

'Cats-Hillsboro to Clash Tonight for Orange Grid title

Chapel Hill High School's football team, looking for its fourth win in five outings, travels to Hillsboro tonight (Friday) for its annual tussle with the undefeated Hillsboro eleven for the county scholastic football championship.

If comparative scores mean anything, the Hillsboro Wildcats should trim the Chapel Hill Wildcats. Hillsboro has defeated Cary, 20-0, and trimmed Southern, 14-0, while playing the strong Northern team to a 13-13 tie. In its other game, Hillsboro beat Oxford, 20-6.

Chapel Hill, on the other hand, lost to Northern 19-13, while defeating Cary 13-0 and edging past Southern 6-0 on a wet field last Friday night. In its other game Chapel Hill whipped Selma, 27-13.

Hillsboro features a balanced attack, running and passing with equal facility. The big man in the line for Coach Glenn Auman's team is Garland Spangler, who was All-Eastern last year as a junior. In the backfield, Glenn Collins has been as hard a running fullback as there is in the conference this year. Collins and Rodney Tolar, a guard, are co-captains of the team.

Coach Bob Culton of Chapel Hill, whose team pulled a big upset by tying the favored Hillsboro team last year, 13-13, says, "If we play the type of ball we're capable of playing, we have as good a chance as they of winning. Our boys have shown a lot of hustle this week, and I'm looking for them to play their best game to date."

Chapel Hill for the year will be outlined and the department chairmen introduced, after which there will be a social hour. Mrs. Claude Shotts is president of the club. Members may take part in the activities of any or all of the club's departments, chairs of which are as follows: Mrs. J. S. Henninger, literature department; Mrs. Walter Holt, health and welfare; Mrs. F. J. LeClair, American home; Mrs. Florence Highsmith, arts and crafts, and Mrs. J. A. Warren, international relations.

Chapel Hillians' Herefords, Primped And Preened, Will Be Auctioned Today

"I'm going to take five heifers and Jack Lasley is going to take a bull to the cattle sale in Durham on Friday," Mrs. Bruce Strowd said to me when we were talking over the telephone yesterday.

The Friday she meant is today, the 5th of October; for the hour for the start of the sale is 12 noon; the sale is to be at the Durham County Farm Home beyond Bragtown, and the cattle to be sold are Herefords, male and female.

I never saw anybody more joyful than Hereford owners about to sell their Herefords. As the moment of parting draws near they are as ecstatic as a bevy of young girls going to a debutante dance.

They will go out in the foulest weather to feed and water their Herefords; will stand off and gaze at them in admiration, calling their good points to the attention of whomever they can lead into the pasture to look; will stroke them lovingly and will frequently give a further demonstration of affection by muzzling them cheek to cheek; and then, consoled by a pocketful of cash, turn them over with utmost indifference to a butcher.

Once upon a time I made remarks to that effect to an acquaintance with whom I stood looking at one of her cattle on the auction block.

"Nonsense," she said. "This is a heifer and I am doing her a kind service by helping to minister to her maternal instincts. She will lead a happy life by having a dozen calves and giving thousands of gallons of milk before she goes to the butcher. Everybody's time is bound to come. Nobody, not even a Hereford, deserves to live forever."

I suppose what I have said here would apply to owners of other cattle as well as Herefords. It just happens not to hear anything about any breed but that one.

George Pendergrass is going to haul Mrs. Strowd's heifers to the place of sale on Thursday a day in advance, so that they may be put under shelter and fixed up. Fixed up, I learned from Mrs. Strowd, means having their hair brushed, and in some places curled, and being, in general, primped and preened like a stage or screen star. I was impressed by the cattol and etiquette that Mrs. Strowd told me was required for cattle sales. There's a reason. If the cattle are not made to look their best, with all the necessary aid of water and sweet-smelling soap, people won't buy 'em.—L. G.

Community Chest Evaluation Committee Will Reveal Agencies' Budgets Tonight

O. T. Watkins, James Dunn, Gordon Perry Jr., have been named as officers of the Chapel Hill Community Chest drive for this year. Emery Denny, chairman of the Fund Raising Committee of that organization, will have charge of the meeting.

The Evaluating Committee, which made its allocations at a meeting last Friday, consists of Chairman W. E. Thompson, Paul Wager, the Rev. J. R. Mansley, Gene Strowd, Bob Cox, Sayelden, Bill Cherry, W. M. Wayburn, Mrs. Marvin Allen, and Crowell Little.

The opening date of the campaign will be announced next week by Baucum, who has charge of the appointment of all personnel for the project.

Meanwhile, the Evaluating Committee of the Chest will meet tonight (Friday) at 8 o'clock at the Town Hall to present the Executive Committee of the Community Council with its recommendations for budget allocations for each of the agencies participating in the drive. If the Council agrees with the allocations, they will be adopted as they stand; if not, adjustments will be made by the Council and

Chapel Hill Chaff

Hurricane Flossy, moving northeast from the Gulf of Mexico last week, brought North Carolina a heavier rainfall than it had ever had before in such a short time.

