Lucky is he with the wit to find the truth, and the courage to practice what is believed.

The Chapel Hill Winston-Salem, Mark Hill Weekly

Serving the Chapel Hill Area Since 1923

CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA, SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 17, 1963

Published Every Sunday and Wednesday

The Class of 1913 will come back for its fifty-year reunion this coming Commencement. They are amply entitled on their own recognizance to all the honors they will receive. And I shall regard them also with romantic veneration though I am personally about as aged as they are. I think I can say that the whole Class of 1916 venerates the Class of 1913. They were the Seniors who inducted us Freshmen into the wonders of the University.

Orange Tax Brochure Wins Award

Volume 41, Number 14

Orange County has been awarded first place in North Carolina for the best property tax bill presentation to its citizens.

The competition was sponsored by the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners. Orange was presented the top award on the basis of a brochure, mailed to all taxpayers in the County, which described simply and graphically where the County's money comes from and how it is spent

The brochure was conceived and designed by Tax Supervisor Sam Gattis, in consultation with the Board of County Commissioners. It also included a message to citizens from the County Commissioners explaining a property revaluation now being made and urging citizens to take an active interest in government.

Runnersup in the competition were Forsyth and Alamance Counties, with honorable mention going to Davidson, Duplin, Onslow and Surry Counties.

Roscoe Martin of Chapel Hill, field representative of the Association of County Commissioners, said the competition was intended to stimulate citizen interest in tax matters and to provide an interchange of ideas among counties of the State.

We were green and striving, They were sophisticated and already in possession of all the honors we aspired to. Who could surpass the easy good-natured command of Walter Stokes, President of he Senior Class? In those days that official functioned exactly as does the later President of the Student Body. In our eyes Walter was second in importance only to President Venable and Dean E. K. Graham. We saw him daily with them in chapel and we thought he played his part as well as they did theirs. He was not only the chief of student government. He was chairman and leading spirit of a new element in the awakening University. This was the Greater Council in which faculty and students looked into the future and made plans for advancing. Walter had all the abilities of a Renaissance scholar and gentleman. His record ran the gamut of possible student achievement it seemed to us

5 Cents a Copy

Who could equal the prowess and the combination of modesty, merriment and constantly emerging gifts of Bill Tillett? He was All-American to us as quarterback of the football team. Unfortunately he had to feature more on the defense than offense. The big teams rolled over us with big scores, but Bill stopped them many more times than they ran over him in mass formations. Then in his senior year he blossomed out as orator, debater, writer, and cogent thinker. He was at one and the same time a wheel-horse in the Y.M.C.A. and the biggest hell-raiser in the (Continued on Page 2) have discovered it in time to get out of the house. The log-cabin structure was one old.

The William B. Parker house

Mr. Parker said that if the fire, which he believed started in a faulty wood-stove flue, had occurred at night while he and his wife were asleep, they might not of the oldest in this region. Mr.

Parker said he believed part of it may have been over 100 years and a brick chimney standing.

ment grader was coming along the dirt road to the house at the time. The noise of the grader drowned the noise of the flames.

Mr. Parker said he was looking out the window when he eventual.

ly heard a noise "that didn't seem to belong there," and saw the shadow of smoke coming from the

the fire moved through the house

extremely fast, he said, and he could do nothing when he discovered it. A revolving chimney

cap had blown off the chimney

about two hours before the fire threatening nearby woods.

Record Tag

A total of 11,680 North Carolina license plates had been sold when

Stancell Motor Company closed

its license plate window in East-

at Stancell's from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. throughout the year. Friday midnight was the deadline after which 1963 plates must be displayed on all operating vehicles.

was 7839. Total car tags, including 200 CF series plates sold first,

which 128 were farm truck tags.

motorcycles and 198 trailers.

plates of all kinds were sold.

Truck tags sold totaled 849, of License plates were sold for 34

About 2,500 city tags were sold.

On Friday alone, 1.237 license

Charles Stancell, proprietor of Stancell's, said he had sold more tags before the deadline this year than ever before. During all of 1962 about 10,000 tags were sold,

he said, and almost 10.000 tags

had been sold as of Friday al-

Persons purchasing new cars

during the year are not required to buy a new license plate. The license plate transfers from car

to car with the owner.

1

ready this year.

The last CH series sold Friday

License plates will be on sale

gate Friday afternoon.

was 8.044.

Sales Here

second floor.

started.

terday afternoon.

