Price of Coffee Is Coming Down

Coffee prices are moving down in Chapel Hill and Carrboro groceries, a survey revealed this week after announcement of wholesale price reductions by principal suppliers.

Both chain and independent store managers said that of the so-called premium companies, Maxwell House had put out a new price sheet, and that usually other coffee houses follow in line in this area.

Ernest Riggsbee of Andrews-Riggsbee Grocery in Carrboro and Vance Hogan of Fowler's Food Store said that the new Maxwell sheet indicated a price drop of at least three cents per pound. Manager Bill Alexander of the A & P Store and Dennis Williams of the Glen Lennox Colonial Store said the lower prices would be reflected in company and special brands.

It is possible, all grocers said, that the price reductions may be

CHAPEL HILL CHAFF

By Louis Graves

I have never known any other couple to have for a baby sitter such an exalted person as the one who serves Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shaffer. When they were returning from a dinner to the Sir Walter hotel in Raleigh one night last week and I met them in the lobby, I learned that the Chief Justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court was up in their room taking care of their child for them. The explanation of why Chief Justice Winborne is willing, indeed eager, to perform this service free for the Shaffers whenever the opportunity offers is that their child is his grandchild.

Mrs. Lathrop Morehead recently gave me several newspapers of 50 to 54 years ago (1898 to 1902) containing reports of Virginia-Carolina football games. She found them among the things left by her late husband, my fellow student of that era. One was the Richmond Dispatch recording the game on Thanksgiving Day 1902. That was the last football game I ever played in and I looked through the account of it hoping to find that I had distinguished myself in some way. It was a vain search, though. The reporter evidently saw no sparkle in my performance, and I must say there is nothing in my memory to refute this judgment. The score was a tie, 12 to 12.

On the front page of the Dispatch was a three-column-wide drawing of William P. Jacobs in the act of making a 35-yard run. The caption said that this was

Selden to Read Dickens' Carol

Samuel Selden, chairman of the UNC Department of Dramatic Art and director of the Carolina Playmakers, will present his traditional reading of Charles Dickens' beloved classic, "A Christmas Carol," on Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the Playmakers Theatre.

Students, faculty members, townspeople and particularly children are invited to attend the program, sponsored by the Playmakers.

The annual reading of the famous Christmas story of Scrooge and Tiny Tim was begun at Chapel Hill by Frederick H. "Proff" Koch, founder of the Playmakers. During his lifetime "Proff" gave 278 readings of the story all over America, including four performances at Town Hall in New York City. Since Mr. Koch's death, Mr. Selden has been giving the annual reading both in Chapel Hill and other towns in North Carolina.

Preceding the performance and forming interludes between the staves of the story, edited by Mr. Selden, selected recordings of Christmas music will be played.

The Philological Club will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, December 11, in the faculty lounge of the Morehead Planetarium. Professor Lawrence A. Sharpe of the University's Romance Languages Department will present a paper on "Some Highlights of Portuguese Literature." All faculty members and graduate students are invited.

Only Five More Days Remain to Adopt A Family to Make Happy at Christmas

Only five more days remain to adopt a family for the Empty Stocking Fund.

As of December 1, only 150 adoptions had been made of a possible 600 destitute families. One still has time to adopt a family, buy for it, and deliver the boxes to the old Institute of Government building on East Franklin Street to make certain some unfortunate families have, at least, a happy Christmas.

Here are descriptions of three most destitute families whom you may help:
Mr. L. is sixty-two years old. About ten years ago he and his wife took into their home a boy who had been abandoned by his mother. Shortly after this Mrs. L. died. Mr. L. arranged for the boy to be cared for while he worked. When the boy entered school it was apparent he was far from normal. Mr. L.

No Decision Here On Higher Interest

Whether Chapel Hill banks will hike their interest rates on savings deposits was pure speculation yesterday.

The Federal government this week authorized insured banking institutions throughout the nation to increase their interest rates on savings up to 3 per cent, which represents a one-half of one per cent raise.
Local bankers said the government authorization had not been considered by their boards of directors, and, in any event, any decision on the matter would be in the light of individual banking policies and earnings.

Commissioners to Meet on Tuesday

The Orange County Board of Commissioners will meet at the Chapel Hill Town Hall Tuesday night at 8 o'clock for organization and possible discussion of two matters affecting the local area.

One involves changes in the statute governing the Chapel Hill Fire District and the other pertains to a proposed recreation bond referendum.

Because of the annexation to the town of certain areas formerly within the fire district, changes in the statute have been proposed. The commissioners on Monday decided to await further information and a full board before acting.

The same decision was reached after Chapel Hill Jaycees presented their proposal for a referendum on a $250,000 bond issue for improvement of the Robinson Street Community Center and construction of another.

The matter was presented by William S. Stewart, and the Rev. Charles Hubbard, a member of the State Recreation Commission, also spoke briefly.

The commissioners more than likely on Tuesday will set the date for a public hearing at which both proponents and opponents will be heard.

R. J. M. Hobbs, who is chairman of the commissioners and who was sick last Monday, is said to be improved and is expected to be able to attend the meeting on next Monday night, but his recovery was deferred because of his illness.