The State had been having a bad drought over most of its area and, though it would rather not have had such a long and steady downpour, Flossy did it more good than harm.

In four days the rainfall here in Chapel Hill was 3.54 inches, which is 7 per cent of the normal fall in a whole year.

The subject of wetness reminds me that an important reason why Chapel Hill was chosen for the site of the University was its plentiful water supply. Not from rainfall, however—nothing is said in the records about its being different from other places in the region in that respect—but from springs.

A commission appointed by the University trustees to select a site selected this one in the fall of 1792. The locality was called New Hope Chapel Hill from a chapel at a road crossing a hundred yards or so south of where the Carolina Inn now stands. The words New Hope were dropped and so the name became Chapel Hill. It is said in Kemp P. Battle's History of the University: "At the northeast corner of the crossing was a chapel of the Church of England, a sad relic of the futile efforts to establish a church in North Carolina."

A description of Chapel Hill, written by William R. Davie, chief founder of the University, contains this passage: "There is nothing more remarkable in this place than the abundance of springs of the purest water." (Continued on Page 2)

Buckhorn Grange has won second place in the N. C. Grange Community Service Contest. It will receive $100 and a bronze plaque to be presented at the State Grange Convention. This grange is now meeting in their new Grange Hall.

Hope New Roads to End Football Traffic Tie-Up

The State Highway and Public Works Commission this week began surveys of a three-year-old proposed road linking U.S. 15-501 by-pass with Pittsboro Street and Pittsboro Road and serving N. C. Memorial Hospital. The surveys are of significance at this time, because a spur channel from the proposed road would heavy football traffic from the east into Navy Field and help to eliminate the traffic bottleneck at the Institute of Government building.

That bottleneck so fouled up traffic at the first football game this season that some patrons were an hour late.

Simultaneously this week, the University obtained permission from Joseph Greer to run a temporary gravel road across the corner of his lot on the northeast corner opposite the Institute of Government to eliminate a sharp left turn into Country Club Road and Ridge Lane that leaves the football parking lot. That, too, will expedite the flow of traffic, University officials said.

The State Highway Commission sent a party of about ten surveyors into Chapel Hill to plot the proposed belt between the by-pass and Pittsboro Road and the spur into Navy Field. University officials were told that clearing and grading would begin the first of next week. It is estimated that traffic will be able to get to Navy Field by the time of the next football game, October 13. The rest of the road going on to the hospital will be completed as time permits, it was said.

Service Plant Issues Explanation of Its New Power Rates and Demand Plan

By Chuck Hauser
The University, which owns Chapel Hill's electric power facilities, changed its system of charges effective with bills issued on July 1 of the past summer. Last week the University got around to explaining the new system to its customers. The need for the explanation was acute. When the rates went into effect, it was announced that most residential consumers would realize a reduction in their bills.

The University did mention that a few consumers might have to pay higher charges, but it didn't spend very much time or effort explaining the reasons behind the higher bills. It simply sent out a new rate card which was undecipherable to anyone except an electric power specialist.

The new explanation of the rate charges, mailed out to customers whose bills reflect higher charges than usual follows:

"Dear Customer: The enclosed bill is based on readings from a new type electric meter installed to replace your old meter. The new meter is designed to measure two factors: (1) The total amount of electricity which you use throughout the entire month; (2) The highest amount of electricity which you use for any

It Now Costs $1.25 To Get a Hair Cut

Haircuts went up to $1.25 per head in Chapel Hill barber shops this week.

The increase applies to adults, although some shops raised children's trims and cuts to $1.

At Carrboro, haircuts have been jumboed to $1 with crew cuts bearing an extra 25c penalty. No extra charge is made in Chapel Hill for crew cuts, however.

Mrs. John Motley Morehead Lends Her Enthusiastic Support to Projects Here

By Helene Ivey
Mrs. John Motley Morehead chaired the Chapel Hillians at the Faculty Newcomers Tea and again at the reception and dinner Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Morehead were in Chapel Hill a few days this week. They came at this particular time because the selection committee for the Morehead Scholarship Fund met Wednesday.

The Morehead Planetarium, the sun dial, and especially the scholarship plan of her husband have the enthusiastic support of Mrs. Morehead. "The careful selection of the Morehead scholars make it quite certain that their productivity in their chosen fields will be increased," was Mrs. Morehead's comment about the scholars.

Her well-modulated British accent was acquired while Mrs. Morehead lived in England. She was born in Savannah, Georgia, and had a Southern accent when her family moved to England. So in the Yankee schools she was called a Yankee. Although she visited in America many times she called England home until she and Mr. Morehead were married and she moved to Westchester County, New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Morehead first met when Mrs. Morehead was seventeen years old. They were crossing the Atlantic by boat and were seated at the same table one day. About a year later Mr. Morehead came to England and proposed to her. She, however, was very much in love with someone else and declined the honor.

By World War II, Mrs. Morehead was a widow and was living with her daughter in London. They both did war work. Although their apartment building was never hit directly it was considerably damaged. It was during this time that her only son was killed in the war.