Smoking Remains Of The Parker House

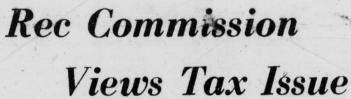

Council Fails To Decide 100-Year-Old Morgan Creek On Extra Chest Campaign House Razed

By CLYDE WILSON

at the end of the Mt. Carmel The Community Council Thurs-Church Road off the Farrington day night failed to reach a de-Road burned to the ground yescision on whether to hold a spring Community Chest drive. Reason: Mr. and Mrs. Parker lost every. only six of the Council's fifteen thing in the fire but their lives, members were present. their dogs, and a few scattered The Council had been schedulitems of furniture and belonged to consider the possibility of holding a drive to make up the $10,000 not collected in the fall Community Chest drive. Chairman Roy Martin set the next meeting of the Council for Thursday, Feb. 23, at 7:30 p.m., in Town Hall.

Mrs. Caro Mae Russell, executive secretary of the Chapel Hill-Carrboro Red Cross and Dean E. A. Brecht, Red Cross chairman, urged the Council to hold another drive.

> "The Red Cross cannot close down for three months," Dean Brecht said

Mrs. Russell and Dean Brecht expressed the belief that the fall Community Chest Drive had fallen short because not all possible contributors had been contacted. "The Council just shouldn't accept a 24 per cent defeat," Mrs. Russell said. "If you go ahead

UNC Asks State For More Funds

SUNDAY

ISSUE

and the second states and

Spiralling Students Costs Cited By President Friday

Consolidated University President William Friday Thursday told the Joint Appropriations Committee of the General Assembly that the State would have to do better than it had been advised to do if the University is to keep up with the demands of the times.

Mr. Friday asked for restoration to the 1968-65 University budget items requested by the University, but, not recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission.

UNC Chancellor William Aycock and Chancellors John Caldwell and Otis Singletary of State and Woman's Colleges joined Mr. Friday with their own presentations to the Appropriations Committee.

The 85 Committee members listened quietly, asked a few questions, and made no comment. They will consider the requests and then make recommendations to the Legislature.

Mr. Friday said he was "generally grateful" for the University's treatment at the hands of the Advisory Budget Commission. The University's prime requests were for faculty salary increases and library books. These had been recommended in full by the Budget Commission,

Mr. Friday also said the University had fared well in the Bud-Commission's capital improvements recommendations, but he had reservations.

He said one aspect of the recommended budget "troubles me deeply." The Commission's recommendation that dormitory construction at Chapel Hill be 100 per cent self-liquidating, instead of the requested 50 per cent, was "unsuitable," he said.

He pointed out that students are currently bearing $20 million in self-liquidation costs, and that making a new men's dormitory entirely self-liquidating would add a total of $30 a year to the expense of residents of the new dormitory.

University from 1902 to 1905-and Mr. Friday pointed to "the full was important not because of any significance of the current inflationary trend," and state, "A public state institution goes against one of the cardinal principles of its constitutional basis" if one of the criteria for entering the University is the ability to pay. "By increasing the cost to students we are to a marked degree working against ourselves," said Mr. Friday. "Already we have reached the point where some students, seeing the costs, immediately conclude that going to (UNC) is a privileged affair, and (Continued on Page 2)

Robert Rice Reynolds, who per. suaded the voters to call him "Our Bob" and won two terms in the United States Senate, died Wednesday at 78 in his home in Asheville.

He was undoubtedly one of the most picturesque North Carolinians of any era. One of his spectacular performances was to marry five times. The last of his wives. Evalyn Walsh McLean, daughter of the heiress of copper millions who was famous as the owner of the famous Hope Diamond, was his junior by 46 years. After her death 17 years ago he lived with his daughter in Asheville Reynolds was popular in Washington not only among North Carolina visitors, every one of whom he greeted with warmth as though he had been expecting him as his best friend, and among his political associates, but in international social circles because of his lively autobiographical stories and charm

He was a student here in the Town To Purchase New Fire Engine

truck ahead of schedule. The Board of Aldermen in a special meeting yesterday morning voted for the purchase after receiving an offer from American LaFrance Fire Engine Co. to sell the Town an almost-new engine at a substantial reduction in price.

The engine, now in Greenville, S. C., had been delivered to the Greenville Airport to fill in for a special crash truck on order, and is virtually unused. List price for the engine is $27,232. Chapel Hill will get it for $20,500.

The Aldermen had projected purchase of a new engine next year, planning to spend around

SCENES

La da la

JOE PAGE, nigh frazzled trying to keep up with his business. pleading against a Valentine Day's meeting of the Board of Aldermen. . . . Fifty-mile hike craze infecting the staff of the Rathskeller. . . . TETE LLOYD huddled over the radio in CLAR-ENCE'S during tense moments of the UNC-State basketball game. . . . Morehead Planetarium administrative assistant DON HALL emerging starry-eyed after narrating the "Skies Down Under" four times in one day. ... CHARLES HOPKINS standing pensively in the check-out line at the A&P. . . . Only one yellow post left standing now in the intersection of Franklin and Henderson Streets. . . . Lady walking up to the cigarette machine in the Carolina Coffee Shop, asking a waitress, "Do you have to put money in these things to get cigarettes." and being told. "No, only for long distance calls". . . Grad student boasting that he'd hoofed it all the way into Town from Glen-Lennox, with his wife following anxiously in the car. . . . JOE JONES and SPIKE SAUNDERS striding purposefully along Capitol Square in Raleigh Thursday. SPERO DORTON beside himself, with glee over UNC's signing DANNY TALBOTT, the Rocky Mount high school football phenomenon.

