Science Series Will Resume

The second half of the Morehead Planetarium's 1963 Summer Science Series for children begins next Monday and continues through July 19.

Over 150 children from 8 to 16 years old attended the first half of the series early in June. The dual sessions of the series have been set up this year, with additional staff, because of the popularity of the science courses. This is the fourth year the science series has been offered.

For children aged 8 through 11, Astronomy II, a continuation of Astronomy I offered in the series' first half, offers an exploration of constellations, stars, nebulae, and the Milky Way Galaxy. Sessions meet from 9-15 to 10 a.m. Monday through Friday for the two weeks the course is in session.

Also for children in the 8-11 age group, Science Sampler touches interesting aspects of the physical and natural sciences, and includes constructing projects, performing experiments, and going on field trips. Science Sampler meets from 10:15 to 11 a.m. Monday through Friday July 8-19.

For older children, between 12 and 16, an advanced Astronomy II covers not only constellations, the nature of the stars, and galaxies, but other aspects of the universe and cosmology as well. This course is offered from 1 to 2 p.m. July 8-19.

In addition, participants in Astronomy II may enroll in Applied Sciences, which follow Astronomy II from 2:15 to 3:15 p.m. Applied Science offers an opportunity for scientific experimentation, construction of individual projects, and visits to various University of North Carolina departments to watch scientific research and experimentation in action.

Both the younger and older children's versions of Astronomy II will include an evening excursion to observe the stars on one evening during the course. Children need not have been enrolled in the first half of the Summer Science Series in order to enjoy and benefit from the courses offered in the second half.

Instructor Donald Hall, administrative assistant at the Morehead Planetarium, is assisted in giving the series by Richard S. Knapp, student director of the Rice Planetarium at Stetson University, Florida. Mr.

Knapp also acts as curatorial science exhibits at the Planetarium during the summer. The fee for one student for one course is $5; for two different courses, $9; and for three different courses, $12.

On the faculty of the University, he has served as a lecturer in the Department of Radio, Television, and Motion Pictures and has taught courses in performance, production, speech, development and analysis of mass communication media, literature, composition, and short story writing.

Mr. Oettinger was also news commentator for the American Broadcasting Company's program "News of Tomorrow." Among his guests were Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, Dr. Frank P. Graham, Dean Rusk, Drew Pearson, Betty

Mrs. George Crow Back Home Again

Mrs. George Crow of 403 Patterson Place has returned to Chapel Hill from a visit to Baltimore.

George Crow Jr. and his family from Rock Hill, S. C., visited Mrs. Crow here last weekend on the way home from Baltimore.

Mrs. Sam Selden was scheduled to arrive in Chapel Hill yesterday for a visit with Mrs. Crow. She is expected to be here for about two weeks. Mr. Selden, former director of the Carolina Playmakers and chairman of the UNC Department of Dramatic Art, is directing a play this summer at Harrodsburg, Ky. The Seldens now live at Los Angeles. Mr. Selden is chairman of the Department of Dramatic Art at UCLA.

Brave Editor Topic Of Morrison Piece

Joseph L. Morrison of the UNC School of Journalism is the author of an article in the current Journalism Quarterly, published at the University of Minnesota. The article, "Main Currents in Brann's Iconoclast," deals with the one-man journal of William Cowper Brann, whose spectacular prose won him a nationwide audience in the 1890's.

Brann's free-wheeling opinions led, as Dr. Morrison shows, to the editor's assassination on the streets of Waco, Texas, in 1899.

The wounded Brann whirled, drew his revolver, and shot his assailant. Both men died the next day.
