

United Nations Day to Be Observed Tomorrow With Many Activities

A festive, colorful community program is being planned by local civic and business groups and the University for United Nations Day on Wednesday of this week.

All the events are open to the public at no charge.

A recent planning session held at the University Extension division brought together a committee composed of representatives of several clubs and organizations. The committee is headed by Ken McIntyre, director of the Bureau of Audio-Visual Education at the Extension Division.

Planned tentatively are flag displays by Chapel Hill merchants, a tree-planting ceremony in front of the Elementary School at 3 p. m. during which merchants will close for 15 minutes, prep school programs related to U. N. activities, a television film, University student activities, exhibits of U. N. literature in libraries, and a Folk Festival slated for Hill House in the evening.

A special sermon to be used by Chapel Hill ministers was to be presented on Sunday during United Nations week, and it was suggested at the meeting that people in the community invite University foreign students into their homes sometime during the week for preparation of meals relative to their particular lands.

U. N. Day refreshments, in charge of Ed Danziger, will be available. An elm tree to be planted at the elementary school will be presented by the Chapel Hill Garden Club. Last year the club held a similar ceremony at the Chapel Hill High School and intends to make this an annual project. Foreign students will be asked to attend the tree-planting in native costume.

The film, Assignment Children, will be shown over WUNC-TV at 8 p. m. on UN Night.

At the same time, the Folk Festival, featuring ballads and dances, will be presented. Mrs. Efraim Rosenzweig and Mrs. Dan Okun, head of the Folk Festival committee, announced.

The nature of University student participation will be announced later, according to John Riebel and Ann Queen, in charge. UN Day activities will be financed through donations by Chapel Hill civic groups and other organizations.

Chairman McIntyre has urged community-wide participation and service "in some tangible way" to make the activities of the day a success.

The following representatives from Chapel Hill civic clubs and community organizations are assisting in the observance:

Harriet W. Caldwell, Daughters of the American Revolution; Mrs. Carl H. Pegg and Mrs. F. S. McConnell of the Chapel Hill Garden Club; Bob Myers, UNC News Bureau; Harvey T. Jones, James M. Wildcats Get 6-6 Tie in Oxford Game

Chapel Hill High School's favored Wildcats went to Oxford Friday night and were forced to settle for a 6-6 tie in an Eastern Class AA football game, when Coach Roy Smith's team came from behind in the third period to tie the score, with Fullback Neil Yergan plunging over the one-yard line. A 35-yard pass play from Frank Bullock to Jack Overton had put the ball on the Wildcats' three-yard stripe. The Granville County eleven then missed its chance to win the contest when the attempted extra point was missed. Chapel Hill started the game as though it would win as expected when Bobby Costello plunged over for six points from the one-yard line midway the first quarter, after another 35-yard play, this time from Sonny Carroll to Bobby Baker, had set up a score. The extra point try was no good and the Wildcats were

Kiln Is Given to Chapel Hill Schools As a Memorial to Nixon Rush Lauterer

Mrs. Myra Lauterer (right) is shown inspecting a kiln purchased for Chapel Hill public school art students with money from the Nixon Rush Lauterer memorial fund, sponsored by the Chapel Hill School Art Guild in memory of Mrs. Lauterer's 15-year-old son who was killed last March in a traffic accident. Also in the picture are Mrs. Joann Sneed (left), art teacher in the schools, and Mrs. Cornelius Lansing, co-chairman (with Mrs. George Kachergis) of the memorial fund.