Chapel Hill will get a new fire $23,000, half of which would be paid by the University. The new engine is more elaborate than the one projected for purchase, having a more powerful motor, greater pump capacity and an enclosed cab. Actual saving to the Town will be around $1,500; the University will receive an additional $1,500 savings.

Town Manager Robert Peck recommended the purchase because of the proposed annexation which will cost Chapel Hill points under the State Fire Insurance Rating Bureau system of fire protection evaluation, plus the fact that a 1942-vintage engine still in use now needs replacement as a main vehicle. Funds for purchase of the engine will come from savings on certain items in the Town Budget, and from over-collections in certain areas.

Belgian Royal

Couple To Visit Former King Leopold of Belgium and his wife, Princess Liliane, will visit the University next Friday

The royal couple will also visit Duke University and the Research Triangle. They will spend Friday night at the Carolina Inn. They will leave from Raleigh-Durham Airport Saturday.

Dr. Pierre Rijlant, professor of physiology and director of the Solvy Institute of Physiological Research in Brussels, currently is acting as an advisor at the Research Triangle.

Dr. Rijlant said the royal couple picked the Chapel Hill area to visit because of the opportunity for personal contacts here, and because Princess Liliane is interested in the area's outstanding medical facilities.

Princess Liliane will visit Memorial Hospital. She is interested in medical research and teaching. and clinical treatment of heart patients. King Leopold has his own interests: mathematics and physics. He will visit computer facilities at the Research Triangl-, UNC, and Duke.

UNC President William C. Friday is assisting in preparation for the royal visit.

By FRANCES GOINS

It burned to the ground, Should the Chapel Hill Recrealeaving only stone foundations tion Commission stay in the Community Chest? Mr. Parker said he did not dis-Chairman Bob Boyce opened cover the fire as soon as it startthe Commission's Wednesday ed because a Highway Depart-meeting with this question. With five of twelve members absent, the Commission hesitated to make a final decision.

Chapel Hill Flu Scare Is Easing

Flu seems to be showing signs If he had discovered the fire of abating in the Chapel Hill as soon as it started he might have been able to put it out, but area.

> Doctors' fingers are crossed, but the University infirmary's load of flu-like cases has not increased since earlier this week, and elsewhere in Town incidence of the malady is at least steady if not dropping.

State Foresters came a short District Health officer Dr. O. while after the fire started, but David Garvin said he had checkwere not able to help with the ed with the public schools and house fire itself. They extinhad found that "they don't have guished a fire in a field downas many absentées as they exwind from the house, which was pected.'

He said a good many citizens had had "flu-like signs and symptoms," but that the number of these had been "nothing of any greatly exaggerated pro-· portions.

Dr. Garvin said he was optimistic about the flu situation. "A little warm weather would help it a lot," he said. (Continued on Page 2)

"I don't believe in riding two horses. Pick a winner-recreation tax-and stay with it," said Commission member Douglas Sessoms. "We must convince the people of Chapel Hill the program should be supported by taxes." Joe Page agreed that the Commission ought to go with Community Chest all the way or to drop out. Mr. Boyce had been thinking of "phasing out of the Chest by asking for less money each year.

'Staying with the Chest will lead to controversy when the tax election comes up in May," said member Mrs. John Clark.

The chairman said the differential fee system is the answer to criticism of supporting with Town taxes a recreation program which includes people outside of town.

Recreation Director Compton Shelton said about one-third of the people who use the Roberson Street Center are from outside Chapel Hill. The Center's $12,200 budget is almost half of the entire recreation budget for 1963. The Commission has already adopted a budget of $24,000 for an eight-month program (Jan.-Aug.) Mrs. Clark was asked by a townsman if the Commission would take over the Roberson Street swimming pool if the recreation tax is approved. "As it is now, the swimming and get that money you will come out with a much stronger Community Chest.'

Chairman Roy Martin confirmed that there were 276 fewer contributors in 1962 than in 1961. Mrs. Marian Davis, program chairman of the Bright Leaf Girl Scout Council, and Robert Boyce, chairman of the Chapel Hill Recreation Commission, expressed disapproval of another fund drive. Mrs. Davis said she feared a drive now would have an "adverse affect on 1963." 'The Council agreed to endorse the appeal of the Chapel Hill As-(Continued on Prge 2)

Charles and the second s Weather Report

Mostly cloudy and cold today with chance of rain or snow.

