

CHAPEL HILL CHAFF

J. J.

When Dr. Newton's office called last week and said it was time for my semi-annual dental check-up and would 2 p.m. next Tuesday be suitable I replied yes it would be fine. Next day I learned I'd be out of town this week and phoned to postpone the appointment.

"I'm sorry," the girl said, "we don't seem to have any appointment for you. I've checked the book and can't find it."

"I'm sure you told me 2 p.m. Tuesday when I called yesterday," I said.

"You must have talked with somebody else yesterday," was the reply. "I'm just here part time. But I'll check again to make sure."

And after a few seconds, "No, it isn't here. But we'll be happy to make another appointment for you, Mr. Owens."

Her last word was a full explanation of the difficulty. She had been looking for Owens instead of Jones, which she now quickly found in the book.

Though the names don't look alike, Joe Jones, over the phone, is often mistaken for George Owens. That's what the girl at Dr. Newton's had thought I said.

I have had more than one suit with the name George Owens inked on the lining because somebody at a dry-cleaning place had thought it the name I gave over the phone when asking that the suit be picked up.

Once when I called the

Two Republicans Among Candidates

With two Democrats and one Republican vying for the State Senate seat and seven Democrats and one Republican contending for the three posts vacant on the Orange County Board of Commissioners, the political race promises to be heated before and after the May 31 primaries.

N. C. Symphony To Give Annual Concert Here Tuesday, April 30

Adults will be admitted this year to the children's concert by the North Carolina Symphony at 2 p.m. Wednesday, April 30, in Memorial Hall. The admission will be $1. The annual evening performance of the Symphony will be held the same night in Memorial Hall at 8:30.

This marks one of the few times that adults have been invited to attend children's concerts, giving parents a chance to observe the educational work of the North Carolina Symphony in action.

Each year the Symphony plays free concerts to 150,000 Tar Heel youngsters. In weeks preceding the concert the children work in the classroom, learning about the Orchestra, the composers, the music they will hear, and learning and practicing the songs they will play and sing with the Orchestra.

For this work, the local classroom teachers utilize materials provided by the Symphony. In many cases the teachers have attended the Symphony teachers workshops held here each year by Mrs. Fred B. McCall, director of the Children's Concert Division. This year, the Chapel Hill concert will be attended by children from Chapel Hill, Glenwood, Northside, Carrboro, and White Cross Elementary schools. Approximately 2000 children are expected to attend.

In addition to hearing music played by the 60-piece Orchestra, directed by Benjamin Swalin, the children will participate in the concert. One group playing tonettes, psalteries, orchestra bells, auto harps, violins, recorders, clarinets, and flutes, will play along with the Orchestra in one stanza of O Worship the King and one stanza of Happy Wanderer. These numbers are also "Everybody Sing" numbers in which the children sing along with the Orchestra. Many of the children in

PTA Thrift Shop Moves

Hard work and the generous supplying of trucks for the moving enabled the Parent Teacher Association's Thrift Shop to have its grand opening in the Ogburn Furniture Market Building last Friday. It had been closed for two weeks during which time bins and shelves were painted and goods were moved from the old location on West Franklin Street.

Among those who painted and helped in the moving were Mrs. Joseph Bunnell, Mrs. Stuart Chapin, Mrs. Jake Wade, Mrs. R. E. L. Barnes, Rogers Wade, Mrs. William Fleming, Mrs. J. R. Ellis, Mrs. Maurice Whittinghill, Mrs. James Roberts and Mrs. Earle Wallace.

Trucks were made available for the moving by the Ogburn Furniture Market, The Johnson-Stroud-Ward Furniture Company, and by Herbert Pendergraft's Service Station.

Under the management of Mrs. D. W. Coudriet the store will be open to the public from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday of each week.

All proceeds of the Thrift Shop are used to pay for the many P.T.A. projects in the Chapel Hill Schools.

People are urged to bring to the Thrift Shop any clothing or household goods that are no longer being used. Vacuum cleaners, garden tools, kitchen, utensils, dishes, furniture of all kinds, toys and other items are requested by customers daily.

Mayors And Lawyers Back Law Day Here

The Mayors of Chapel Hill, Carrboro and of Hillsboro have joined the thousands of other mayors throughout the nation to proclaim May 1 as Law Day U.S.A.

The object of having the day observed is to get the people acquainted with the meaning of rule by law and rule by men so that they will be able to know why rule by law is so very urgent. The members of a special committee of the Orange County Bar Association indicated that the lawyers also hope by this means to convince the people that we need to be ruled by international law to maintain peace.

The sixteen members of the Orange County Bar Association will make every effort to translate this important message to the people of the county. Any civic, social or school group that may want a program on this subject, need only call a member of the special committee or any other lawyer in the county to get a speaker. Local Board Owns Title To Schools

By Helene Ivey

"I was misled by Bob Thompson," said Charles F. Carroll, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, speaking to a delegation from Carrboro last Friday night as he clarified statements attributed to him which appeared in an Orange County newspaper on the proposed merger of Carrboro and White Cross schools with the Chapel Hill school unit.

Mr. Thompson is a Raleigh public relations man hired by the Carrboro School Development Council which is fighting the school merger and a 15 cent special school supplement tax. It is alleged that the Thompson agency is being paid $2,000 to represent the anti-merger and anti-school supplement tax faction in the special election in Carrboro and White Cross May 20.

The Orange County News quoted Superintendent Carroll as saying that the Chapel Hill Board of Education would be "cutting off the nose to spite the face" if it refused to accept the pupils from Carrboro and White Cross—if the school merger and the tax supplement vote failed to carry in Carrboro and White Cross.

Mr. Carroll was further quoted in the newspaper as saying that in his opinion the title of a certain school building (Lincoln High School) would revert to Orange County if the Chapel Hill Board of Education refused to continue to educate the pupils from Carrboro and White Cross.

The newspaper article also quoted Mr. Carroll as saying that Carrboro could establish its own high school and perhaps use the soon-to-be-vacated elementary school building in the town of Carrboro for that purpose.

Mr. Carroll denied that he made certain of the statements ascribed to him and said that he had been "misled" into making other statements.

Delegation
The Carrboro delegation to whom Mr. Carroll was speaking was composed of Walter Clark, R. Dobson and John Martin and represented the Carrboro Citizens Committee for Better Schools, an organization that has been promoting the school merger.
