Adjustment Board To Meet Tuesday

The Chapel Hill Board of Adjustment Tuesday will consider reissuing or extending a special use permit to Whid Powell for construction on Ephesus Church Road.

The Board meets at 8 p.m. in the Town Hall. The construction in question is a headquarters building for the North Carolina Heart Association and a convalescent and nursing home, to be built on adjacent lots.

A special use permit for both buildings was issued November 20, 1962. But rules of procedure require the use permit to be extended, or reissued, if a building permit or certificate of occupancy has not been issued within six months of the date of issue of the original special use permit.

The Heart Association building is now under construction. Building Inspector Donald Archer said he knew of no question as to whether Mr. Powell's project could proceed as first planned.

Anti-Segregation Strategy Planned

The Open Business Committee began holding civil disobedience workshops last Thursday. They are being held nightly during the week at St. Joseph's Church on Rosemary Street. Training is being given in sit-ins, sit-downs and other methods of non-violent protest.

At the Friday night meeting, the executive committee did not indicate when or where civil disobedience tactics would be used, or any probable starting date.

At the same time, the executive committee members made it clear that they would not agree to halt the current demonstrations and picketing.

James Gardner, a member of the executive committee, said that a request would soon be received from Mayor Sandy McClamroch for a moratorium on demonstrations. Mr. Gardner's suggestion that the Mayor's request be rejected was received enthusiastically by the 100 or so attending the meeting.

A mass demonstration, with a previously announced goal of 600 marchers, was scheduled to be held in downtown Chapel Hill yesterday. Another demonstration, this one restricted to Colonial Drug Store, is scheduled to be held this afternoon.