Hi	gh	Low	Prec.
Wednesday	42	25	-
Thursday	55	18
Friday	36	19	-
Saturday	39	13	-

Maximum temperatures for the past week in Chapel Hill have averaged close to normal for this time of year, while minimum temperatures have been 6 degrees below normal. Latest weather information indicates that Chapel Hill and the rest of North Carolina will have an exceedingly cold March, with temperatures well below normal. March also figures to be drier than usual.

studying he did but because of his being on the football team and his all-round attractivenessand came again in 1907 to study law. Of the few people living in Chapel Hill now old enough to remember him are Dr. William Jacocks, Alfred W. Haywood, T. F. Hickerson, and Phillips Russell, all of the class of 1904, and myself. And of course Clyde Eubanks knew him well, and Louis R. Wilson probably not so well. Bob loved to go forth on adventures. One kind that he fav-(Continued on Page 2)

Playmaker Glue Holds Up 'Rhino'

The Caroliva Playmakers present RHINOCEROS, a play by Eugene Ionesco translated by Derek Prouse. Production designed and directed by Tommy Rezzuto. Costumes by Irene Smart Rains. Lighting by Ralph Swanson. The cast: Anne West, Mary Watson, Janice Moore, Larry Warner, John Crockett, Hyman Field, Aruold Wengrow, Wesley Van Tassel, George Gray, Juanese Hatten, Robert Malone, Harry Callahan, and Jim Zellner. Performances were given on February 13 through 16. The last two performances will be given today at 2:30 and 8:30.

By JOE NAGELSCHMIDT

The implications of this dramatic allegory are so frightening. especially in the third act, that they become almost unbearable. Eugene Ionesco simply illustrates the gradual process by which man reduces himself to a herd-unit, a total conformist who is safe and comfortable in the company of myriad others who chose the same degrading one-way route to absolute security. Perhaps no other large beast could have served lonesco's purpose. Certainly not the elephant, which is a friendly. trunk-waving creature of the circus; nor the hippopotamus, which is a kind of submerged comedian that enjoys its perpetual bath. The rhinoceros, that enormous, ugly mammal which is known for its angry moods, its fleetness in an emergency and its imperviousness to danger, moves with a singular determination to survive. If you wished to 'pet" a rhino, you would not stroke it; affectionate caresses do not in terest it because it cannot feel them. You would have to sunch it hard, and even then it would be doubtful if one could in this manner translate feelings of friendliness for this creature. The hide is more than insensitive, being an armor-like, impenetrable substance that holds its host in comfort while presenting to the outer world a barrier against any reasonable or reasoning influence. And it grunts, which is what conformists do. While this sound is plaintive. it also is velgar, even disgusting, when hears in chorus, much like the man sound one bears, only more wight-(Continued on Page 2)-

Sett.

Lawrence Laybourne is assistant publisher of Time Magazine. Tuesday night he gave the second of a series of Journalism lectures in the UNC School of Journalism.

By J. A. C. DUNN

"I think I can give you some picture of how the week at Time moves along," said Mr. Laybourne. "It used to be nice and simple. Now some of our departments work on a Monday-Friday schedule, things that aren't too closely tied to immediate news -Books, Cinema, Art. Just about all the other departments work on a Tuesday-Saturday schedule. "Now, we have one department. The Nation, it used to be National Affairs, and that's what everybody comes to work and there's a senior editor, and he has five or six writers and five or six researchers. They all sit down together and decide the general line the section is going to take. They have a lot of wires in front of them from staffers or stringers all over the country. suggesting stories, or saying this story we must have. Some of the stories are maybes and some are absolute musts. In some departments there is only one writer and one researcher-Medicine. Religion, Education. One senior editor is in charge of all these departments, and there's no question of who's going to write which stories there. But in the other departments - The Nation, The

A Talk With Lawrence Laybourne it is, national news. On Tuesday

MR. LAYBOURNE

and so cn. "Each writer is paired up with a researcher, and not always the same one. One week it may 10

Hemisphere - the senior editor

says, 'Joe, will you take this one,'

be Susie and Bill, another week it will be Susie and Joe. A lot of our stories are of a continuing thing that's been bubbling along. it's been being interesting. and some little incident will bring it to attention. Say if we were going to do a story about Terry Sanford, the mid-stream point of his administration, the editors wouldn't have any reason to notice him unless a stringer in Raleigh or Charlotte, or one of our staff members in Washington or Atlanta brought it to their at-(Continued on Page 2)