Had been close friends through-out the years. They visited each other often. It was a friendly visit that Mr. Morehead, the widower, made about five years ago. This time they were married.

They go to England at least once a year and Mrs. Morehead sends post cards to her four grandchildren from the places she visits. She sent some from the Carolina Inn the other day. Commenting on Mrs. Morehead, Mrs. Robert B. House said, "She certainly is charming." That was the unanimous opinion of all who met her.

Home Agent and Zoning Commissioners Are Appointed by Orange County Board

Appointment of a home agent and election of the zoning commission of the Chapel Hill Zoning Commission highlighted the October meeting of the Orange County Board of Commissioners this week.

Miss Jessie Trowbridge, home agent in Iredell County, was named to a similar position in Orange, effective immediately. She went to work on Monday. Miss Trowbridge brings to Orange County a long record of valuable service to rural residents of Craven County, her station for more than a decade before going to Iredell.

Frank G. Umstead was reappointed for a five year term on the zoning commission, and Stacy Neville of near Carrboro was named to serve the unexpired term of Sandy McClamroch, who was disqualified when the area in which he lived was annexed to Chapel Hill.

Farm Agent Don Matheson reported on plans for a mammoth district livestock sale next March and a public sale of aromatic tobacco at Cedar Grove within the near future. It was also announced that Buckhorn Community had won second place in a recent national Grange contest, and that 4-H clubs would have a booth at the N. C. State Fair. Collector of delinquent taxes Frank Maddry reported collections of $992.20 during his first month of service.

Soil Bank Meets To Begin Tonight

Orange County farmers will have a chance to learn about the new Conservation Reserve part of the Soil Bank Program at three meetings to be held at the following places:

White Cross School, tonight (Friday); Aycock School Agriculture Building, Monday; Hillsboro (old courthouse), Tuesday. All meetings will begin at 7:30 p.m.

There are a lot of details in connection with this program, and a lot of limiting factors. However, it is possible for farmers to place part or all of their cropland in the Soil Bank. The government may pay up to 80% of the cost of obtaining a suitable vegetable cover to prevent erosion, or of planting this land in trees.

October 15 is the final date for signing cropland in the Conservation Reserve part of the Soil Bank for the year 1956.

District Episcopal Laymen Will Meet

Leaders of Episcopal parishes and missions in the Diocese of North Carolina will meet here on Sunday, for a "clinic" on every-member canvasses.

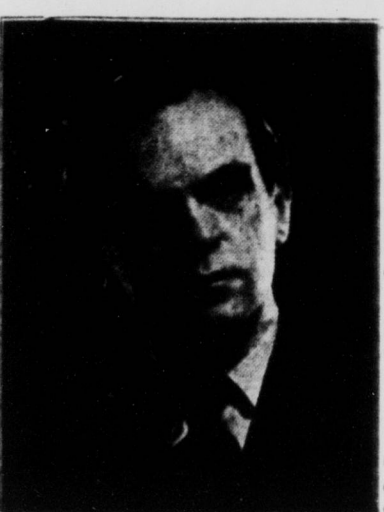

Canvassers, senior wardens, church treasurers, and finance committee chairmen have been invited to attend the one-day session, which will be held at the Chapel of the Cross.

The meeting will begin at 10.45 a. m. with a celebration of the Holy Communion, with the Rev. Richard H. Baker of Greensboro, Bishop Coadjutor of North Carolina, as the celebrant.

Tested techniques of fund-raising will be explained by three laymen who have helped make their work in their own churches. The Rt. Rev. Edwin A. Penick of Raleigh, Bishop of North Carolina, will be present.

Tickets to "Anastasia"
Reserved seat tickets to the Carolina Playmakers' production of "Anastasia" will be available Monday, October 8, to holders of season tickets and Wednesday, October 10, to the general public. They will be obtainable at 214 Abernethy Hall or by mail from Carolina Playmakers, Box 1060, Chapel Hill. All season ticket books have been sold, but single performance tickets are available at $1.50.

Great Programs Offered in Concert Series

Witold Maluczynski

Seldom, if ever, have Chapel Hill citizens been offered a greater concert program than that to be presented, starting next week, by the Chapel Hill Concert Series.

The Series will present four artists and groups to members at a total cost of only $7.50 for reserved memberships, $6.50 for unreserved memberships, and $5 for students and wives (unreserved memberships).

The memberships will entitle holders to attend the concert of Miss Eileen Farrell, soprano, next Wednesday night at Memorial Hall and the three subsequent concerts.

Miss Ferrell is said to be the possessor of one of the greatest voices this country has ever produced.

Coming January 22 will be the Chicago Opera Ballet with a company of 45, soloists, corps de ballet, complete scenery, costumes and orchestra.

They will be followed on February 24 by the Obernkirchen Children's Choir, a fairy tale of modern times. The beautiful singing and fresh innocence and charm of the 30 girls and six boys are evocative of Grimm's Fairy Tales and the fantasies of Hans Christian Anderson.

Witold Maluczynski, pianist and the most celebrated protege

of Paderewski, will play for the series on March 20. He is one of today's most gifted virtuosos.
