

Interviews Finished For Work Survey

The personal interview portion of the Human Relations Committee's current Negro job opportunity survey has been completed.

In the past few weeks, members of the Human Relations Committee, paired in teams, have interviewed about 30 major business firms in Chapel Hill and Carrboro in an effort to find out what and how many jobs are available for Negroes in the community.

Other businesses are to be contacted by mail and asked to fill out and return questionnaires. The Merchants Association is sending the questionnaires under the sponsorship of the Human Relations Committee which doubles as the Chapel Hill Good Neighbor Council.

Dr. Donald Irish, chairman of the Committee's survey, said most employers were cooperative in giving information about their employment policies to interviewers. Only one or two refused to see the Committee's interviewing teams.

Dr. Irish said no exact tally had been made yet of the interviews results, but "speaking impressionistically," he said that in most firms, "as you would expect," employers hired Negroes only in menial jobs. Several were found to employ Negroes as mechanics, sales clerks, and in other non-traditionally Negro jobs. Others, "when confronted with the question," said they would be willing to hire Negroes in non-traditional jobs. "But they have not done so."

This is the picture the interviewers expected to find. "But this is a two-edged sword," said Dr. Irish. "While we must find employers willing to hire Negroes in non-traditional jobs, we must also find Negroes qualified for the jobs. The second may be the hardest."

He said the Committee, in conducting the survey, was not "acting as an employment office," but was only seeking information, and was also "seeking to match a candidate and a job in a few of the most propitious circumstances, when we think we have both a good candidate and a good chance of getting him hired." In other words, pioneer with a few small successes.

Dr. Irish added, however, that this phase of the survey should not come immediately, "and should not be taken as a threat to anyone. We only want to build on small successes."

Letters to other businesses have been sent, and a few replies received. Those businesses who do not reply will be visited personally, Dr. Irish said. Those businesses who still do not reply will probably be visited personally, Dr. Irish said, "because we want the results of the survey to be as complete as possible."

SECRET — Orange County Sheriff's Deputy Junior Clark, left, and Chapel Hill policeman Don Collier were not unsuccessful fishing last week. Obviously, they were not unsuccessful. Officer Collier got to go because he was one of the first Chapel Hill policemen to get a vacation in recent weeks, and the bountiful string he shares with Mr. Clark ought to do him a world of good. Naturally, neither officer will tell you where they found the mouth of the anglers' cornucopia that produced such a catch.

Students Can Get Eye Checks Here

In an effort to help every child who is starting school for the first time, the North Carolina Optometric Society is again holding a pre-school vision screening program. The primary objective is to see that every child starts school in a state of visual readiness. This vision screening is offered without charge to any child starting school for the first time, as a public service by members of the Optometric Society.

The screening program was started in 1962. It was felt there was a definite need for the program, and many children throughout North Carolina were screened the first year. In the screening there was no attempt made to definitely diagnose or treat the child's difficulty. The only purpose was to determine the existence of the difficulty. Of those screened, it was found that 17 per cent were in need of referral for a complete visual analysis or for treatment. This is about the same percentage of visual readiness failures as was found in other areas of the United States. Statistics show that the percentage of failures increases as the child gets into the higher grades in school.

The program this year will be available to all of the 110,000 children who are starting school in North Carolina this fall. The date for the pre-school screening is August 14. All parents who wish to have their children screened on this date may call any participating member of the North Carolina Optometric Society for an appointment.

There will be more information about this screening program at a future date. The following Society members are participating: Dr. Blake Alexander, Hillsboro; Dr. Bill Kohn, Chapel Hill; Dr. Bill Beel, Chapel Hill.

New Art Exhibit At Local Gallery

A group of recent works by well known local artists is now on exhibit at Jane Haslem Gallery, formerly Paintings Upstairs Gallery.

Included in the exhibit are paintings and sculpture by Dwayne Lowder, John Gordon and Robert Shannon, all of Chapel Hill. The show is the last for some time in which two of these artists will be exhibiting in this area.

Dwayne Lowder will move to Kalamazoo, Michigan, where he will be with the new Kalamazoo Art Center; and Robert Shannon will move to Lexington, Kentucky, where he will be assistant professor of art at Transylvania College.

Dwayne Lowder is represented in this show with his sculpture, "Range No. 1" of hydrastone and "The Owl," of plaster, wood and welded steel. He also is exhibiting "Landscape No. 3," a large free form painting.

The two paintings in this show by John Gordon are two of his most recent works. In contrast to Mr. Gordon's works previously exhibited at the gallery which were dark in tone, these new paintings are very colorful. The paintings are titled, "My Neighbor" and "Dogscape with Land and Sky."

Weekly's Founder Marks 80th Year

Louis Graves, founder of the Chapel Hill Weekly, will be 80 years old Tuesday.

Mr. Graves was born in 1883 in Chapel Hill, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Graves. His childhood home stood where the Carolina Inn is now.

Mr. Graves attended school under Miss Loula Hendon and J. W. Canada, there being no public schools in Chapel Hill then. For one year he also attended the Bingham School in Asheville. He graduated from the University here in 1902.

From 1903 to 1906 he was a reporter for the New York Times. From 1906 to 1913 he did publicly work and free-lance newspaper and magazine writing, and from 1913 to 1917 he was a New York City government official. In 1917 he entered the Army, became an officer in the 81st Division, and went to France with the A. E. F.

In 1921 he returned to Chapel Hill, where he married Mildred Moses, another Chapel Hill native, and became a teacher of journalism at the University, and director of the University News Bureau.

In 1923, Mr. Graves founded the Chapel Hill Weekly, the first issue of which appeared on March 1. Shortly thereafter he gave up his University position to work full time on the Weekly, which he continued to do until 1954.

Since 1954, when he sold the Weekly to the Chapel Hill Publishing Co., he has been an occasional contributor to the paper's editorial page, and to the front page with his column, "Chapel Hill Chaff," which he has been writing for 40 years.

Rosser Promoted To Lt. Col., AFR

Dr. Neill A. Rosser, director of student teaching and teacher placement in the UNC School of Education, has been promoted to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel in the Air Force Reserves.

Dr. Rosser is a member of the Training and Guidance Staff of the 9945th Air Reserve Squadron, Raleigh. During World War II, he served as liaison officer for General Curtis LeMay's 21st Bomber Command in the Pacific. He was recalled to active duty during the Korean conflict and was assigned to the University of Illinois as an Assistant Professor of Air Science and Tactics, AF ROTC.

Perry Completes Engineer Course

Army 2nd Lt. Clifford B. Perry, son of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Perry of Chapel Hill, recently completed an 11-week engineer officer basic course at the Engineer Center, Fort Belvoir, Va.

The 21-year-old lieutenant is a 1959 graduate of Woodberry Forest (Va.) High School and a 1963 graduate of North Carolina State College in Raleigh. He is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

HUGGINS' — has Turf Builder

Why would the U. S. give anyone a patent on a lawn fertilizer?

A lawn fertilizer is simply food for grass, isn't it? And all fertilizers contain nitrogen and stuff, don't they?

Right you are. But when they get on your lawn they all act differently. Some are just "raw" chemicals. Some act like a shot-in-the-arm and produce runaway hay growth.

There's only one with nutrients locked-in until biological forces release them consistent with the needs of grass—and that's Turf Builder. Scotts invented the new process. They call it TRIONIZED BONDING. It is so original and exclusive that the U. S. granted a patent on it. No other fertilizer has it.

Turf Builder is our best seller. Enough for 5000 sq. ft. costs 4.95 (less than 1/10th per sq. ft.). Put it on any time. No watering in. No dust. You won't even get your hands dirty.
