender for the league title this season.

Midway in the second period the relentless Wildcat forward wall pounced on halfback Ronnie Strickland's fumble on the Hillsboro 47-yard line to set up the initial touchdown drive.

Auto Parts Firm to Open Here

Chapel Hill will get a new business about October 1. A branch of the Southern Parts and Electric Co. of Durham will open then in the new building on West Franklin Street immediately back of Elmer Pendergraft's Service Station.

Announcement of the new business was made here yesterday by R. E. Ashworth of Durham, owner of the firm. The local manager will be Gene Irwin of Durham.

Mr. Ashworth said that a complete line of automobile parts would be stocked in the Chapel Hill store, affording convenience as well as speed to local garages and automobile owners in obtaining needed parts.

Legion Auxiliary Party
The Chapel Hill American Legion Auxiliary will hold a get-together meeting at 8 o'clock tomorrow (Wednesday) evening at the home of Mrs. D. M. Horner at 40 Oakwood Drive. The affair will not be a business meeting but a party for all members, old and new.

Home From Europe
Mr. and Mrs. Norman Eliason came home from Europe last Wednesday. They had been there during Mr. Eliason's year of work under a Fulbright Fellowship.

Cheek Announces Change In Post Office Schedule

Beginning next week, the doors of the Chapel Hill Post Office will be open from 5:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. from Monday through Saturday and from 8 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. on Sundays, it was announced yesterday by Postmaster J. Paul Cheek. This new plan will replace the present schedule under which the Post Office is open from 5:30 a.m. to midnight on week-days and from 8 a.m. to midnight on Sundays.

"In making the announcement, Mr. Cheek said: 'Since the last outgoing mail is at 7 p.m. and the last incoming mail is at 7:30 p.m., there will be no curtailment of service. The doors of the building will be open daily except Sunday for sixteen and a half hours instead of the present eighteen and a half hours.'

"The late mailers may use the automobile letter boxes on the street in front of the post office, since the mail is always collected from these boxes before every dispatch.

"It is emphasized there will be no change in the arrival and dispatch of mails, but it is felt that the man hours used late at night could be more effectively utilized during the day."

Cannon Returns To Barber Shop

Y. Z. Cannon, who suffered a heart attack some time back, returned to his middle-chair stand on the west side of the Carolina Barber Shop yesterday. Y. Z. plans to do very little work, however, until he is fully accustomed to being back on his feet for long times.

A new face in the barber shop is J. T. Blanton Jr. of Wilmington. He is an addition to the barbering personnel.

In the near future a seventh chair will be added for him to man.

Club Entertains Football Squads

The Chapel Hill Athletic Club entertained the University's football squads, varsity and freshmen, at Fetzer Field Sunday evening.

The Rev. Charles S. Hubbard, pastor of the University Methodist Church, talked to the gathering about the time he was an athlete at UNC, and others on the program included Coach Jim Tatum and Athletic Club President E. Carrington Smith.

Other highlights, including the barbecued chicken, were Chancellor Robert House's harmonica playing and Bruno Raso's performance at the accordion. Mr. Raso is a member of the Freshman football team.

Chapel Hill Chaff J. J.

Cattleman Jack Lasley and his father, J. W. Lasley the University mathematics professor, recently went to the Roanoke River ranch of W. P. Morris at Jackson to attend the annual meeting and field day of the North Carolina Hereford Breeders' Association.

As is usual at these occasions, there were four bulls and four heifers to be judged. When it came to the four heifers the professor made an honest try, employing all the information at his command. Among the four bulls, however, he saw no distinction. He made some guesses, signed his name and telephone number, and hoped he would be lucky.

Not so the junior Lasley. He judged the heifers aright, the bulls aright, and was the only one of the 300 attending cattlemen to score absolutely one hundred per cent in both divisions. For this he carried away the grand trophy, a huge life-like papier-mache Hereford bull.

When Jack got home he placed the trophy on the bureau in the nursery bedroom of the third John Lasley in the current series. Awakened and seeing the immense monster bull which had invaded his domain, little John hurled his pillow thereat and dived headfirst under the sheets.

A common complaint in Chapel Hill, as elsewhere, is the nocturnal raiding of garbage cans by dogs looking for something to eat. The scavengers often upset cans, work the lids off, and leave trash scattered all over the place. For fear of offending dog-owning neighbors, many

Chuck Hauser Back Temporarily, Goes to Charlotte Soon

The Weekly today announces the appointment of two new staff members and the temporary return of a third—all designed to give its readers a complete twice-weekly reflection of the life of Chapel Hill and all of Orange County.

Mrs. Pete Ivey, center, above, comes to the Weekly as woman's editor, and Bill Prouty, right, joins it as photographer and roving correspondent. Chuck Hauser, left, who has been on leave of absence for a trip abroad and Army reserve training, picks up where he left off in June, and will work until October 1, when he joins the staff of the Charlotte Observer.

Mrs. Ivey is the popular and enterprising wife of the University News Bureau director. A native of Entwistle, Alberta, Canada, and an alumna of the University here, Mrs. Ivey identifies herself as a "publicity agent for everything" with a yen to write, even a novel.

In addition to newspapering in Chapel Hill for the past year, under Phillips Russell and Walter Spearman and a television writing course under John Ehle. She was continuing, in a manner, her news and fiction writing studies at Harvard with Ted Morrison and Kenneth Kempton. And she intends to take some more work this fall at the University here.

Demonstrating her versatility, Mrs. Ivey taught chemistry and botany at Salem College, and before that was a supervisor of home nursing for the Red Cross at National Headquarters in Washington, D. C. For the past year, she has handled the state-wide publicity for the N. C. League for Crippled Children and Adults.

Mr. Prouty, the son of Mrs. W. F. Prouty, has lived in Chapel Hill almost all his life. He was raised in a house that stood in the center of town on what is now the site of the University Methodist Church, attended Chapel Hill High School and was graduated from the University in 1938. Wadsworth Will Command Navy's Reserve School

CDR. JAMES WADSWORTH

Commander James E. Wadsworth of Chapel Hill was named Director of the newly-established Chapel Hill Branch of the Naval Reserve Officers Training School for Durham-Raleigh.

The announcement was made by Captain H. D. Crockford, director of NROS activities in this area. A graduate of the University here, Commander Wadsworth is now Director of Housing at the University. Commissioned in 1942, he has been active in reserve units in the area since 1947.

Married to the former Lallah Fitts Palmer of Warrenton, Commander Wadsworth has a son, James, Jr., and a daughter, Ann.

Commander Wadsworth will assume his new duties immediately as the new NROS branch for Chapel Hill begins operation this week.

Letter to 'Mr. X'

Dear Sir,
This letter is addressed to Mr. X of the Chapel Hill community. I do not know who Mr. X is or where he lives—but I am sure he will recognize himself.

Some time on or about September 5, Mr. X, you stopped your car near the overpass where the Durham and Raleigh roads cross, just before Glen Lennox. Just off the right side of the highway, in the woods on the Chapel Hill side of Glen Lennox, you abandoned seven

Home Too Early to Get in New House

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph McCullister and their three younger children returned Friday from Chautauque, N. Y., where they had spent the summer. They had expected to move directly into their new house at 507 Morgan Creek Road, but had to postpone that because the house is not yet finished. They are living temporarily in Durham.

Of the three children, Bill and Reed are in the Glenwood Elementary School, and Ellen is three years old. An older son, Douglas, is with the U. S. Army in Germany. He will be released from the service at the end of October and will be at home from then till February, when he will enter Syracuse University as a member of the freshman class.