Shortly after the arrival and installation of the gift, Mrs. Lansing and Mrs. Kachergis received the following letter from Mrs. Lauterer: "I would like to take this chance to formally and publicly thank the Chapel Hill School Art Guild, through you, for donating to the schools this wonderful kiln, in memory of my son, Nixon Rush Lauterer. So many people in Chapel Hill have been so generously thoughtful during these grief-filled days and weeks and months—since Nick's sudden death in March, that I want to say 'Thank you' to everyone in Nick's behalf as well as my own. "Nick, at 15 years of age, and as a sophomore in high school, enjoyed art more than any other subject or field. He loved creating things with his hands. Most of all, he wanted to be an architect. He hoped to work, when he became 16, as a draftsman for our local architect and city planner, James Webb. But he died three months before he would have reached the age of 16. "Nick never showed any signs of genius nor even any great talent in art, but he did show enough talent and drive and sustaining interest to merit my constant approval and encouragement in any field of art as a possibly serious vocation for him. "This gift of a kiln to the Chapel Hill schools in Nick's honor would be well understood and appreciated by him, more than by most young people. I know that is one reason why you chose such a gift. I doubt if another could be so appropriate. Nick would have wanted to mould and fire his clay figures in a kiln so often, if there had been one. He would have gone ahead with his ceramics and sculptures and tried to bake them and gone way beyond what he could do with modeling clay or self-hardening clay. "If another child had died and a kiln had been presented to the schools in that child's honor, Nick would have hurried home to me announcing that the school at last had a kiln of its own and that he would be allowed to use it."

Saturday of This Week Will Be Last Day of Registration

Chapel Hill Staff

By Joe Jones
A woman with a baby in her arms entered a Chapel Hill store the other day and held the baby out to a clerk, whom she knew only casually. He took it, thinking the mother wanted him to hold it while she stepped on the scales to weigh. He was greatly surprised when she walked out of the store saying, "I'll be gone only a few minutes. Please hold the baby till I get back." She returned in five or ten minutes.

A few days later the woman returned and again asked the clerk to hold the baby. This time he declined, and she had to take it with her on her errands.

A week or so afterwards the woman entered the store accompanied by her mother, whom she introduced to the clerk, saying, "Mother, this is the man who kindly held the baby while I went to the bank." The introduction was followed by peals of laughter from both women.

A person who writes for a newspaper has to be very conscious of the spelling of names. There are a number of Chapel Hill names I have to watch myself on. I usually have to consult the directory to make sure whether it is the Gordon B. Cleavelands or the Frederic N. Cleavelands who have that extra e in their name. Even more care must be used in stories dealing with the Richard J. Calhouns or the Richard P. Calhouns.

Some other names I have to watch out for are Robert Canada (so easy to misspell as Robert); Dr. Hedgpeth (often misspelled Hedgepeth); Ken Putnam (often misspelled Putnam).

Prominent Leaders to Speak Here

A top labor leader, India's chief delegate to the UN, and the Vice-President of the United States are among the speakers tentatively scheduled to visit the University campus during 1956-57 under the sponsorship of the Carolina Forum.

Forum Chairman James Holmes has released the following tentative list: Harry P. Cain, former senator from the state of Washington and advocate of civil liberties; Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois, leading Midwestern liberal in the Senate and noted economist; V. K. Krishna Menon, chairman of the Indian delegation to the United Nations; Vice President Richard M. Nixon; Senator Strom Thurmond, leader in States Rights and only senator ever elected on a write-in vote; and Walter Reuther, vice-president of the newly-formed AFL-CIO.

The Forum, speaker presentation agency of the UNC Student Government, attempts to bring to the campus "a cross-section of the various philosophies abroad today."

Three Presidents of the United States, several ambassadors from European nations and Asia, and various Congressmen and Supreme Court Justices have appeared in past years.

Hollington K. Tong, ambassador of the Chinese Republic to the United States, made a Forum-sponsored talk here during September, as first speaker for 1956-57.

Mrs. Gillin Gives Talk
Mrs. John Gillin talked about her recent tour of Latin American countries last Thursday evening at a dinner meeting of the Chapel Hill Altruism Club at the Carolina Inn. She described the club activities and political and civic privileges of the women of those countries.

Pansy Sale Deadline
Tomorrow (Wednesday) is the deadline for ordering pansies from the Oakview Garden Club. Orders may be telephoned to Mrs. W. D. Poe at phone 9-3636 or to Mrs. Max Saunders at phone 9-3616.

On Selection Committee
Prof. E. W. Noland has been named on a selection committee of the National Woodrow Wilson Fellowship Program to recruit outstanding people for college and University teaching.

The registration of voters for the November 6 general election will continue through Saturday, October 27, in all precincts here and throughout the county. The registration books will be open all day Saturday, October 27; on other days till October 27; they will be open at the homes of the registrars. Challenge day will be November 3.

No new registration is required of persons who were registered for the last general election or last primary. However, those who have not previously registered or have recently qualified through age or residence must register now if they are to vote on November 6. Persons who have moved from one precinct to another in the county within 30 days of election time should vote in the precinct where they are registered.

Anybody who is not sure of his voting eligibility should check with his precinct registrar. In the past some have confused their registration for town elections with that for county elections and found themselves unregistered and ineligible when they went to the polls.

Joe Walker Helps Make Potts Happy
Of the 6,000 persons who braved the inclement weather to attend the Orphanage Bowl football game in Raleigh Saturday night, probably the happiest was Buzzy Potts, a famous clown now a patient at Gravelly Sanatorium.

The reason: Buzzy renewed his friendship with Emmett Kelly, the celebrated clown of Ringling Brothers, Barnum & Bailey Circus, television and motion pictures.

It was made possible by the generosity of Joe Walker's Funeral Home. Mr. Walker donated the use of his ambulance and drivers to take Mr. Potts from the Sanatorium to Riddick Stadium in Raleigh so that the two clowns could get-together.

They had a wonderful time before the game and during the first half, and they weren't talking football. Only show business.

Emmett had been brought to Raleigh by Sudan Temple Shriners to appear at the game and to entertain the children at the Methodist, Oxford, and Catholic Orphanages.

To be eligible to register a person must be over 21, must never have been convicted of a felony, and must have lived in the precinct at least 30 days and in the state at least one year.

The five Chapel Hill precincts and their boundaries, polling places, and registrars are as follows:

Precinct 1 at Town Hall; Registrar, Mrs. Henry E. Royall, 105 Noble St.; bounded by West Franklin St., North Columbia St. to North St., and Airport Road. Precinct 2 at Presbyterian student hut back of Telephone Exchange; Registrar, Mrs. Paul Shearin, 341 Tenny Circle; bounded by East Franklin St., Durham Road, South Columbia St. to North St., and Airport Road.

Precinct 3 at Woollen Gymnasium; Registrar, Harold Walters, 714 Greenwood Road; bounded by South Columbia St., Pittsboro Road, the 15-501 Bypass, Durham Road, and East Franklin St.

Precinct 4 at the Cone House at the High School; Registrar, Mrs. Marjorie Applewhite, 220 McCauley St.; bounded by West Franklin St., North Columbia St. and Pittsboro Road.

Precinct 5 at Glenwood School; Registrar, Mrs. Lindsay Neville, 4 Oakwood Drive; all municipal area beyond the 15-501 Bypass.

Lincoln Wallops Person High, 79-6

Lincoln High School's Tigers celebrated homecoming in grand style in the Carrboro Lions Park Friday night, pulverizing hapless Person County Training School, 79-6, as 13 touchdowns poured through the Oxford team's leaky defenses to the delight of the partisan onlookers.

Scoring touchdowns for the Chapel Hill team, which won its sixth game against no defeats, were James Atwater, with three, Bobby Norwood, with two, Roy Bynum, Winifred Johnson, George McCauley, Preston Smith, Alonzo Clark, Fred Weaver and Braxton Foushee, one each. Person County, which was never a contender in the one-sided affair, scored its only touchdown when Ned Johnson took a 30-yard pass to score.

The game was preceded by a colorful afternoon parade; and during the halftime intermission Miss Mary Mason was crowned Miss Lincoln High School by members of the football team.
